PETITIONER'S DECLARATION FOR A GUBERNATORIAL PARDON

17 1. I am the petitioner, David Eugene Blake. I make the following statements to 18 the best of my personal knowledge and if called as a witness could and would testify
19 under the penalty of perjury to the same:

20 2. I am not serving a sentence for any offense and am not under charge of 21 commission of any crime and have since September 21, 1984 lived an honest and 22 upstanding life, and conformed to and obeyed the laws of the land.

23 3. I am humbly requesting a Governor's Pardon because I would like my 24 record to reflect the upstanding citizen that I am now and have been for many years. I 25 completed my sentence without incident, and recently had my case dismissed pursuant to 26 Penal Code 1203.4 on 08/22/2017. I thought this incident was finally behind me, but have 27 found that I am still limited and held to judgment for this past mistake, even after more 28 than 33 years of good conduct.

1 4. I have never denied responsibility for my extremely poor decisions in this
2 instance, and I will forever regret my actions during this time in my life. However,
3 following my conviction, I quickly realized that I needed to change my life and rid myself
4 of negative influences. This was the only time in my life that I have ever been in trouble
5 with the law, and I was never sent to any court-ordered classes due to the fact that I
6 always showed up for my Probation appointments on time and my drug tests always came 7 back clean. I have worked hard to live honestly and productively ever since.

8 5. I currently reside in ██████████ AZ, and have been happily married for 27
9 years. I have 2 children from a previous marriage and 2 step-children from my wife now,
10 all 4 of whom I have provided for and helped raise by being involved in school activities, 11 scouts, and sports. I tried very hard to teach them to make the right choices in life, so that 12 they would not have to learn the hard way as I did when I was younger. They now range 13 in age from 31 to 37, and I could not be more proud of the adults that they have grown up 14 to be.

15 6. I kept a steady job all these years to support my family, and retired from the 16 ██████████ just last year. Currently, my wife and I are running our own small 17 handyman business, and have run into some obstacles because of my past record. I have 18 been offered some opportunities to work on government-run healthcare buildings, but 19 have not been able to accept the business due to the impending government background
20 check that will follow. Additionally, we were offered a spot on the popular online 21 handyman referral service, ██████████ but have not gone forward with that yet for the 22 same reason. I would be extremely grateful for this recognition from the Governor's 23 office showing that my debt to society has long been paid, so that my wife and I can keep 24 our new business afloat and have the ability to explore any new opportunities for growth 25 without any limitations or setbacks.

26 7. My wife and I are proud homeowners, and are actively involved in our local 27 community. I belong to ██████████ which is an organization that is very

1 concerned with preserving the beauty of the desert that surrounds our town. We do
2 several events to raise money for charities pertaining to the Bureau of Land Management
3 and keeping the desert and highways clean. I feel that this Pardon will allow me to live
4 with the peace of mind that I can continue to get more involved in the community, without 5 fear of restriction or judgment stemming from this one-time incident that occurred so long 6 ago.

7 8. The choices and actions that led to my conviction were extremely 8 irresponsible, and I will be forever regretful for all of the consequences that have resulted 9 ever since. However, I have done everything in my power to put my past behind me and 10 move forward in a positive direction. I feel that I have proven over the past 33 years that 11 this mistake does not accurately reflect my true character or behavior, and that I am a 12 hard-working father and husband, an upstanding citizen, and an asset to society.
13 Therefore, I humbly request that the Governor grant me this full Pardon, for which I 14 would be eternally grateful.

15 9. I declare under penalty of perjury under the laws of the State of California 16 that the foregoing is true and correct.

Jeffrey Brown, a resident of Nevada, has submitted to this office an application for executive clemency.

He was sentenced on or about January 12, 1993, in the Superior Court of the State of California in and for the County of Los Angeles, for the crimes of driving under the influence, and vehicular manslaughter without gross negligence. He served one year prison, and one year, two months parole. He was discharged on March 10, 1995 having completed his sentence.

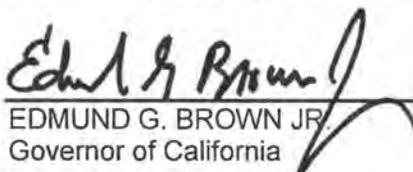

Jeffrey Brown has submitted to this office a formal application for executive clemency in the form of a gubernatorial pardon. He has shown that since his release from custody, he has lived an honest and upright life, exhibited good moral character, and conducted himself as a law abiding citizen. Indeed, Mr. Brown reports that he is clean and sober and participates in a twelve-step program. A close family member who wrote in support of Mr. Brown stated that while he could not undo the damage caused by the accident, "he has spent every moment of his life since the accident trying to honor the lives shattered that night, by living a life of honor and service and humanity. Granting Jeff's request for pardon will benefit not only Jeff but our society as well."

By the laws of this state it is proper that I, as Governor of the State of California, give testimony that, by completion of his sentence and good conduct in the community of his residence since his release, Jeffrey Brown, has paid his debt to society and earned a full and unconditional pardon.

THEREFORE, I, EDMUND G. BROWN JR., Governor of the State of California, by virtue of the power and authority vested in me by the Constitution and statutes of the State of California, do hereby grant to Jeffrey Brown a full and unconditional pardon for the above offenses, including the right to own, possess, and keep a firearm to the extent permitted by California Penal Code Section 4854.

13 v.	(LOS ANGELES COUNTY CASE NO. ATPMA004866-01)
14 JEFFREY MICHAEL BROWN
15 Defendant and Applicant.

17 I, JEFFREY MICHAEL BROWN, hereby declare:

- 18 1. I was born on [REDACTED] [REDACTED], and I currently reside in [REDACTED],
21 2. The incident in this case occurred at the end of an extremely 22 difficult time in my life. I became depressed after my son's
23 death in 1989. In the midst of my depression I turned to alcohol
24 for relief. I then lost my job, and my wife left me two weeks
25 before the accident in this case. My life had completely fallen
26 apart.
28

1 3. On August 20, 1992, I drove a laborer home after completing some 2 work at home. I believed I was safe to drive, but later learned 3 that my blood-alcohol level was 0.11, which was just over the 4 legal limit at the time. I entered an intersection under a
5 yellow light and collided with another car that was turning
6 left. Four people were injured (including myself), and a young 7 woman, [REDACTED], was tragically killed. I have spent the 8 last 15 years replaying that moment in time, and wishing it
9 never occurred.

11 4. That tragedy was a wakeup call, and I vowed to turn my life
12 around. I accepted responsibility for my actions and pled no
13 contest to vehicular manslaughter (Pen. Code, § 192, 14 subd. (c) (3).) I was sentenced to two years in prison.

16 5. In the fifteen years since my offense, I have lived an exemplary
17 life. I served my prison sentence (13 months) without incident
18 of any kind, and completed parole in the minimum amount of time
19 possible. I attended Alcoholics Anonymous, and engaged in lots
20 of soul searching. I have matured a great deal in the past
21 fifteen years, and I now have the tools I need to deal with 22 difficult times when they arise.

24 6. Today, I am married and my wife and I are raising a wonderful 25 young man whom I am very proud of. I have worked my way up in 26 the computer industry, and I am currently employed by [REDACTED]
29

1 [REDACTED] as a Situation Management Specialist. I am proud of
2 the work I do.

3 7. I am a law abiding, peaceful, and productive citizen. I made a
4 terrible mistake fifteen years ago, which I deeply regret. I am
5 seeking this Pardon so that I can do everything possible to 6 bring closure to this mistake, and to reestablish my good name.

8 8. As the past 15 years shows, and my life before the accident, I
9 am completely committed to living a law abiding and productive
10 life. I will not let myself, my family or my employer down. I 11 respectfully ask the Governor to grant my request for a full

14
15 I declare under penalty of perjury that the foregoing is true and 16 correct. Executed on 19-OCT, 2009, in [REDACTED], Nevada.

Michael Joseph Bruno

Michael Joseph Bruno, a resident of California, has submitted to this office an application for executive clemency.

He was sentenced on or about March 29, 1995, in the Superior Court of the State of California in and for the County of Contra Costa for the crimes of manufacturing a controlled substance, possession of ephedrine with the intent to manufacture methamphetamine, and conspiracy to commit a crime. On the same date, but with a different case number, he was sentenced for the crime of receiving known stolen property. He served one year prison, and three years parole. He was discharged on January 5, 1999, having completed his sentence.

Michael Joseph Bruno has complied with the provisions of Sections 4852.01 to 4852.2, inclusive, of the Penal Code of California, which provide a procedure whereby a person may, after completion of their sentences, seek restoration of the rights of citizenship, and apply for a pardon. Indeed, Mr. Bruno owns his own aviation business, volunteers his time at a local high school teaching aviation, and has served as a member of several aviation-related committees. By granting the Certificate of Rehabilitation, the court has recommended that he be granted a full pardon.

The Board of Parole Hearings received and reviewed Mr. Bruno's pardon application and related materials pursuant to California Penal Code section 4802, and recommended him for a pardon on May 16, 2017. Mr. Bruno also received a recommendation for a pardon by a majority of the justices of the Supreme Court of California, received on January 11, 2018, as required by article V, section 8 subdivision (a) of the California Constitution.

By the laws of this state it is proper that I, as Governor of the State of California, give testimony that, by completion of his sentence and good conduct in the community of his residence since his release, Michael Joseph Bruno has paid his debt to society and earned a full and unconditional pardon.

THEREFORE, I, EDMUND G. BROWN JR., Governor of the State of California, by virtue of the power and authority vested in me by the Constitution and statutes of the State of California, do hereby grant to Michael Joseph Bruno a full and unconditional pardon for the above offenses.

Pardon Application

Hello,

My name is Aaron Burmeister, and just over 20 years ago I made an extremely foolish and poor decision to participate in a crime. A friend of mine and I were addicted to drugs, and owed some bad people money, and made the terrible decision to try and rob a place to pay it back. While I never entered the store, I was convicted of the Robbery, burglary and 3 counts of false imprisonment. I am accountable for my actions, I made a truly poor, short sighted, stupid decision that has followed me throughout my adult life.

I have recently had these charges reduced and dismissed where applicable, and due to the robbery, I am in need of a pardon to finally clear my record as much as possible. I understand that there is nothing I can do to truly erase what is in my past, however, receiving a Governor's Pardon is the closest thing, and I would like to be considered for this privilege. Since my release in 1998, I moved to Arizona, married, have 5 children, and have been at my current company for 16 years. I work in retail mobile electronics, an industry that has been changed by companies like Amazon. Many retailers in all industries are folding, or feeling the squeeze of online retail, and my industry is no different. While I am truly blessed to have my job and position, and have no plans for leaving, sometimes the unplanned happens. As a father and sole provider to my wife and 5 children, I need to make sure that if I ever needed to change jobs, I have the least amount of "ghosts" in my background, to reduce my chances of finding a new job. As stated above, I understand that a Pardon will not totally clear my record, but again, is the next best thing to allow me the best possible outcome on any type of background check for employment.

Aside from the above reason, I also would like a pardon for my own reasons. I am no longer the boy/person I was at 18 years old. I have grown and matured, and changed for the better. I do my best to set a positive example for my children and peers. I feel a pardon would also help me personally close this embarrassing chapter in my life. While I remain accountable for the poor choice I made, I have spent more of my life with this following me around than without, and would love nothing more than to be done with that past that haunts me. Again, nothing I do can take back that poor decision making, but I would truly like to be able to move past it to the greatest extent possible. I successfully completed my three years' probation without incident, paid any and all restitution needed, and have stayed out of trouble since. It's been over 10 years since I have even received a ticket of any type. PLEASE consider me for this pardon, I appreciate any and all consideration given. Thank you

Sincerely,

[REDACTED]

The Honorable Governor Edmund G. Brown Jr.
Sacramento, CA 95814

Dear Governor Jerry Brown:

My name is Vernon Cargill, age 47, and I am petitioning for your consideration for a pardon for mistakes I made in my past from poor life choices; as a result from active drug addiction. The reason I'm asking to be pardoned is because I've been offered some great advancements professionally, and my background is forfeiting my opportunities. Also, my company now does National Background Investigations, and my current position of 11 years is in jeopardy. Governor Brown, I own all my mistakes and I would like to share with you why I feel I deserve a pardon.

I would like to share with you the timeline of my life, and why I'm proud of the life I have today. This timeline will briefly include my past mistakes, of those I adversely affected and how I deserved the consequences of my poor choices. You will not hear me be a victim from what the disease of addiction contributed to my life, only that today I make great choices that impact thousands of people; and my daily spiritual growth and focus will combat the disease for the rest of my life. I will share with you my life over the last 12 years in recovery, provide character references of those consistently in my life every day, and hopefully convince you that, the old chapter of my life is closed forever.

I was born and raised in [REDACTED] CA. I began using drugs at a very young age of 5 years old, and had my first overdose at 13 years of age (December of 1981). At thirteen I should have known better to tell on myself, but I learned about secrecy so early on, which took me through the rest of my adolescent life hiding my problem. I was always a good hearted boy, raised by honest hard working parents, received high grades in school; graduated in 1987 from the West Campus, the school of business, technology and management. I was a responsible, reliable & a hard worker through my entire teenage life.

By 1991 my life became completely unmanageable due to my addiction. I could not keep a job, lost all my good friends, destroyed family relationships and trust. Got in to unhealthy relationships with women I used with, bared children that I abandoned the responsibilities of being a father. By 1994 I received my first misdemeanor drug possession charge. Then in 1995 I was arrested for burglarizing a citizen's vehicle. In 1996 I was caught with drugs and was charged with a felony. My last conviction was on 10/30/1997; I pled to an assault case 245a1, and was sentenced to a 4 year term. I was released in October of 1999, but failed parole multiple times because of the choices I was making when using drugs. My Parole Officer saw more in me than I did at the time, and supported me with an interstate transfer to Arizona, where my parents had moved to.

January 1st 2001 I moved to [REDACTED] Arizona where my parents owned a small Real Estate Company and Property Management Service; I was able to go to work immediately for them. When I left California I thought I was getting away from all my problems, not knowing that the problem was my behaviors and the choices I make while using drugs. I was abstinent for a short time, drinking alcohol occasionally; which led to me relapsing and going in to a destructive state once again. It didn't happen right away, but eventually my life became unmanageable once again.

On June 21st 2004 my body had enough and started to shut down on me, and I had a motor vehicle accident from falling asleep behind the steering wheel while driving. The car caught fire, I was trapped and crushed in the car, but GOD put two off-duty fire fighters on the same road that day. They pulled me out seconds before the car exploded. I died twice that day, once in the helicopter flight and the second at the emergency room in Phoenix, Arizona. Luckily, the officers did not site me and notated the accident as driver fatigue, but in my heart I know it was because of my active addiction. I was in a coma for 3 days, underwent 15 surgeries to save my life and my crushed leg. I was informed that I would never walk again, totally wheelchair bound. Even though I didn't know anyone in Phoenix, when I was on my death bed fighting for my life; I still managed to get high one more time on September 4, 2014. Governor, that's an example of what the disease of addiction means to me. My Higher Power (GOD) spoke loud and clear, and for the first time in my life I totally surrendered.

Recovery

On September 5th 2004 I made it to my first meeting of Narcotics Anonymous, because I heard about it when I was in prison. I was totally willing to go to whatever lengths necessary for recovery from the addiction of drugs. I found support from members that understood what I was going through. I did 90 meetings in 90 days, while living in a nursing home with only public transportation, while in a wheelchair. I found a Sponsor, and worked the 12 steps. I took a minimum amount of pain killers, while under my sponsors' supervision. Trying to find a job, with a criminal background like mine, plus in a wheelchair, I thought would be impossible; but my friends helped me persevere until I got a job at a call center where I can sit all day. I still have that same job today.

I continued to work the spiritual 12 steps, over and over, over the next 11 years of recovery. The first time though the 12 steps was focused on addiction. The second was on relationships with friends/family. It was during this process I started rebuilding the severed relationship I caused with my children. Recovery taught me to make a living amends to my children, with love and support, both financially and emotionally. Recovery taught me to proactively reach out to Child Support and start paying, which I did. Being forgiven by them has been my greatest gift, and the greatest gift I've given them is always being present and involved on a daily basis.

The third time through the 12 steps was on professional relationships at work. I learned my value of how I manage multiple employees by building relationships, rather than directing. Despite corporate adversities, my employees enjoy coming to work and they are more productive, because they know that their manager has the priority of their best interest first.

Currently I'm working the 12 steps for the fourth time on physical recovery; I refuse to believe I will be in a wheelchair my entire life. I've learned to love myself more, by attending my physical therapy appointments, going to the gym and hiring a weight management professional. In November 2015, I lost 70 lbs and still maintaining the loss. I'm no longer in the wheelchair after 12 years, and walking with a cane. My goal is to be walking without a cane before January of 2017...I will do it!

Service Positions

Over the past 11+ years in recovery, I've held many service commitments as a member of Narcotics Anonymous:

- Group Service Representative (GSR)
- Chairperson, Phoenix Area
- Vice Chairperson, Phoenix Area
- Hospitals & Institutions (H&I) Chairperson
- H&I Facilities Coordinator
- Public Relations (PR), Phoenix Area
- Activities Chairperson, Phoenix Area
- Helpline Representative

Speaker Events

I'm grateful of the restoration Narcotics Anonymous has given to me, and I'm blessed to share my message of experience, strength and hope to thousands of recovery addicts. I've been blessed to travel the U.S. and abroad to share my story, countless times. I've shared in rehabs, jails, hospitals, meetings and conventions. Too many to list, but below is a list of conventions that I've been invited to share my message of recovery at, with venue sizes that ranged from 350-2,500 attendees

- April 2010 – 18th Annual Minnesota Narcotics Anonymous Convention

Public Relations

My heart is in Public Relations, getting the word out to the professional communities that Narcotics Anonymous is here to help; one addict helping another is without parallel. I've been directly involved in supporting professional workshops over the last 5 years, called the Western Service Learning Days (WSLD). WSLD is an annual conference that focuses on NA services in Public Information, Public Relations, and Phone lines, Web Pages, Outreach and Hospital & Institutions. Thus, giving NA members an opportunity to learn and share about issues and solutions.

These conferences gave us an opportunity to interact and partner with Judges, Prosecutors, Corrections, Drug Courts, School Superintendents and Economical personnel. We gained more insight of what their needs were, and how we can help. Here's a list of the conferences I helped organize and attended:

- o 2012 WSLD 26, Denver, Colorado
- o 2013 WSLD 27, Southern California Region, Los Angeles
- o 2014 WSLD 28, Northern California Region, Sacramento
- o 2015 WSLD 29, Region 51, Las Vegas, Nevada
- o 2016 WSLD 30, San Diego, California on October 21st-23rd
- o We will be hosting the WSLD 32 here in Phoenix, AZ

Professional Career

Here is the main reason I'm asking for a pardon. On June 26th 2005 I found a job working for [REDACTED] at 10 months clean; an inbound customer service call center. In 2005, they only performed an Arizona statewide background check. Fortunately all my mistakes were made in Sacramento. Eleven years later I still work for that same company, and I've obtained numerous skills, titles, trainings and responsibilities. I am currently the Operations Manager for Intuit QuickBooks Online Technical Support. I have 12 managers, 11 subject matter experts, 2 work force management personnel, 1 business analysis and 1 quality manager that directly reports to me; a total of 204 employees that I am accountable to. I have managers that I've developed to take my place, if I was to move up. Unfortunately, being promoted would require another back ground investigation, which I would obviously fail; plus lose the position I currently hold. I love this job, I love the people that work for me and I work for.

This company has allowed me to travel the United States and abroad on business; which has also allowed me to be available to share my message of recovery in so many places. I have no anonymity with this company, they know that I am an open book and grateful for where I'm at; and they would love to see me grow. This job has allowed me to be a home owner, Pay off my vehicles and be financially responsible; pay my child support, participate in the additional financial needs of my children like clothes, books, medical, dental, etc. I would like to advance so I can make more money and plan for my retirement; help my children more with college and beyond needs.

Family

My daughter [REDACTED] (20) is currently attending Sacramento State University and working towards her major in civil engineering. She is the love of my life, and I've kept the promise to never abandon her again and kept it. Even though we are miles apart, we still make the time almost daily to keep in touch. She also works at the front desk of the [REDACTED] [REDACTED] 2 blocks from the capital building. It doesn't pay great, so I help her as much as I can month to month financially; I'd like to help more.

My Son [REDACTED] (19) just graduated high school and got accepted in Sacramento State University and Arizona State University, for the fall of 2016. My son decided ASU, because he wanted to live with me. He moved here last month (July), he's enrolled and ready to start school on August 19th 2016 and majoring in Kinesiology. We purchased him a little pickup truck, and he is working for my (NA) friends' pool cleaning business while he goes to school. My Doctor is going to allow him to intern in his practice.

Three years ago, my Father got terminally ill, and I moved both my parents into my home to help my Mother care for him. My parents always took care of me, and I was grateful to be able to care for them during the last year of his life. By July of 2014, my Father required Hospice care, and rather than put him in a home we decided to continue caring for him at our home. It was a wonderful opportunity to share the last days of my Fathers' life at his side. He passed away 11 days after my anniversary. My Father was able to share my 10 year anniversary of recovery with me, and he told me his life felt complete knowing that I will never go back to my old life...he told me he was proud of me. When my Father passed, so did my Mother's retirement income, leaving her to live off of social security. My Mother continues to live with me today, and has no fear of ever being alone or moving out. Its living amends such as these that Narcotics Anonymous has taught me.

Narcotics Anonymous has taught me to become better Father, Son, Friend and Employee.

Closing

Governor Brown, I hope you can see that I've worked very hard to restore my life and become a productive member of society in ALL areas of my life. Included are many character references from family, friends and professionals. Asking for help has always been the hardest task for me to complete, but I've always been the first to jump at helping others. I am now asking for help, help to allow me to continue advancing in my life. Help to allow me to provide more support to my family. Help to allow me to continue sharing to thousands more, the rewards and freedom that are possible in recovery.

I sincerely appreciate the opportunity to share my message. If granted this pardon, I promise that you will never be disappointed in your decision. Thank you for your time and consideration.

Yours Truly,

Sokha Chhan

Sokha Chhan, a resident of California, has submitted to this office an application for executive clemency. Mr. Chhan lawfully entered the United States at the age of 13 as a refugee from Cambodia, after his family fled the genocidal Khmer Rouge regime. He is now in the custody of Immigration and Customs Enforcement pending deportation to Cambodia after living in the United States for the last 35 years as a lawful permanent resident.

He was sentenced on or about November 5, 2002, in the Superior Court of the State of California in and for the County of Fresno, for the crimes of inflicting corporal injury on spouse or cohabitant, and threatening a crime with the intent to terrorize, both misdemeanors. He served three years probation, and 364 days jail. He was discharged on November 5, 2005 having completed his sentence.

Sokha Chhan has submitted to this office a formal application for executive clemency in the form of a gubernatorial pardon. He has shown that since his release from custody, he has lived an honest and upright life, exhibited good moral character, and conducted himself as a law abiding citizen. Indeed, after his conviction, Mr. Chhan was awarded custody of his five children, who he raised as a single father. He served honorably in the United States Army Reserve, and is active with his local temple where he volunteers his time helping others. One of his daughters wrote that Mr. Chhan has shown her "what it meant to be a loving and independent individual. Whether it was working in the fields, working as a mechanic, or baking donuts for 12-13 hours every day with no days off, he never gave up on us." His younger sister, who broke down in tears when speaking about her brother, stated: "Sokha is a kind and gentle soul. He loves his kids more than his own life. He would give the shirt off his back to give it to someone else who needs it."

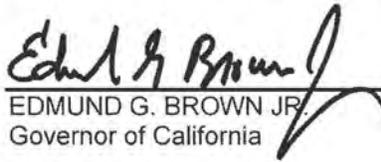

By the laws of this state it is proper that I, as Governor of the State of California, give testimony that, by completion of his sentence and good conduct in the community of his residence since his release, Sokha Chhan, has paid his debt to society and earned a full and unconditional pardon.

Attachment to Application for Gubernatorial Pardon for Sokha Chhan

Circumstances Of The Crime For Which A Pardon Is Being Requested:

On September 25, 2002, I was involved in a physical confrontation with my wife at the time, [REDACTED]. We had been experiencing problems in our marriage stemming largely from her struggle with a gambling addiction. I was working longer hours and providing for my wife, my five U.S. Citizen children, and myself and we were just making ends meet. My wife's problem with gambling caused significant stress to my family and to our relationship, culminating in the incident for which I was arrested.

One day, I learned that my wife had gambled away money that needed to be used for food and rent. We began arguing and when things escalated, I hit my wife. Rather than walk away from the situation, I allowed myself to become physical with my wife. I realize that I made a huge mistake and that it was entirely wrong of me to react the way I did. I deeply regret my actions. I tried to immediately take responsibility for my actions by accepting the first plea deal that was communicated to me by my Public Defender. I did not want to continue to put my family through the pain of a criminal proceeding and I wanted to take responsibility for my mistakes.

My public defender told me that I could be deported, but I believed that I was nonetheless protected from deportation. I thought that my being admitted in Refugee status and later becoming a Lawful Permanent Resident meant that I could permanently reside in the United States. My public defender never advised me that a sentence of just one day less, 364 days instead of 365 days, would mean not having an aggravated felony on my record.

On a busy morning, and without having time to speak to my attorney for more than a few minutes, I accepted the deal offered by the District Attorney at the time and pled no contest to a felony violation of Cal. Penal Code 273.5 and a felony violation of Cal. Penal Code 422. I accepted the deal on October 8, 2002, just two weeks after my arrest. On November 5, 2002, I was sentenced to 365 days on each count and three years of formal probation. I served my sentence, was released in 2003, and completed probation in 2005. Since completing probation over 12 years ago, I have not been arrested or convicted of any new offenses.

My attorney mentioned the possibility of deportation to me but never explained to me that a sentence of just one day less than 365 days would have meant the difference between automatic deportation and eligibility for relief. My attorney never asked the DA or the Court to consider a sentence of 364 days instead of 365 days.

On December 19, 2008, the criminal court reduced my two felonies to misdemeanors. I attempted to get a one day sentence reduction, and to vacate the convictions that made me deportable but the court said too much time had passed and that it could no longer make those changes to my case.

On November 7, 2017, based on a brand new law that had recently gone into effect, the court reduced my sentence from 365 to 364 days.

As such, I currently stand convicted of a misdemeanor pursuant to Cal. Penal Code 273.5 and a misdemeanor pursuant to Cal. Penal Code 422, each with a sentence of 364 days.

Reasons for Requesting The Pardon:

I am currently facing deportation to Cambodia. A gubernatorial pardon of my two convictions from 2002 would cause me to no longer be deportable and allow me to remain in the United States with my children, siblings, and parents, all of whom (except for one sibling) are U.S. Citizens.

I entered the United States as a Refugee at the age of 13. My family fled Cambodia in 1979 after the take-over of the bloody Khmer Rouge regime and spent two years living in a Thai Refugee Camp. I was lawfully admitted to the United States as a Refugee in September 8, 1981. Then on January 5, 1983, I was granted Lawful Permanent Resident status.

I have lived in the United States continuously since 1981 and have never left the country or been back to Cambodia. I married [REDACTED], a U.S. Citizen, in a traditional Cambodian ceremony and we had five (5) U.S. Citizen children together. I have eight U.S. Citizen siblings and one sibling who is a lawful permanent resident. My mother and father, ages 73 and 93, are also both U.S. Citizens. All of my immediate family members resides in the United States. I am not in touch with anyone currently residing in Cambodia.

I have always complied with all immigration laws in the United States. I entered legally, remained legally, and worked with authorization in the United States. In October 2006, I filed an application to replace my green card. As a result of making that contact with the Department of Homeland Security, I was instead placed in removal proceedings (deportation proceedings) on or around February 27, 2008.

My two felonies were reduced to misdemeanors in 2008 but the court did not have jurisdiction to reduce my sentence by even one day due to the laws in place at that time. As such, I was stuck with the 365 day sentence. The Immigration Judge found that I had been convicted of an aggravated felony and had no choice but to order my removal from the United States. However, since I was a Cambodian national, I was released on an order of supervision and instructed to report to ICE every few months. From 2009 until October 2017, I regularly reported to ICE as instructed. There was one time that I forgot to check in and checked in late as a result.

My last check in was on October 10, 2017, at which time I was given a next reporting date of December 6, 2017. However soon after that I received a call from DHS, asking me to check in again on October 19, 2017. I complied with that request just as I had been doing over the last 8 years, but this time I was placed into immigration custody without any explanation. I was aware of the possibility of being rearrested, however, because I had heard reports of other Cambodians being arrested by ICE just two weeks earlier.

I have been in immigration custody since October 19, 2017. I am currently detained at the Rio Consumnes Correctional Center and am back in removal proceedings facing deportation to Cambodia after 36 years of living in the U.S. legally.

As such, I am humbly applying for this gubernatorial pardon in order to avoid the harsh immigration consequences of deportation to Cambodia.

Brief Statement Explaining Why Pardon Should Be Granted:

Since my arrest and conviction over 15 years ago in 2002, I have not suffered any new arrests or convictions. Since my release from immigration custody in 2009, I have complied with all immigration laws and with the terms of my order of supervision. In fact, I was arrested in October 2017 by ICE after they asked me to voluntarily return to their offices, which I did. I have always followed their orders and instructions.

I was also in the Reserves for the U.S. Armed forces for two years before being honorably discharged. If I am able to avoid deportation, I would like to apply to become a Citizen of the country that provided my entire family with protection when we had to escape the genocidal regime in place in Cambodia. This is the country I call home.

I have been a donut baker for the last approximately ten years. I have been working full time to continue to support my children. I separated from my wife in approximately 2007 and have not resumed my relationship with her since. In 2008, the same year that I was facing deportation, child protective services was called based on my children's mothers' conduct, which included chasing one of my children with a knife. This was one of many acts that my wife committed due to her instability and struggle with her gambling addiction. After reviewing the evidence presented in the case, the family court issued an order granting me sole legal custody of my children and designating me as the primary custodial parent. Id.

Particularly since that family court case, I have been the main sources of steady and stable support – physical, financial, and psychological – for my children.

In 2009 when I was released from immigration custody, I volunteered to be the subject of a study done by two law schools in the University of California system – UC Berkeley School of Law and UC Davis School of Law. The study ended in the publishing of a report called In the Child's Best Interest? I thought that telling my story may help others avoid deportation or make the same mistakes in the future. I have always been honest and upfront about my mistakes. Buddhism has taught me to practice peace and to take responsibility for my actions and I have tried to do that at every opportunity.

Since being released from jail in 2003, I have lived a responsible life, worked hard to support my family, and regularly reported to DHS in compliance with my order of supervision. I have tried to set a positive example for my children. Two of my children continue to live in my apartment and I support them in any way I can. We are very close as a family and my deportation would not only devastate me, but more importantly, would devastate my children. My mother too, has already taken my rearrest by ICE very badly and I'm told that she cries and worries about what is going to happen to me.

I am not a perfect person but I have done everything in my power to learn from my mistakes and lead a law abiding life. I humbly ask for a gubernatorial pardon so that I may finally, continue to reside in this country without fear of deportation.

- Started City College of San Francisco, 1979.

- Retired from my career following 20 years with Kaiser Permanente, December 2016.

Letter of explanation for convictions

I had 1 conviction in Berkeley, California for petty theft (stole a bicycle) on November 12th 1977, and 2 in Marin County, California for possession of a firearm (that I was bringing to a pawn shop to sell) on December 10th 1977, and for attempting to rob a drugstore on March 4th 1978.

For the offense in Berkeley I pleaded guilty and was placed on summary (unsupervised) probation for 1 year. My case has been closed since the end of that year. For my possession of a firearm in Marin I pleaded guilty and was placed on supervised probation for two years. For my second offense of robbery I pleaded guilty, served 1 year in county jail and had my prison time suspended pending successful completion of a yearlong residential drug treatment center, as the courts realized my crimes were drug related.

On October 18th 1978, I entered Walden House, an intensive residential substance abuse program in San Francisco, and graduated successfully on April 18th 1980, after 1 year in treatment and several months in their halfway house.

My explanation of these crimes has to do with a drug problem I developed after returning home from a combat tour of duty in Vietnam aboard a Navy gunboat. I returned to my hometown New York City in 1973, and like many Vets I had extreme difficulties adjusting to civilian life. I developed severe anxiety, panic attacks and depression and went to the Veterans' Administration for help. They put me on large doses of Valium and sedatives for sleep. Over the next several years I developed a tolerance to these drugs and required higher and higher doses for a therapeutic response.

I moved to California in 1977, in an effort to change my life. The doctors at the V.A. in San Francisco, as well as private physicians refused to give me the dosages of medication I required. I couldn't hold a job and out of desperation impulsively committed those crimes as a means to obtain money to buy medication on the streets. I am not a violent person and had never had intentions of harming anyone physically, nor had I ever done so.

I regret committing those crimes, but on the positive side, while in jail I was forced to detoxify from my medications and learned powerful lessons about the destructive path I was on. Through reading inspirational books and keeping a journal, I laid the foundation within myself that I was going to utilize all the tools available to me at Walden House to change my life.

I accomplished my goals and completed the program successfully and started taking classes at City College of San Francisco while still living at the Walden House halfway house. After one year in school I decided to become a counselor and transferred to San Francisco State University to continue my studies.

In 1982, I returned to Walden House as a staff member, where I worked as a counselor until 1985. I later worked at numerous other chemical dependency programs and hospitals, as well as psychiatric settings.

In May of 1983, I received my B.A. in Interdisciplinary Studies in Social Sciences, and was chosen by my faculty to receive Departmental Honors, due for the most part in being recognized for my accomplishments in overcoming my obstacles. I also graduated Magna Cum Laude.

Shortly after my Probation Officer, [REDACTED], helped me by going to court and having my probation terminated. Then in January, 2006, my record was expunged by Marin County Superior Court.

In July, 2011, I purchased my first home in Petaluma.

In December, 2016, I retired from my career (with a nice pension) after working for Kaiser Permanente, San Rafael, Department of Psychiatry, for 20+ years of service. Interestingly, my clinic was only 10 minutes away from the scene of the drugstore robbery, nearly 40 years and a lifetime ago.

Sincerely,

She is a guest lecturer in a social work program at a local university, and she is a "life mentor" for women at the California Institution for Women.

By the laws of this state it is proper that I, as Governor of the State of California, give testimony that, by completion of her sentence and good conduct in the community of her residence since her release, Norma Cumpian, has paid her debt to society and earned a full and unconditional pardon.

THEREFORE, I, EDMUND G. BROWN JR., Governor of the State of California, by virtue of the power and authority vested in me by the Constitution and statutes of the State of California, do hereby grant to Norma Cumpian a full and unconditional pardon for the above offense, including the right to own, possess, and keep a firearm to the extent permitted by California Penal Code Section 4854.

RE: Norma Cumpian (W-51648), Application for Pardon

Dear Governor Brown:

Ms. Cumpian's life crime is her single act of violence and only criminal conviction in an otherwise prosocial, upstanding life. In a desperate attempt to protect herself and her unborn child, Ms. Cumpian shot and killed her abusive ex-boyfriend Timothy Choi. From the moment she fired a single warning shot that resulted in his death, Ms. Cumpian has demonstrated regret and remorse for her actions. She called 911 and stayed with Mr. Choi, doing everything she could to save his life. She was released on bond during her trial proceedings and she worked and cared for her newborn baby. Despite being separated from her young son with no real hope of ever being released from her life sentence, Ms. Cumpian was a model prisoner during her entire prison term. She had no disciplinary violations and served as a leader and mentor at the California Institution for Women (CIW). Ms. Cumpian was granted parole at her initial parole suitability hearing (at a time when the grant rate was extremely low and initial hearing grants were unheard of). And she was again found suitable at her next hearing following the Governor's reversal of her first grant. Since her release seven years ago, Ms. Cumpian has lived an honest and upright life, exhibited strong moral character, and dedicated her life to giving back to her community.

Ms. Cumpian counts her son as her greatest accomplishment. Despite the challenges of her incarceration, Ms. Cumpian successfully raised a young man with a strong sense of honor and love for his country. Ms. Cumpian's son is a combat veteran of the United States military, having earned a purple heart while serving in Afghanistan. She has a close relationship with her son, and her high moral character is reflected in the values she has instilled in him.

Additionally, Ms. Cumpian's accomplishments have not gone unnoticed, the Los Angeles Sheriff is currently considering Ms. Cumpian for a position on the Inmate Welfare Commission. Her appointment would be groundbreaking as she would be the first formerly incarcerated member of the Commission, a feat that stands as a testament of Ms. Cumpian's high moral character. Ms. Cumpian should be pardoned because her conviction overstates her criminal culpability and she has fully rehabilitated and proven herself to be a tremendous asset to the community.

Describe the circumstances of the crime for which you are requesting a pardon:

In an act of youthful rebellion against her restrictive immigrant parents, Ms. Cumpian left home at the age of sixteen and moved in with her then-boyfriend. Ms. Cumpian supported the two of them through a job taking phone surveys. She graduated from Savannah High School in Anaheim, California in 1988. In 1990, Ms. Cumpian enrolled in college classes, ended that relationship and moved in with a girlfriend, supporting herself by working as a secretary. Through acquaintances she met at her phone survey job and college parties, Ms. Cumpian was introduced to local gang members and drug dealers, including an older drug dealer, Timothy Choi, who became her boyfriend and victim. Ms. Cumpian and Mr. Choi moved into a Long Beach apartment together in February of 1992. Ms. Cumpian used drugs with Mr. Choi, lost her job and became completely dependent on his income from drug sales. Mr. Choi became controlling and physically and emotionally abusive. Ms. Cumpian was isolated from her family and friends, and her parents eventually severed all contact with her and withdrew financial and emotional support.

In June of 1992, Ms. Cumpian's romantic relationship with Mr. Choi ended, and he moved back into his parents' home. Isolated, financially dependent on Mr. Choi, and with an increasing drug problem, Ms. Cumpian continued living in the apartment and Mr. Choi continued to stop by unannounced to conduct his drug transactions. Mr. Choi continued to be controlling and physically and verbally abusive. His behavior had all the hallmarks of intimate partner violence: isolation, emotional abuse, economic abuse, and physical and sexual abuse.

In July 1992, Ms. Cumpian learned she was pregnant with Mr. Choi's child. Mr. Choi did not want to have a child with Ms. Cumpian and ordered her to "get rid of it," telling her he would never marry her because she was not Korean. Ms. Cumpian refused Mr. Choi's angry demands and threats that she have an abortion. During one episode of abuse, Mr. Choi forcibly penetrated Ms. Cumpian with a large foreign object in an effort to induce a miscarriage.

On the night of August 4, 1992, Mr. Choi exploded into the apartment, high on meth and furious over the pregnancy and an unpaid phone bill. Ms. Cumpian had endured months of verbal, physical and sexual abuse at the hands of Mr. Choi, and she immediately recognized the warning signs of an impending attack. Mr. Choi's friend, a marine, was present in the apartment at the time of Mr. Choi's violent fit but stood by as Mr. Choi struck her with a basket and berated her. Fearing for her life and her unborn child, Ms. Cumpian retrieved a handgun. Enraged, Mr. Choi screamed at her to "Do it! Do it!" as he turned to reach for something in the closet. Fearing that he was reaching for an object to use to beat her, Ms. Cumpian aimed at the ground, turned away, and fired a single shot. The shot struck an artery, and Mr. Choi collapsed. Ms. Cumpian rushed to his side, applied pressure to the wound, and instructed his friend to call 911. Ms. Cumpian did not plan or intend to kill Mr. Choi that night. The history of violence in the relationship and her fear, helplessness and maternal instincts led to the desperate and impulsive decision to threaten Choi with a gun, accidentally killing him with a warning shot.

Explain why you are requesting a pardon:

Ms. Cumpian's second-degree murder conviction overstates her criminal conduct. In 1992, Intimate Partner Violence, formerly Battered Women's Syndrome, was not well understood by courts or juries. In fact, the California Evidence Code had not yet been codified to recognize the admissibility of expert testimony on the psychological impact of intimate partner violence. Despite strong evidence of self-defense, the jury convicted Ms. Cumpian of second-degree murder. Today, it is possible that the case against Ms. Cumpian would not be prosecuted, that lesser charges would have been filed, or that a jury would find Ms. Cumpian lawfully exercised her right to defend herself and her unborn son.

Ms. Cumpian deeply regrets her crime and its impact on the Choi family and her son. But that single, desperate act should not define her for the rest of her life in light of the person she has become and the positive impact she has had on the community. Ms. Cumpian has consistently proven to be a compassionate mother, friend, mentor and citizen. Ms. Cumpian respectfully requests a pardon because she does not believe one impulsive and fearful act should define who she is.

Provide a statement explaining why you should be granted a pardon:

A. Ms. Cumpian's Behavior in Prison was Exemplary.

From the beginning of her incarceration, Ms. Cumpian committed to rehabilitation and becoming a positive force in the prison community. She remained committed to the sobriety she had attained during her pregnancy, she was never disciplined for any rules violations, and her leadership positions and educational achievements exemplify her strong moral character.

Ms. Cumpian committed to sobriety when she joined Alcoholics Anonymous in June 1994, and completed the 12-Step program in September of the same year. She successfully incorporated the 12-step philosophy into her life and has remained sober for over 24 years. Notably, Ms. Cumpian has helped others overcome substance abuse. She has facilitated numerous seminars in the 12-Step programs including the Substance Abuse Module from February, 1998 through May, 1998 and the Adult Children of Alcoholics Module from July, 1998 through May, 2000. And she has continued that work as a life coach for women at CIW through monthly visits with the Anti-Recidivism Coalition (ARC).

Ms. Cumpian also facilitated numerous 12-step seminars, including the Mental Health 12-Step Module, the Anger Management module, the Adult Child of Dysfunctional Families Module, and the Module for "Healing, The Eight Stages of Life". Ms. Cumpian was active in Convicted Women Against Abuse (CWAA), the Mexican American Resource Association (MARA), and Native American Religious Services (NARS). She has participated in the Long Termers Organization and served as Secretary from July to December of 2004.

Ms. Cumpian donated 449.5 hours of HIV, Hepatitis, STI's and TB peer instruction, 39.5 hours recording books for blind or illiterate students, participated in the Happy Hats for Kids program, and volunteered at The Mental Health Christmas events. She was also involved in the Prison Pup Program, She became a Primary Caregiver, which involved taking primary responsibility for training and socializing a puppy within the prison in preparation for donating it to improve the life of a child or adult in need of a service animal. Ms. Cumpian undertook this responsibility as a volunteer in addition to her state assigned position. Her active involvement in such a wide variety of leadership positions showcases her ability to contribute to the community in a positive and concrete way.

In her nearly two decades spent at CIW, Ms. Cumpian never received a 115. Ms. Cumpian's counseling record was spotless for 14 years and she received a Placement Score of 19, the lowest possible score for her commitment offense. She maintained an outstanding disciplinary record, which is rare for someone with a similar commitment offense. Ms. Cumpian's respect for prison rules and procedures stands as a testament to her respect for authority and inclination to live an upright and honest life.

B. Ms. Cumpian has Lived an Honest and Upright Life Since her Release and Continues to be a Positive Influence in the Community.

Ms. Cumpian is a positive influence in every community she encounters and inspires others to give back to the community. For the past eight years, Ms. Cumpian has dedicated her life to restorative justice through her work on the Get on the Bus program, a CDCR program dedicated to bringing children and caregivers to visit their mothers and fathers in prison. As a mother who raised her son while in prison, Ms. Cumpian understands how important visitations are for both the inmates and children. Despite additional hurdles, Ms. Cumpian forged a strong bond with her son and raised him to be a young man of high moral character. ██████ Cumpian writes that it was his visits to CIW that truly affected him as a child and taught him about compassion. Indeed, ██████ wrote, "it was she [his mother] who taught me about loyalty, service and compassion to others.” Ms. Cumpian’s work for Get on the Bus helps incarcerated parents create and maintain loving relationships with their children. Moreover, the positive atmosphere created by Get on the Bus through its games and activities creates an opportunity for those parents to teach their children about compassion.

Ms. Cumpian is also an employee and leader for the Anti Recidivism Coalition where she created the ARC Women’s Group (“ARCWG”) to promote a positive space for women and foster a greater sense of community. The ARCWG acts as a support group for women in the community in an effort to reduce recidivism. Ms. Cumpian is in charge of finding guest speakers, and planning group events in addition to her regular responsibilities at ARC. Ms. Cumpian actively seeks out women parolees and brings them into ARCWG to help foster growth in the community and assists with reentry. Indeed, Ms. Cumpian has overcome the tragedies of her past and become a beacon for female empowerment.

Ms. Cumpian is also currently a life mentor for the women in CIW. She empowers current inmates through Women 4 Freedom, a group that visits CIW once a month and assists inmates with policy education, self-care, and reentry services. Ms. Cumpian is also in charge of organizing monthly visits, choosing a topic of discussion, and arranging for different panelists to come and speak to the women in CIW. She has brought in groups such as the Hope and Redemption team to speak to the women about healthy relationships outside of prison and how to avoid and escape toxic relationships without breaking parole. In addition, Ms. Cumpian teaches a number of classes and encourages women to join ARC upon their release. Ms. Cumpian assists in finding reentry services available to the women at CIW. She researches each individual case and the various resources offered to each inmate and gives them personalized reentry service options. Her work frequently puts her in contract with the Los Angeles Office of Diversion and Reentry, where she works with retired judge Peter Espinoza. Judge Espinoza has described the work Ms. Cumpian is performing as “incredibly helpful” because her unique experiences while in prison and during her transition allow her to share wisdom that “is a stabilizing influence” on young people reentering society.

Ms. Cumpian never misses an opportunity to share her story and help young people avoid making similar decisions as she did. She works closely with Susan Hess, a professor at the University of Southern California’s Suzanne Dworak-Peck School of Social Work, as a guest lecturer to educate students on the impact of domestic violence on individuals, families and communities. Students consistently give “exceptional” feedback and Ms. Cumpian consistently creates a safe space for students to ask critical questions and encourage social change. Susan describes Ms. Cumpian as an individual that presents “with cultural humility, empathy and a clear Lerner Centered approach.” Indeed, it is Ms. Cumpian’s empathy for others that allows her to not only be an effective guest lecturer at USC’s School of Social Work but also an excellent life coach for the women at CIW and ARCWG.

CONCLUSION

Ms. Cumpian should be granted a pardon. Ms. Cumpian has worked tirelessly to atone for her commitment offense and leave a positive impact on every community she has been a part of. It would also be unjust to deny Ms. Cumpian the chance at opportunities otherwise available to her for doing what any mother would do in a similar circumstance; put the life of her son above all else. Although this does not excuse Ms. Cumpian’s decisions, she has never shirked responsibility for her actions. Instead, she has committed herself to living an honest and upright life and helping others do the same.

Despite the violence and abuse she faced at the hand of Mr. Choi, Ms. Cumpian managed to overcome her trauma and dedicate her time in prison to bettering the lives of those around her. She has raised an exceptional young man with high moral values and a strong sense of country. She has helped other women who had faced similar forms of abuse through co facilitating various group therapies and domestic violence counseling. Ms. Cumpian continues to make a positive impact in the community through her work with the ARC. She continues to mentor inmates at CIW and parolees. Ms. Cumpian is actively making the community safer by creating groups such as the ARC Women's Group and attempting to reduce recidivism rates.

Ms. Cumpian respectfully requests that the Governor grant her a pardon.

Respectfully submitted,

Indeed, Mr. Firks is clean and sober and is active with a twelve-step program. By granting the Certificate of Rehabilitation, the court has recommended that he be granted a full pardon.

By the laws of this state it is proper that I, as Governor of the State of California, give testimony that, by completion of his sentence and good conduct in the community of his residence since his release, Barney Louis Firks II has paid his debt to society and earned a full and unconditional pardon.

THEREFORE, I, EDMUND G. BROWN JR., Governor of the State of California, by virtue of the power and authority vested in me by the Constitution and statutes of the State of California, do hereby grant to Barney Louis Firks II a full and unconditional pardon for the above offenses.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF I have hereunto set my hand and caused the Great Seal of the State of California to be affixed this 24th Day of December, 2018.

Answers & Statement for Application for Gubernatorial Pardon

1. Grand theft #487 Date: 5/18/1990 Orange County 16 months served

2. I was discharged Honorably from the US Army after serving for 8 years and moved to California where I was living and working as a home remodeler. I met my girlfriend at the time and we lived together. She was an airline stewardess and was gone for many weeks at a time. We shared and paid the bills together and when she was gone, I would take care of the bills. I used her credit card many times and we paid them. I told her I needed a credit card for myself and I said I would fill it out as an added authorized person on her account and she said that is fine. After receiving the credit card and using it, we broke up and I moved out and then she filed a police report that I opened the card without her authorization. There was nothing I could do to prove she gave me permission so I took a deal for 16 months. This left me with a Felony and I finished my time and moved back home to Colorado where I was on parole for about 1 year and then released. I have never broken any laws since that time and have made amends for my mistake. It has been over 27 years since I made that mistake.

3. I am humbly and respectfully requesting a full pardon and asking for all my rights to be restored. Since I have made that mistake over 27 years ago, I have worked very hard to make up for that one mistake. I learned very fast that prison is not a place I would ever want to visit again. I have worked hard to put myself through college and have a wonderful family and friends and belong to a very nice church here in Colorado.

I worked as a director for an electric company and attended college at night for 8 years in a row and received a Bachelor's Degree, and 2 masters Degrees, one with an MBA. I am married and my son just graduated in 2016 at Cal State Fullerton and is now married there in Orange County.

Today, I own 2 companies here in the Denver metro area and I also am a real estate investor when the market as houses to flip. I am currently studying to get my real estate license and would like to have the felony taken off my records for my mistake I made over 27 years ago.

Yes, I did make this mistake a long time ago and I would never do anything like that again. I love being a business person here and many look up to me as do my employees. I will be 55 this year and it is a dream of mine to have my rights restored, Receive and Pardon and put this behind me as an example that everyone will make mistakes, but you can make them right.

4. I feel that I am now an example of how society will not judge you only for what you have done wrong, but what you will do to make things right. I have worked very hard to make my life mean something to my family and friends, I own 2 businesses, highly educated and I have the respect of many.

I will always give back to my community and help others in need, I highly respect our Law enforcement and sometimes I wish I had become a police officer at times as some of my friends are police officers.

I am also thinking of attending at night to get a law degree at the University of Denver, however with a felony record, I may not be able to sit for the law exam and or get licensed.

I feel I have earned a pardon because I didn't take the easy way out of life and just sit back and feel sorry for myself. I have worked hard and made up for the mistake I made over 27 years ago.

5. I have not paid anyone to help me prepare this statement.

(supporting Documents attached)

Thank you very much for this consideration

Sincerely,

James Christopher Ford

He served three years probation, and 180 days jail. He was discharged on June 27, 2006, having completed his sentence.

Kyle Matthew Hathaway has complied with the provisions of Sections 4852.01 to 4852.2, inclusive, of the Penal Code of California, which provide a procedure whereby a person may, after completion of their sentences, seek restoration of the rights of citizenship, and apply for a pardon. He has obtained from the Superior Court of the State of California in and for the County of Butte, an order dated March 14, 2018, evidencing that since his release from custody, he has lived an honest and upright life, exhibited good moral character, and conducted himself as a law-abiding citizen. Indeed, a probation officer that was familiar with his case wrote in support of Mr. Hathaway's application for a pardon that he is a well-respected and caring person, and that a pardon would benefit his community. By granting the Certificate of Rehabilitation, the court has recommended that he be granted a full pardon.

By the laws of this state it is proper that I, as Governor of the State of California, give testimony that, by completion of his sentence and good conduct in the community of his residence since his release, Kyle Matthew Hathaway has paid his debt to society and earned a full and unconditional pardon.

THEREFORE, I, EDMUND G. BROWN JR., Governor of the State of California, by virtue of the power and authority vested in me by the Constitution and statutes of the State of California, do hereby grant to Kyle Matthew Hathaway a full and unconditional pardon for the above offenses.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF I have hereunto set my hand and caused the Great Seal of the State of California to be affixed this 24th Day of December, 2018.

October 22, 2018

To the Honorable Governor Brown:

The purpose of this letter is to seek a pardon for the crime I was involved in. Regardless of my sincerest apology and good deeds I cannot make up for the pain I caused the victim's family, the community, and my own family. I ask with desire to show that a person, especially a young adult, can learn from their mistakes, even tragic mistakes and grow into moral, responsible and positive contribution to society.

The reason for a pardon is I am facing deportation to Cambodia. I am a Lawful Permanent Resident of the United States. My parents and I came to the United States as refugees. My parents escaped and survived the genocide of the Khmer Rouge regime, that killed almost 3 million Cambodian people. They fled to a nearby country Thailand to a refugee camp. I was born there. Even though I was born in a Thailand refugee camp, I am not a citizen of Thailand (see attached birth certificate for reference) I am not a citizen of Cambodia. I was not born there, nor have I ever lived or even visited the country. I do not know of any relatives in Cambodia and I barely speak the language. The U.S. is the only country here I have ever truly known.

When we arrived in the United States I was 9 months old and have resided here ever since. I feel this is my country and home. We lived with many different people until my parents were able to sustain a living. Then we had our own place in Stockton, CA. I was raised along with my four younger siblings in the Housing Authority Project in Stockton, CA. I remember as a child it was hard to see my parents struggle to speak English and adapt to the American culture. I never understood why as a kid, I always saw other nationalities/cultures make fun of us because my parents could not speak English. A lot of times people would ask if Cambodians would eat dogs and cats. I often got made fun of for this. I was 8 years old in 1989 when the Cleveland Elementary School Shooting occurred in Stockton, CA. I saw on the news that a shooter was targeting Southeast Asian children and some of the dead kids were Cambodian. Even though I was never at that school I felt the pain. I had friends that went to that school when the shooting happened. I was mad and angry. I did not know why we were not accepted. As I grew up, these negative feelings caused me to be drawn to the wrong crowd which would later lead to my incarceration.

Being the oldest child, I needed to be a role model to my younger siblings and was responsible to help my parents. At the age of 14 and 15 I worked for the summer youth program. Then at 16, I got a part-time job working for [REDACTED]. By the age 18 I got a job working for [REDACTED] a company that manufactures PVC pipe. I worked there until the age 24 when I was incarcerated.

When I got released I found a job working for [REDACTED] [REDACTED] [REDACTED]. This company specializes in testing and repairing backflow preventer devices that protect our public drinking water. I was a field certified tester, but I also handled office work, city contract, and water purveyor contract. I worked there for nine years. In March of 2017, I decided to expand my knowledge to a different field in construction. Now I am working for [REDACTED]. I got hired in the Estimating department as a Junior/assistant estimator. I assist our senior estimator with drawing plans takeoff, vendors pricing, and submittal. I also help our project manager and purchasing manager with Purchasing logs and close out documents. As you can see I have always worked since I was a teenager to help my parents. I work as an adult to support my own family now. To this day, I still try to be a role model to my younger siblings despite my current circumstances.

My parents lived day to day trying to survive not realizing I should have obtained my U.S. Citizenship. I never realized it either. I thought Permanent Resident meant we were here legally and permanent. It was not until I was convicted of a crime that I realized this to not be the case. My attorney never explained the consequences of being a permanent resident when I took the plea deal. Since then both my parents and I have received a lot of criticism for not knowing they should have obtained my U.S. citizenship as a child. There were not many resources available to my parents back then. The internet was not around. I was raised here, I went to school here, I work and pay my taxes. My culture is American, of course I am an American.

I truly understand that you receive a lot of requests for pardons. I am hoping and praying that you can understand my request, and that I just need a second chance to be in the United States with my wife, my son and all my other family. I have taken full responsibility and recognize that I made a poor decision. Also, I am asking you to give me an opportunity to show people and my own son when he grows up that any person can overcome obstacles and deserves a second chance.

Sincerely,

Sean Hean

Vanna In

Vanna In, a resident of California, has submitted to this office an application for executive clemency. Mr. In lawfully entered the United States at the age of 3 as a refugee from Cambodia. He is under an order of deportation to Cambodia after living in the United States for 40 years as a lawful permanent resident.

Mr. In was sentenced on or about October 24, 1994, in the Superior Court of the State of California in and for the County of Fresno, for the crime of murder. Specifically, at the age of 17 Mr. In shot a rival gang member. He served six years, two months California Youth Authority. He was discharged on January 8, 2001 having completed his sentence.

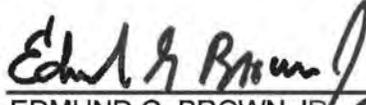

Vanna In has submitted to this office a formal application for executive clemency in the form of a gubernatorial pardon. He has shown that since his release from custody, he has lived an honest and upright life, exhibited good moral character, and conducted himself as a law abiding citizen. Indeed, after his release, Mr. In started Jobs of Hope, an organization devoted to assisting former gang members obtain jobs that helped dozens of individuals to turn away from gangs and become law abiding, productive citizens. After Mr. In returned to Fresno, he became a beloved youth pastor at a local Mennonite Brethren church. Hundreds of individuals wrote in support of Mr. In, testifying to his rehabilitation. One individual wrote that "he truly makes the community in which he lives a safer, healthier and more productive environment." Many individuals expressed alarm at the potential that Mr. In would be deported, such as one individual who wrote that deporting Mr. In "would be doing a disservice to the many people that Vanna can help in the future as well as improve the community that he so selflessly serves." While the seriousness of the crime can never be minimized, I believe that Mr. In should be permitted to have the chance at remaining in a community to which he has devoted a life of service.

By the laws of this state it is proper that I, as Governor of the State of California, give testimony that, by completion of his sentence and good conduct in the community of his residence since his release, Vanna In, has paid his debt to society and earned a full and unconditional pardon.

THEREFORE, I, EDMUND G. BROWN JR., Governor of the State of California, by virtue of the power and authority vested in me by the Constitution and statutes of the State of California, do hereby grant to Vanna In a full and unconditional pardon for the above offense, including the right to own, possess, and keep a firearm to the extent permitted by California Penal Code Section 4854.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF I have hereunto set my hand and caused the Great Seal of the State of California to be affixed this 10th day of August, 2018.

2. Briefly describe the circumstances of the crime (s) for which you are requesting a pardon:

I was a 17-year-old gang member at the time of the offense. I was the cause of another human being losing his life. I was involved in a scuffle when I was at a party. I left the scene and came back to the location of the party and shot into a crowd. I was not aware if anybody got shot that evening but found out the next morning. [REDACTED] passed away from his injuries. I have a lot of regrets in life but this is my biggest regret. I regret that I caused the death of another human being.

3. Explain why you are requesting a pardon:

I am humbly requesting a pardon because my hope is that it would display that I am not the same person that caused another young man to lose his life prematurely. I want to show the world that a hurt, troubled former gang member can be rehabilitated and no longer a threat to himself or other, law abiding citizens. It has been a long process for me but true, lasting change happened. I also want to be pardoned because I was not a citizen at the time of the offense and as a result, I got deported. I am hoping that a pardon is the next step to getting my deportation order reversed and then ultimately, becoming a United States citizen. I want to be here in America, the place where someone like myself who used to be a taker can be a giver. I want to continue to give to my community, family, and country here in California and the United States.

I believe that receiving a pardon brings hope to others that are in my situation. That having been to prison is not a life sentence. I believe that there is hope to be a productive member of one's community. Sure, it is hard work integrating back into society and the responsibilities that come with being a life-giving community member but I would not want it any other way. These challenges have caused me to rise up and be a better person. In the past, I would have turned to path of selfishness and convenience and what was best for me. That was how I operated as a teenager. Today, I am a father of 3, who has the joy of sharing those children with a lovely wife. I also want to share my story with others and that good can come out of Fresno, CA. Good can come out of former gang members. Good can come from brokenness. There is a lot of work to do in Fresno and I want to be around to do the work.

Being that I have a wife and three young children, I hope that a pardon is the next step to my wife having her husband and my children, their dad around.

4. Provide a brief statement why you should be granted a pardon:

I am grateful for the opportunity afforded even to someone like myself. I have not and will never forget what I was a part of. I would like to stay in America because there is so much work to do in regards to the youth and their family. In Fresno alone, there are thousands of identified gang members. I want to be a part of the solution instead of what I used to be: the problem. I worked with former or current gang members for 8 years as a Vocational Placement Counselor at Hope Now For Youth. My wife and I moved to Greeley, Colorado and started the same "gangs to jobs" community benefit organization there. It was called "Jobs of Hope." I was a co-founder with a former Fresno resident that lived in Greeley. He and I spear headed that organization for three and a half years before moving back to Fresno to care for my disabled mother-in-law. That organization just celebrated their 180th graduate that was placed in a job.

In some of the letters that were written on my behalf, sports is a big part of my life. I was able to volunteer with the closest elementary school to my church. I was an assistant flag football coach. We had boys and girls on our team and we had a great time. It was a challenge as some of the student-athletes were challenged in practice and during the games. There were tears because things did not always go their way. What I enjoyed the most was the time that we got to spend with each other outside of game time and practice. We just talked about life and did a lot of snacking. These students usually came from single parent homes or homes where it is not ideal. These are the students I want to invest in. They do not know my whole story but little by little I will reveal to them that I do know what they are going through and that they can overcome any challenge that comes their way.

A pardon is not a only sign that I am a changed man but it would be one of the most significant gifts given to me and my family. I have chosen to be involved in the work that I do because I love people and I want the best for them. I not only talk about pursuing an education to be successful but have lived it out. I have been fortunate enough to obtain my AA, BA and Master's degree. All of my schools were in Fresno and I am hoping to one day enroll in a Doctorate program. My area of focus will be something in the neighborhood of focusing on: "healthy families create healthy neighborhoods, which produce a healthy city." My family was an extremely abusive environment growing up and I chose to commit crimes instead of receiving or asking for help. At that point in my life, I did not know that I needed help. I thought I was doing ok in life until I was in a jail cell facing 30 years to life. My upbringing was not ideal and I want to help a young person who may have gone through what I went through that there are other ways to cope with life. More importantly, healthy ways to deal with life.

In short, I recognize that receiving a pardon is a privilege and gift that only a few whom you deem worthy to receive it. When I set foot back into Fresno, California 16 years ago, obtaining a pardon was the last thing on my mind. My initial concern was to clean up the roach and rat infested apartment that I was sharing with my oldest brother and his five children. Then, it was to get a job and help out any way I could. Going to church and picking kids up in the neighborhood was my only goal. Fast forward to the day I became a husband and now a father of 3, a pardon and the hopes of getting my deportation order overturned is constantly on my mind.

Thank you Governor Brown for taking time out of your busy schedule to review my application.

DECLARATION OF HERMELO JOEL JIMENEZ MARTINEZ

I hereby declare and state the following:

1. I was born on [REDACTED], Mexico. I live at [REDACTED] [REDACTED] with my 5 U.S. citizen children and common law wife. I am 47 years old and I make this declaration in support of a direct pardon for my 1995 misdemeanor conviction for theft.
2. I have five U.S. citizen children with my partner (common law wife) [REDACTED] and they depend on me greatly to be there for them.
3. My 5 U.S. citizen children are [REDACTED] who is 20 years old and has been diagnosed with bipolar disorder, our son [REDACTED] who is 15 years old and suffers from a developmental disability, our daughter [REDACTED] who is 12 years old and has been treated for depressive symptoms, a 10 year old daughter named [REDACTED], and our youngest son, [REDACTED], who is 7 years old.
4. We are a very united family and I worry about what would happen to my children and [REDACTED] if I cannot find a way to be there for them, especially in light of the struggles [REDACTED] and [REDACTED] face. Everything I do and have ever tried to do is for [REDACTED] and the children to have a happy life, I am requesting a direct pardon for my 1995 misdemeanor conviction because I am hoping it would allow me to apply for relief before the immigration judge, so that I can continue providing the emotional and financial support my family desperately needs from me.

MY 1995 MISDEMEANOR CONVICTION

5. In 1995, I was arrested because I shoplifted some items from Ross. I tried to take some socks and jewelry like earrings for my [REDACTED]. I wanted to buy her things but I could not afford them at the time. I was convicted of a misdemeanor and the judge gave me probation.
6. I know what I did was wrong, and I have no excuses. I was only 25 years old at the time and I was not a father yet. I did not think about responsibility and the consequences of my actions like I do now, and I sincerely apologize.

EXHIBIT D

Jimenez

7. I wanted to make [REDACTED] happy, but I did it the wrong way. I felt awful and embarrassed when it happened. I apologized and made a promise to always do the right thing after this happened.
8. I completed my probation that the judge gave me, and now, almost 22 years later, I have always followed the law since then. I teach my kids the same.
9. I also have a conviction from 1992 for petty theft, for which I was given 2 years probation, and 1 day in jail. This was before I met [REDACTED] and I was struggling on my own. I tried to take some socks for myself from Sears. I was not thinking about the consequences. It was a stupid thing to do and I wish I never did it. I am also very sorry for this as well. I do not need a pardon for this conviction, as I understand, I would still be eligible for relief from removal even with the conviction.

WHY I WANT A PARDON

10. I want a pardon because I want to be able to be eligible for cancellation of removal and stay here with my family. I want the pardon because I do not want my family, who needs me more than ever, to suffer as they already have. When I was removed and separated from my family from 2011 and then again in 2013, my family experienced so much pain without my being there with them. They suffered immensely and experienced emotional stress, financial hardship and psychological hardship as well. Now, through the assistance of my attorneys, I am back with my family, but I am still fighting removal from the United States before the immigration judge.
11. If I were unable to stay in the United States and was forced to have to separate from my family for good, I would worry endlessly about the future livelihood of my family, especially my children and the struggles they would face. Having me in and out of their lives when they need me would cause them more heartache than they have already had to endure. My children need me, and I know I need to be able to remain in the United States for them, for many reasons.
12. In May 2011, I was deported from the United States. People in uniform came to my family's door early in the morning and woke us all up. I thought it was the police. I opened the door and my children watched from the window. They were immigration officers and I was arrested as soon as I opened the door. They told me they were going to deport me and that I could not see an immigration judge because there was a past deport order against me. I was deported that day and called my family from Tijuana that night. They were devastated and worried about me.

13. Also in 2011, my now 20 year old daughter [REDACTED] began showing symptoms of strange behavior that made me nervous and worried for her. My wife would call me telling me about [REDACTED]'s suffering. She would act out and be sad and I thought that [REDACTED] was just being a teenager and we never imagined that she was suffering from a mental disorder. As her behavior increased and become more uncontrolled, I decided to try and come back to the United States. I was really worried about her. I came back to the United States in October 2011. [REDACTED] seemed better when I first came back, but it did not last and actually got even worse.
14. In May 2012, [REDACTED] called me and told me that [REDACTED] was acting strange and having hallucinations. [REDACTED] started to break and throw things around in the house. One neighbor advised us to call the police on her so that she would calm down. [REDACTED] was then threatening to kill herself and jump into traffic. I rushed home. As a father, hearing that your child is saying they are going to kill themselves is something you cannot describe. It is awful.
15. In June 2012 [REDACTED] had a second major episode in high school. She was hospitalized for a couple of days and later released. She has since been diagnosed and treated for bipolarism and is now on medication.
16. [REDACTED] depends on me as her father to be supportive and help her feel a sense of stability as she balances her bipolarism, going to college at [REDACTED] right now, working at her two jobs, and having a healthy productive life. I am afraid this would not be the case if I could not be there for her and my other children.
17. Our other daughter, [REDACTED], who is 10 years old, has suffered from depression in the past. When I was previously removed, [REDACTED] would cry every night because I was not with her. She had to attend counseling to cope with her pain. She still sometimes goes currently to ensure she knows how to deal with stress but since I have been back, [REDACTED]'s mood has improved and she is happier.
18. Our 15 year old son, [REDACTED], is developmentally disabled. He takes special educational classes and is below his grade level. We became aware of his developmental disability when he entered first grade in 2007. He was referred to a different school for children who had disabilities. They performed IEP tests and determined that he required special classes and that he needed more help with his studies than other students his age. He has problems with following orders which requires a lot of patience. He can become violent with his sisters and loses his patience very quickly. He has been going to a psychologist to help him cope with his anger. When I was removed, [REDACTED] was especially angry and acting out. I don't know for sure if the anger then was coming from not having me by his side but during that time, he did not want to talk to me because he would end up getting really upset and depressed. Since I have been back, he does not act out as much and tries to do his best. He enjoys spending time with me and I think it helps calm him.

19. My youngest two children, [REDACTED], who is only 10 years old, and [REDACTED] who is 7 years old, also need me. They are very young and should not have to grow up in a single parent household. I worry that if I could not continue to provide the emotional and financial stability to them that they currently have, their futures will be in jeopardy. I want them to be able to go to school and have fun and enjoy being children, but I worry that if I cannot get relief to stay in the United States with them, they will not have these opportunities. They may also become depressed or act out like their older siblings and this would create too much chaos and hurt me deeply to know I could not be there for them.
20. They were even more hurt when I was deported for the second time in 2013. This was like reliving the horrors of 2011 all over again by being separated from my family. I did not want to break the law and try to re-enter the United States again so I just lived in Tijuana, so I could be as close as possible to my family. My family later found a great lawyer who helped me in my case and helped me return to the United States lawfully in 2016. While I was gone, the financial struggle and emotional struggle my wife and my children went through was unbearable. I do not want to have them go through all these things ever again. I want to fight for my chance to stay here and be with my children who need me.
21. I play an important role in my children's lives. I have always tried to be a good role model for them. I want them to go to school and be happy children. When I was gone, they were sad and angry because I could not be by their side. On my days off I pick my children up and try to give them positive advice so they can grow up knowing right from wrong and how to be good people. I try to motivate my children to go to school so that they can get an education and be able to financially support themselves. I wish to be my children's side to continue to support them financially, morally, and spiritually.
22. I am very close with my children. I would always make time for them even though I worked every day for them. They are my motor to continue to fight for my case. I miss them when I am not with them. When I was removed, it caused me pain to know that they were suffering without me. I want to continue fighting for my chance to stay here with them and that is why I am requesting this pardon. They had a tough time speaking with me while I was gone because they would cry and get depressed. It breaks my heart that my children suffered so much because of my absence. I am requesting the pardon of my 1995 misdemeanor conviction because I want to be eligible for relief in my immigration case so I can continue working hard for my children, supporting my children through their own unique struggles they face, and I want to continue being a positive influence in their lives.

WHY I SHOULD BE GRANTED A PARDON

23. I believe I should be granted a pardon because having this almost 22 year old misdemeanor conviction on my record prevents me from being eligible for immigration relief that could make the difference between me staying in the United States with my United States citizen family or being removed and once again, causing my family terrible heartache and pain.
24. I am truly sorry for the offense, and I acknowledge that I was wrong. I have since then done my best to be a good example to my kids by following the law. I have also done everything I could to be a productive member of society and the best father possible to my children. My children come first and they always have. I have always focused my attention, my love and energy on my family. I feel I should be granted this pardon so I can apply for the relief that will let me stay with them. If I cannot stay in the United States, my world will be shattered and my children's lives will be turned-upside down.
25. A direct pardon for my 1995 misdemeanor offense would make me eligible for relief so I can continue supporting my family. I want to be able to stay with my family to support them financially, and to support them emotionally. I would be able to be there for [REDACTED] as she handles her bipolarism, for [REDACTED] and his developmental disability, for [REDACTED] and her depression, and to help [REDACTED] and [REDACTED] too.

CONCLUSION

26. Please consider granting the direct pardon of my 1995 misdemeanor conviction. For the reasons I mentioned above, this pardon would not only help me, but it would also more importantly help my 5 U.S. citizen children, as it would open up a way for me to pursue staying in this country with them. My children desperately need their father in their lives, and I need them too.

I declare under penalty of perjury that the above information is true and correct to the best of my knowledge. Executed this 4th day of August 2017 at Los Angeles, California.

3. Explain pardon request:

Consistent large quantities of alcohol greatly affected my judgement and actions before and after the 80's. I have not consumed alcohol or been in the legal system since the burglary. To continue to grow and contribute to myself, my loved ones, and the community, the removal of this black mark on my past would be greatly appreciated and help in all future aspirations and goals.

Karpe

4. Why should I be pardoned?

After my probation and expungement, I moved from Las Vegas to Bend Oregon. I lived there for 8 years and worked as a small contractor, did well enough to buy this ranch in Kamiah, Idaho. I have been here for 14 years, and have done quite well. No one in Bend or Kamiah is aware of my past problems. (Except Janene, my girlfriend.) Honestly, my past alcoholic behavior is embarrassing and weighs heavy on my mind. The removal of the felony conviction would help me to get even further involved in my adopted home. Hunting is almost a religion around here. There's talk of forming a building department. I could contribute greatly in that field. A pilot's license is also a lifelong dream of mine. Removal of the convicted felon stigma is very appealing to me. Sobriety has been so good to me; I will never forget or repeat the negative past.

Chhay Bun Kim

Chhay Bun Kim, a resident of California, has submitted to this office an application for executive clemency. Mr. Kim lawfully entered the United States at the age of 5 as a refugee from Cambodia.

He was sentenced on or about December 9, 1999, in the Superior Court of the State of California in and for the County of Kern, for the crime of assault with a deadly weapon other than a firearm, a misdemeanor. He served three years probation. He was discharged on December 9, 2002 having completed his sentence.

Chhay Bun Kim has submitted to this office a formal application for executive clemency in the form of a gubernatorial pardon. He has shown that since his release from custody, he has lived an honest and upright life, exhibited good moral character, and conducted himself as a law-abiding citizen. Indeed, friends and family describe him as a devoted father, husband, and friend who puts others before himself. One supporter wrote that it would be devastating if he were deported to Cambodia, and his employer wrote that he has made a positive contribution to his community and that he should be permitted to remain in this country.

By the laws of this state it is proper that I, as Governor of the State of California, give testimony that, by completion of his sentence and good conduct in the community of his residence since his release, Chhay Bun Kim, has paid his debt to society and earned a full and unconditional pardon.

THEREFORE, I, EDMUND G. BROWN JR., Governor of the State of California, by virtue of the power and authority vested in me by the Constitution and statutes of the State of California, do hereby grant to Chhay Bun Kim a full and unconditional pardon for the above offense, including the right to own, possess, and keep a firearm to the extent permitted by California Penal Code Section 4854.

2. In 1999, I agreed to drive a couple of my friends to the store, which was near my mother's house. After dropping them off, I went to my mother's house and planned to sleep there, but she did not answer the door. After I got back in the car, I heard gunshots. The friends I had driven to the store ran to my car and yelled at me to drive away, and I did. Police pulled me over shortly afterwards and arrested us.

3. There are two reasons why I am seeking a pardon. First, I face imminent deportation to Cambodia as a result of my conviction. A pardon is the only option I have to prevent deportation. I was born in a refugee camp in Thailand and came to the United States as a toddler. California is the only home that I have ever known.

As hard as deportation would be for me, the pain it will cause my family, especially my wife and kids, will be much greater. My mother lost her husband in the Cambodian genocide. I know losing a son to deportation would bring back that pain for her.

Second, I wish to continue working to make amends for harm by dedicating myself to my family and work. I have been working at the same employer, a beverage distributor, since 2002. In 2004, I was promoted to supervisor. I also spend the majority of his time with my family. I pick up my children from school, play football with them, and go to all of their practices and games.

My family also suffers from health problems. My youngest son has lost all vision in his right eye due to a scare in his retina. My mother has developed health problems as she has gotten older. With extremely blurry vision, she is no longer able to do basic things like dial a phone number. I take my youngest son to see an eye specialist at UCLA and see my mother every week.

If deported, I would be unable to support my family.

4. Ever since I was released from prison, I have dedicated myself to my family and aimed to never repeat any of the mistakes I made in my youth. I have gotten married, raised children, made significant contributions to my employer and been a productive member of my community. I am the sole income earner for my family and I work nights so I can be involved in my children's lives, picking them up from school and attending their football practices and games. I also frequently spend time with my mother, whose health is failing.

2. Circumstances of the crimes.

After two failed marriages, I was at an extremely low point in life. Aug. 2003 I lost my job due to poor performance, and the effects of that I soon lost my home. My savings and 401k was depleted and I found myself living out of my vehicle. While living out of my vehicle I was introduced to methamphetamine. I would commit petty theft, or pan handle to feed my addiction. On 4/21/04 I was pulled over and convicted of all crimes listed in Case # 04NF1454. All due to my Methamphetamine use. All stolen property was a result from me breaking into parked cars. On a few occasions I found purses or wallets left in vehicle, this is how I came into possession of credit cards and Driver Licenses. All Stolen property I would use in trade or sale to feed my addiction. During this traffic stop There was no drugs found. I had the drugs hidden in a dash panel that was never discovered. I sometimes wish it was, perhaps I could have been sentenced to a drug program. I served my sentence and was released on probation, I immediately went back to my methamphetamine addiction and using again. About 6 months later I violated probation for being in contact with a known felon also an addict. I was sentenced for 3 months' county, and released early on a work program. I was using during this work program and was kicked out of the work program and checked myself back into county jail to finish my violation sentence. About 3 or 4 months later I was pulled over during a traffic stop and was arrested for possession of Methamphetamine. This was absolutely the best day of my life I just did not know it. This was the last day I ever used any drug of any kind. Today I celebrate it as my sobriety day January 17, 2006.

3. Explain why you are requesting a pardon.

I am requesting a pardon of my convictions to better my life, personally and professionally. To give myself a piece of mind that I have done everything in my power to right my wrongs.

4. Provide a brief statement explaining why you should be granted a pardon.

I believe I should receive a pardon due to over 10 years' conviction free which is due to my sobriety since January 17, 2006. Prior to April 2004 I was never convicted of a crime. I made a few bad choices during a low point in my life. Those 2 years should not affect my entire adult life. I have made many changes in my life since then.

1. During my incarceration I completed a 3-month Substance abuse program (SAP) 8Hrs a day M-F. After I completed the course I worked as a SAP councilors assistant.
2. After my release I completed all my adjustment courses and registered and paid all my restitution fines as directed to do by State Parole and County Courts.
3. I Have attended NA meetings as I felt I needed to. I Honestly have not attended one in over 9 years, as I no longer feel I need to. I do not struggle with any desire to use.
4. From Nov. 2006 to Sept. 2012 I owned my own business. I quickly found out many employers will not hire a convicted Felon on Parole. I worked extremely hard to make the best of my options.
5. After 8 months of parole I was placed on write ins, and after 13 months I discharged my parole in Oct 2007. I believe this is the fastest any parolee can discharge his parole.
6. I sold my business in Sept. 2012 and moved to Arizona. I purchased my 1st home in Nov. 2012. I am a proud home owner. I have repaired my credit score well over 715.
7. I married my longtime girlfriend after 8 years of dating we married on Oct. 19 2013. After being together for over 10 years, I have great support around me.
8. I am a step-father and helped raise my wife's son since he was 10 years old. He finished High School with a 3.0 GPA finished two years of College and is now an active US Marine stationed at Camp Lejeune, NC.
9. I have worked in Property Management since 2013. I started out as PT maintenance personnel, quickly I was promoted to FT and shortly after that I was promoted to Manager. I was given my own property where I managed a crew of 4 and over 575 units.
10. I am very active in my community. I have organized a few local nonprofit fund raisers for the local High School ROTC program, raising enough funds to put 3 kids thru the program for the year. I recently was awarded recognition as a City of Buckeye Leader, I was recognized by the Mayor of the city Jack Meck.
11. I have completed 90hrs of Real Estate and Business School. I have completed an 8hr contract and ethics course. I have passed my National and Arizona State exam and was granted a real estate License. I am a Real Estate Agent for ██████████ out of Goodyear Arizona. During this process I was granted a Level 1 Fingerprint Clearance Card by the State of Arizona Department of Public Safety. (This clearance card was denied at 1st but with an appeal and many character letters it was granted with no restrictions.)

12. I have attached a few character letters and certificates as well as proof of my accomplishments.
13. With all the above listed, furthering my education and my proven track record conviction free for over 10 years. I obey all laws, I have paid my debt to society, I have paid my restitution. Every day I am thankful for everything I have. I want to grow as a person to become better than I was yesterday. Receiving a Pardon would help me achieve this and more in my life. I believe I am a success story for the system of rehabilitation.

Thank you,

The Honorable Governor Edmund G. Brown Jr.
Governor's Office
State Capitol
Suite 1173

February 24, 2017

Dear Governor Brown,

On October 21, 1982 I was arrested for the crime of robbery. I cannot begin to express to you and the victim the level of guilt and sadness I have in my heart for the unimaginable pain and stress I certainly caused both the victim and the victim's family. I truly and deeply regret the awful decision I made. I know that there is not, nor will there ever be a forgivable excuse to why I did this atrocious act. However, at the time I felt horribly trapped in a bad situation that I felt I had no way out of. The description below of my background is in no way intended to be used as an excuse for any of my actions, as I absolutely acknowledge that I made the decision's that allowed this crime to take place.

At the time the crime was committed I was an 18-year-old from a small town in northern Minnesota, I arrived in California about a month before the crime was committed. I grew up in an extremely abusive and violate house where my father regularly beat my mother and myself. The violence was often with his fists and any other type of weapon you can think of including 2x4 pieces of lumber which often left both my mother and I needing to seek medical assistance. At the age of 11 my mother abruptly left taking my sister with her and leaving me with my father. I then became his single target of rage and endured his abuse for the next several years until I was 14, when I felt like I could not take it anymore and fled. I tried living with friends when I could and living on the street when I couldn't. I eventually ending up in in a shelter for abused children and from that point began the circuit of group homes and foster care often being bounced around from family to family. Once I turned 18 in  I was no longer eligible to be in foster care system and was sent out on my own. Having nowhere else to go I began living life on the street again. In the summer of 1982 I just wanted to get as far away from all this as possible to try and start a new life.

I went with a friend to Las Vegas Nevada to try and start a new life, while there I met a person from California who told me about this guy who lives in Los Angeles that would help you out with a place to stay and food in exchange for working in his scrapyard. He called the person and he agreed that it would be ok for me to come out there go to work for him and he would let me stay at his house. It did not unfortunately go as planned and I found myself in a very undesirable situation. At that moment, I felt completely isolated and trapped in this situation and felt that the only way I would be able to leave the situation was for me to take this person's vehicle forcefully which I regrettably did. I was caught and arrested several days later as I was on my way back to Minnesota where I had planned to turn myself in however, I was apprehended before I could do that.

I was sentenced to 3 years in prison followed by 3 years of parole. When I was originally released from prison I attempted to stay in Los Angeles but after not being able to find work due to my conviction I illegally left the state of California to move to Florida where some childhood friends had moved and offered to help me. I was subsequently caught and returned to California. After this I had made my mind up that I was no longer going to live this lifestyle and committed that no matter what it took I was going to stay in Los Angeles and live by the terms of my parole until I successfully completed my parole.

I did successfully complete my parole on 02-14-1989. I was then able to receive (based on the several letters of recommendation from business's I had worked for during that time) a wavier that allowed me to enlist in the United States Navy. I did in fact join and went on to serve the United States Navy proudly and gratefully for twenty-one years and retired as a Chief Petty Officer (E-7) in 2010. I also earned my college degree while in the Navy in Business Administration. Since retiring from the Navy I have started my own company a successful private health care business for the elderly. I have worked furiously over the years to not become another statistic of the cycle that is typically created once you start down the path I once did. I also wanted to commit myself to not allow my upbringing to dictate my life, and break the cycle of abuse. I feel extremely satisfied that I have accomplished those goals.

In July of 2007 I married a wonderful woman, who has successfully run a home childcare business for the last 24 years. She has been state certified the entire time and has never received a single complaint. My actions from 34 years ago, are now putting my wife's business of 24 years in jeopardy of being closed. We are residents of the State of Texas and they have recently passed a law that anyone who provides home childcare must be fingerprinted including anyone that also lives in the home, regardless of if they are there during the hours she keeps the children or not. My fingerprints came back with my robbery charge from 1982 and now the State is saying that she will have to shut down her business because of this unless I am granted this pardon. Since serving out my sentence and successfully completing my parole, I have for the past twenty-eight years lived and maintained a clean record and lifestyle, I feel I am a moral decent upstanding citizen, and have successfully had a career of serving our Country, and now with my own local small business.

Governor Brown I come to you today in hopes that you would please consider a pardon on this charge. I cannot fathom the idea of something I did thirty-four years ago, being the cause of my wife's business being shut down. I have attached my DD214 to verify my time with the Navy and a picture of our family at my daughter's graduation From Louisiana Tech University last March as well as a picture of myself and my wife from our daughter's wedding 2 weeks ago. I want to sincerely thank you for your time and consideration in this matter, I truly do appreciate it and hope that with your blessing of a pardon this can be resolved for my own continued growth and to allow my wife's thriving business to stay in operation.

Sincerely,

Scott Lundgren

Re: Request for Direct Pardon for Daniel Maher

Dear Governor Brown:

On behalf of our client, Mr. Daniel Maher, please find the enclosed application for a full and unconditional pardon. Mr. Maher serves as the Director of the Recycling Program at the Ecology Center, a non-profit organization in Berkeley, California. For the past decade, Mr. Maher has worked at the Ecology Center improving the environment for California residents by providing recycling services, community education, and advocacy.

As a youth, however, Mr. Maher made poor choices. In 1994, at the age of twenty, Mr. Maher took part in an armed robbery with a group of older men. Mr. Maher pled guilty and spent over five years in prison. As a result of his conviction, Mr. Maher lost his lawful permanent resident status and was ordered deported. In the following two decades, Mr. Maher has proven himself to be a model of rehabilitation through his work with at-risk youth as well as his advocacy on behalf of the environment and immigrant rights.

Despite being a model member of his community, Mr. Maher faces the daily threat of detention and deportation. In the past year, the Trump administration carried out widespread raids targeting people precisely in Mr. Maher's situation. A pardon would permit Mr. Maher to restore his lawful permanent resident status and apply for citizenship.

I. Background Facts

As a toddler, Mr. Maher immigrated to the United States from Macau and became a lawful permanent resident in 1977. Since the age of three, Mr. Maher has lived his entire life in California. Mr. Maher's parents worked long hours on a farm growing flowers to support their family. As a teenager, Mr. Maher began to rebel from his family by cutting classes, shoplifting, and hanging out with troublemakers at school. Mr. Maher dropped out of high school and moved out of his family's home.

As an eighteen-year-old, Mr. Maher was arrested after purchasing a stolen car. A judge sentenced Mr. Maher to 90 days in jail for possession of stolen property and two counts related to altering a vehicle identification number.¹ Mr. Maher, however, failed to turn his life around. Shortly after his 20th birthday, three older men approached Mr. Maher about taking part in a plan to rob a drug dealer. Although he had never taken part in anything similar, Mr. Maher justified to himself that robbing a drug dealer was morally permissible and agreed.

Mr. Maher accompanied the three older men to an auto repair shop that they believed was used as a front to sell drugs. They held two men at gunpoint and searched the shop for cash. Finding only a small amount of cash, Mr. Maher's co-defendants began planning to search the victims' home for cash. A short time later, associates of the victims appeared. Mr. Maher fled the scene but was arrested a short time later. In 1995, Mr. Maher pled to two counts of armed robbery and kidnapping with sentencing enhancements for use of a firearm. The court sentenced Mr. Maher to 136 months in state prison.

While in prison, Mr. Maher grew up and turned his life around. Free from friends who influenced his poor choices, Mr. Maher repaired his relationship with his family and loved ones providing him a source of support and motivation. Mr. Maher obtained his high school diploma and took part in work training programs. He dedicated himself to improving his life through self-help classes and reading voraciously in his free time.

In 2000, Mr. Maher was paroled from prison. To Mr. Maher's surprise, immigration agents arrested him as he left prison and took him to an immigration detention center. During the time since he had pled guilty, Congress had retroactively expanded removal grounds making him subject to mandatory deportation. Although he was ordered deported, no country was willing to accept Mr. Maher for deportation. At the time of his birth, Macau was a Portuguese colony. Decades later, Portugal handed Macau over to China. Neither Portugal nor China recognized Mr. Maher as a citizen.

Unable to be deported, Mr. Maher lingered in detention for a year and a half. In 2001, a federal judge found that Mr. Maher's indefinite detention was unlawful and ordered him released. As required by the terms of his release, Mr. Maher notifies deportation officers of his address and regularly reports for check-ins.

Immediately after leaving detention, Mr. Maher followed through on his promise to turn his life around. Through his parole agent, Mr. Maher obtained employment sorting recycling at Tri-CED Community Recycling, a non-profit organization. Daniel's supervisor, Alameda County Supervisor Richard Valle, quickly recognized Mr. Maher's work ethic and intelligence. Tri-CED promoted Mr. Maher to drive a recycling truck and then to operations manager. While at Tri-CED, Mr. Maher became a passionate advocate for recycling and the environment.

In 2005, Mr. Maher joined the Ecology Center, an environmental non-profit organization. Mr. Maher serves as the Director of the Recycling Program. The Ecology Center's mission to inspire and build a sustainable, healthy, and just future for California and beyond through a model of education, demonstration, replication, and advocacy. As director, Mr. Maher manages a staff of twelve and oversees all curbside recycling in the city of Berkeley while also leading advocacy and public education efforts on environmental issues.

Of personal importance to Mr. Maher is the Ecology Center's work with at-risk youth and those re-entering society from prison. Seeking to prevent youth from repeating his mistakes, Mr. Maher became a certified instructor for the "Roots of Success" program.² A nationally recognized program, Roots of Success trains low-income and at-risk youth for green collar jobs and to become environmental advocates in their communities.³

Mr. Maher's personal life underwent a similar transformation since his release from prison. Last year, Mr. Maher married [REDACTED]. Over the past several years, Mr. Maher has become a father figure for his step-son, [REDACTED]. Mr. Maher plays an active role in raising [REDACTED] - picking him up from school, helping with homework, and taking part in school activities. Mr. Maher has also become a core volunteer with [REDACTED] Cub Scouts group. Mr. Maher works to be a role model for [REDACTED] and to provide the guidance and support to help him grow into a model young man and productive member of society.

II. Discussion

A. Mr. Maher presents extraordinary equities in support of a pardon.

Pardons exist as recognition that people can change their lives and make amends for past mistakes. In the twenty-three years since his conviction, Mr. Maher has not simply led a law-abiding life; he has actively repaired the harm caused by his past mistakes through community service. Mr. Maher's conduct and character demonstrate that he is precisely the type of individual deserving of a pardon.

In some ways, Mr. Maher's transformation from a troubled teenager to community leader is unsurprising. Governor Brown recognized the ability of youth to make terrible mistakes but also transform their lives in leading reforms to grant parole to youth offenders including SB 260, SB 261, and AB 1308. Mr. Maher committed his offense months after his twentieth birthday. Studies demonstrate that youth under the age of twenty-five are prone to making rash decisions and unable to assess consequences.⁴ Conversely, youth who make terrible mistakes are unlikely to repeat the same mistakes as adults.

While Mr. Maher's youth provides context his terrible decision to take part in an armed robbery, he has never made excuses for his actions. Rather, since his incarceration, he has consistently accepted responsibility and sought to make amends. Mr. Maher cannot undo his actions nearly twenty-five years ago but attempts to amend the harm he caused by working with at-risk youth and creating a cleaner and healthier community.

Beyond his daily work improving the environment in Berkeley, Mr. Maher zealously advocates for environmentally friendly policies. A recognized expert on recycling, Mr. Maher advises local and state elected officials. In Berkeley, Mr. Maher works with the Zero Waste Commission to provide recommendations for the city on improving its environmental practices. In Sacramento, Mr. Maher has provided his expertise in support of numerous pieces of legislation related to environmental and recycling issues including SB 270, SB 1385, AB 1594, and AB 1826.

Alabama*, 132 S.Ct. 2455, 2464 (summarizing research on reduced culpability of youth); National Institute of Mental Health, "The Teen Brain: Still Under Construction" (2011) available at <https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC3621648> ("The development and maturation of the prefrontal cortex occurs primarily during adolescence and is fully accomplished at the age of 25 years. The development of the prefrontal cortex is very important for complex behavioral performance, as this region of the brain helps accomplish executive brain functions.")

For decades, shame forced Mr. Maher to keep his conviction a secret from many people in his life. In the past several years, however, Mr. Maher has become an advocate for immigrant rights, sharing his story through media and community forums to advocate for pro-immigrant policies. Responding to scapegoating of immigrants during the 2016 election, Mr. Maher authored an editorial along with Eddy Zheng encouraging readers to reject xenophobia. Mr. Maher wrote:

“As teenagers, both of us made big mistakes, received convictions for violent felonies and served years in prison.

Since then, both of us have made the conscious choice to take responsibility for our actions, rehabilitate ourselves and help others. This doesn’t diminish nor change the harm we caused. But with every action we do now, we are paying it forward.”⁵

In 2017, Mr. Maher actively advocated with elected officials in Sacramento in support of the California Values Act (SB 54). Mr. Maher also regularly speaks with local and national press on his personal experience in immigration detention including CNN, Reuters, and NPR.⁶ For example, earlier this month, Mr. Maher spoke with “The Takeaway”, a nationally syndicated public radio program, on the psychological toll indefinite detention takes on immigrants.⁷

B. Mr. Maher enjoys overwhelming support from elected officials and his community in his request for a pardon.

Due to his tireless work for the community, local, state, and federal elected officials strongly support Mr. Maher and request for a pardon. Earlier this year, the City of Berkeley issued a proclamation recognizing his “expertise, work ethic, and unrivaled kindness.”⁸ Assemblymember David Chiu supports a grant of a pardon “so that he may continue improving our community.”⁹ Similarly, Congressman Eric Swalwell, Assemblymember Rob Bonta, Berkeley Mayor Jesse Arreguin, Alameda County Supervisor Wilma Chan, and Hayward Mayor Elisa Marquez all write in support of his request for a pardon.¹⁰ Many of the elected officials supporting his request have personally worked with Mr. Maher on enacting environmental policies.

Mr. Maher’s support from elected officials is reflective of the support he enjoys in his community. Following his arrest by ICE in 2015, thousands of people signed petitions and turned out at rallies. A columnist with the San Francisco Chronicle published an editorial calling on ICE to halt his deportation. The editorial stated:

“America is built on second chances, and Maher deserves another shot. He shouldn’t have to surrender his entire life for a mistake he’s owned up to, served a state prison term for, and worked hard to put behind him.

Let the man go home — to Hayward.”¹¹

Mr. Maher's co-workers, friends, and family universally describe him as a calm and caring person.

"As the Deputy Director of the Ecology Center, I've worked every day for the past seven years side-by-side with Daniel. He's an ideal co-worker – strong and steady in adversity, a wonderful sense of humor, hard-working, always ready, tireless. He's the first to arrive at work and usually the last to leave." – [REDACTED] Deputy Director¹²

"As Director of the Ecology Center Recycling program, the organization relies heavily on Mr. Maher to function... We are aware that Daniel made serious mistakes as a teenager and served time as a result. We are also convinced that as an adult Daniel has demonstrated repeatedly and consistently that he is a key community asset contributing in many ways." – [REDACTED] Executive Director¹³

"I have worked for the past 6 years with Daniel Maher and four others in a small office with a large and complex agenda. In that time, he has become not only a trusted co-worker, but a highly valued friend... Daniel is funny, in a quiet, cynical way. He's loyal. He's patient. And he's still here after ten years, doing a difficult job with competence and graciousness." – [REDACTED] Accounting Associate¹⁴

"Daniel has done a great deal for our family as well as for my own wife and kids now that I have my own family... Daniel is hardworking, trustworthy, honest, and is a kind individual. With the strong leadership skills he displays at work and in the community, it is no wonder that he is able to serve as a positive role model for his wife and son." – [REDACTED] Daniel's youngest brother¹⁵

Law enforcement agencies have reached similar conclusions after considering Mr. Maher's record. Last year, Mr. Maher requested that his conviction for receipt of stolen property be reduced to a misdemeanor and expunged. The District Attorney and Probation Department for Santa Clara County recommended that the judge grant Mr. Maher's request despite his subsequent armed robbery and kidnapping convictions. In its recommendation, the Probation Department noted that "[Mr. Maher] has remained law abiding for the last 23 years and moreover he has accomplished a lot for himself and for his community."¹⁶ Superior Court Judge Joshua Weinstein granted Mr. Maher's request.

An ICE deportation officer who interviewed Mr. Maher following his release from prison found that he did not pose a public safety threat. In recommending his release in 2001, the deportation officer wrote:

"Mr. Maher appears to be a person of above average intelligence, who seemed to have had no trouble in finding work, working hard, or in completing his education. It [is] hard to see why he committed the robbery other than being very young and influenced by his peers. He has largely avoided trouble while incarcerated and has in fact worked and studied hard in prison. He has sponsors that are willing and able to help him make it. He is bright and seems committed to living a legitimate and law-abiding life if released."¹⁷

Despite correctly predicting his success, ICE has refused to grant Mr. Maher a stay of deportation.

C. Without a pardon, Mr. Maher faces imminent danger of detention and deportation.

In 2015, Immigration and Customs Enforcement (ICE) agents arrested Mr. Maher at gunpoint as he left for work. For the past fifteen years, Mr. Maher had regularly checked in with immigration officers without incident. Since his release from detention, he has had no adverse contact with law enforcement. Around the same time, ICE detained dozens of Chinese immigrants. In exchange ICE's assistance in extraditing several individuals suspected of embezzlement, China agreed to accept dozens of individuals for deportation. By chance, Mr. Maher was not on the list of people traded for deportation. After months in detention, ICE released Mr. Maher but retains the right to arrest him at any time without warning.

Following President Trump's election, ICE escalated pressure on countries reluctant to accept people for deportation. Through negotiations, sanctions, and threats, the Trump administration has successfully pushed numerous countries to accept individuals for deportation after years of refusal.¹⁸ As a result, ICE has carried out mass raids on Chinese, Cuban, Iraqi, Vietnamese, Cambodian, and Somali communities targeting people in the same situation as Mr. Maher. The Department of State continues to actively negotiate a repatriation agreement with China.¹⁹

In 2015, ICE declined to exercise discretion and grant a stay of removal to Mr. Maher. Based solely on his ancient conviction, deportation officers designated Mr. Maher as the highest priority for deportation. Since then, the Trump Administration issued guidance eliminating any consideration of rehabilitation in making arrests.²⁰

Mr. Maher's sole avenue for relief is a full and unconditional pardon. A pardon eliminates all immigration consequences of Mr. Maher's convictions and permits him to reopen his deportation order.²¹ Once reopened, Mr. Maher's lawful permanent resident status would be restored making him safe from the risk of detention and deportation as well as eligible to apply for citizenship.

III. Conclusion

As a model for rehabilitation and redemption, Mr. Maher warrants a pardon. Our harsh and unjust deportation system seeks to continually punish him for a mistake made nearly a quarter-century ago. We request a pardon on behalf of Mr. Maher, his family, and the community that he serves. If you require any

APPLICATION FOR GUBERNATORIAL PARDON

Complete this application to request a pardon from the Governor. A pardon is the forgiveness of a crime. If you are eligible for a Certificate of Rehabilitation, do not complete this application; instead obtain a Certificate of Rehabilitation from the superior court in your county of residence. (See Penal Code, § 4852.01.) If a pardon is granted, this application will become a public record, however specific personal information will be redacted (hidden) before it is made available to the public.

APPLICANT INFORMATION

Name: Benjamin Karel Maulis Date of Birth: [REDACTED] E-mail Address: [REDACTED]
Address: [REDACTED] Phone Number: [REDACTED]

1. Conviction Summary:

List all prior convictions, including any in other states or countries. Attach additional pages if necessary.
Offense(s):	Date of offense(s):	County of conviction(s):	Sentence(s):
12021(A) (1)	10/20/1996	Colusa	30d + 30d

2. Briefly describe the circumstances of the crime(s) for which you are requesting a pardon (attach additional pages as necessary): I had been convicted of a violation of PC496(a) in 1995, in Stanislaus case 3291. Then, in the early morning of the first day of duck season in October 1996, I was driving near the town of Colusa, California. I had a valid California hunting license, and access to a field in Colusa through my membership in Wilderness Unlimited. I was stopped for a broken license plate light. A hunting shotgun was found in my vehicle. In February 1997, I pled no contest to the charge of PC12021(A) (1), in Colusa case CR33723.

The 1995 conviction of PC496(a) was later reduced to a misdemeanor under PC17(B) and dismissed under PC1203.4. Now, only the 1997 conviction for PC12021(A) (1) remains.

3. Explain why you are requesting a pardon (attach additional pages as necessary):

I would appreciate if the people of the State of California would be officially reconciled with me. The governor can use the power vested in him to grant me a full and unconditional pardon for my transgression of the peoples' law. I believe the governing authorities acted as the ministers of God in convicting me of my transgression. I also believe that God has reconciled me through Christ, having made peace through the blood of his cross. The restoration of rights to me would complete this reconciliation by taking away the persisting repercussion of my past transgression, and affirm the sureness of the rehabilitation I have demonstrated.

4. Provide a brief statement explaining why you should be granted a pardon (attach additional pages if necessary):

I served the sentence imposed, completed probation, and have not been convicted of a felony or misdemeanor for more than 15 years. The 1995 felony conviction for which I originally qualified for PC12021(A) (1) has since been reduced to a misdemeanor and dismissed. Now I am asking the transgression of PC12021(A) (1) be pardoned.

I am not justified by the character of my offenses as minor. Neither am I justified by amendment or the compensation of the sentence served. I would remain guilty were it not that God demonstrated his love in sending his Son to be the propitiation for my transgressions. Seeing as how God showed mercy toward me, I ask the Governor to consider the example of Christ and to temper justice with mercy.

APPLICATION FOR GUBERNATORIAL PARDON

1. I looked online and called the District Attorney's office in Monterey County where I pled guilty to find out exactly what I was charged with. I believe that Manufacturing a Controlled Substance is what I was charged with but if there is anything else, I apologize, I cannot remember much because right now I am having trouble with a mild case of dementia.
2. I was a licensed Real Estate agent. I had also put a down payment on a home in Big Sur with acreage and an ocean view. It was a very private place. One of my possible Real Estate buyers put down earnest money two times on property similar to what I was trying to buy. I mentioned my place and they said they wanted to rent it from me for what my monthly payments were until they could get a place of their own. I lived 20 miles away where I had electricity and phone for my business. I rented to the culprits who put in a meth lab and two weeks later they got busted. I helped the sheriff's department locate the people via contact info I had from their previous offers and the sheriffs in turn were able to bust almost 40 people in San Luis Obispo County in two different meth labs is what I was told. The Deputy District Attorney who was handling this case stayed after me for three years after the property was busted. I finally agreed to what amounted to a verbal contract that if I pled guilty, I would get 90 days with probation or just probation according to my lawyer, [REDACTED]. I was broke and my daughter had just been born and I wanted this mess behind me. When we went before the judge, I pled guilty and got 3 years and a felony on my record. Because I stood up in court and pled guilty, I am guilty.
3. My health is now very bad because of a past cancer and Chemo, my liver is going to fail soon, my heart and right lung are also in bad shape. I would consider it a great honor to be granted a Gubernatorial Pardon before I die.
4. I wanted to share some good things that I have accomplished after my release from prison. Hopefully, this will help you see that I am a good person and an asset to my community.

I have a daughter who just turned 21. When I returned from California after prison, my daughter's mother took herself out of our lives so I raised my daughter as a single parent from when she was in diapers. She is exceptionally bright and does know from what I have told her about street drugs to never do them.

After prison I started college at our local Spokane Falls Community College. There is a copy of how I was one of 53 two year college students in Washington State to be awarded The All Washington Academic Team then the All American Academic Team. I was flown to Olympia and was given the award by the then governor, Gary Locke where he puts a long ribbon with a medal on it around my neck. This was done for 53 students out of a quarter million students. I was President of my college Spokane Falls Community College's Phi Theta Kappa, the international honor society for two year colleges. Went on to get my B.S. and Masters Degrees.

I ran for public office and was elected to Colville City Council, a 4 year term. I did not run for a second term.

Next is a letter from my Probation Officer about me while I was under his supervision.

As a Vietnam era Veteran, I have been active over the years in our local American Legion Post having been elected to three terms the Adjutant and Financial Officer and one time elected to the Commander's position all positions had me on the check signing for our Post. Under my stewardship, we set up a winter warming center to help keep homeless people from being killed by our very cold harsh winters. It has since been partnered by the Stevens County and a local State funded Rural Resources who help with costs associated with running a warming center. Copy of my Past Commander award included.

History has always been a hobby, almost entirely genealogy. Locally, here in Colville, Washington where my dad and grandpa are from, I joined the local Northeast Washington Genealogy Society (NeWGS). Through trusted history websites I was able to find and document some of my ancestors who fought in the American Revolution, 14 documented, War of 1812 – one ancestor, Civil War I was able to locate a diary at Cornell University from one of my ancestors that was killed second day of The Battle of Gettysburg. I traded my knowledge of who everyone was in the diary, what unit it was and when the original owner was killed, transcribed the entire diary for them in trade for an excellent scanned copy for my records. Locally, I was asked by the Sons of Union Veterans of the Civil War to find graves of veterans of that war. All the information I was able to gather was put into a book that is being sold by the local NeWGS; <http://www.newgs.org/cpage.php?pt=33> During my search for Civil War Veterans, I found 14 here in Stevens County Washington that had broken, unreadable or missing grave markers. VA made me new grave stones that were Civil War era style for free and shipped them to me for free. I used a boy working on his Eagle Badge for one of the local Boy Scout Troops to dig and mix the concrete so he was able to get what he needed to get that high ranking badge and planted the history bug in this boy. Newspaper articles included.

The NeWGS put me in charge of our local pioneer cemetery to head up all the cleaning of trash, trees that fall and keep the place mowed. There was nobody that officially ran the abandoned cemetery called Evergreen Cemetery. I got high school students who needed community service for their senior project for several years to help with all my projects in the cemetery like digitally record all grave markers and also to replace the sign over the entrance. The old sign had been knocked down by a drunk driver. Photo included. We also had people who claimed their family owned lots with no deeds to back it up and had one time a back hoe dug up a soldier's grave that was unmarked because of time and a wooden grave marker from the 1850's from Fort Colville. I approached the Washington State Department of Archology and Historic Preservation <http://www.dahp.wa.gov/> with data showing nobody owned or took care of the cemetery officially and they helped me get a designation of a Historical Site for our Evergreen Cemetery so no more people just digging holes that may be already occupied and the NeWGS was designated as the official keeper of that cemetery. I also used a special fund designated to standing up fallen stones.

I volunteered at head start and the local elementary schools as a teacher's aide, taught a geography class to 2nd and 3rd graders called "Passport" while my daughter was going to that school. Later, when my daughter was in middle school, I volunteered as a librarian. Both the Librarian and Geography classes did not have people to do those jobs because of cut backs. I filled in for free. I volunteered at my church's food bank until my health got to bad. At my college I volunteered with the Adult Literacy Program, tutored people studying to get their GED and was part of a free book give away for preschoolers.

Before I was arrested, I had been a volunteer fireman for 23 years. I was credited with saving lives, homes and spent over 400 hours on a fire in 1985 where my own home was burned to the ground along with 18 others. I was able to find for $1 a fast attack fire truck from CDF. I was a Captain, EMT and trained in high angle rescue (hanging by a rope hundreds of feet over the side of Big Sur Hwy #1) and did back country rescue for lost hikers. Firefighter of the Year 1990.

Before I was arrested, I helped an aunt who lived in Santa Barbara, take care of my Uncle [REDACTED] who was suffering from Alzheimer's. 14 months later, he died. My uncle, [REDACTED] had been head of the music department at UCSB and was one of the nicest people you would ever meet.

One reason I strongly disagree with hard drugs is my nephew, [REDACTED] was killed while on duty as a police officer in East Palo Alto on January 7, 2006. He was shot and killed by a gang member who was selling crack on a street corner. [REDACTED] was also a Gulf War Veteran with the Marine Corp. [REDACTED] left a wife and 3 daughters

Thank you for your attention on this matter.

She was sentenced on or about April 7, 1992, in the Superior Court of the State of California in and for the County of Los Angeles for the crime of possession or purchase of a controlled substance for sale. She served two years, nine months probation. She was discharged on January 12, 1994, having completed her sentence.

Angela Novas McGill has complied with the provisions of Sections 4852.01 to 4852.2, inclusive, of the Penal Code of California, which provide a procedure whereby a person may, after completion of their sentences, seek restoration of the rights of citizenship, and apply for a pardon. She has obtained from the Superior Court of the State of California in and for the County of Orange, an order dated June 10, 2005, evidencing that since her release from custody, she has lived an honest and upright life, exhibited good moral character, and conducted herself as a law-abiding citizen. By granting the Certificate of Rehabilitation, the court has recommended that she be granted a full pardon.

By the laws of this state it is proper that I, as Governor of the State of California, give testimony that, by completion of her sentence and good conduct in the community of her residence since her release, Angela Novas McGill has paid her debt to society and earned a full and unconditional pardon.

THEREFORE, I, EDMUND G. BROWN JR., Governor of the State of California, by virtue of the power and authority vested in me by the Constitution and statutes of the State of California, do hereby grant to Angela Novas McGill a full and unconditional pardon for the above offense.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF I have hereunto set my hand and caused the Great Seal of the State of California to be affixed this 30th Day of March, 2018.

Briefly describe the circumstances of the crimes for which you are requesting a pardon.

The car I was riding in was pulled over on suspicion of DUI and subsequent search found controlled substances in a backpack with identifying personal items and there was also controlled substance on my person. I had loaned the backpack to a passenger in the vehicle and was of aware how it was being used. So even if the larger felony amount of drugs were not mine, I was involved in enough elicit behavior during that time period that an argument cannot be made against the arrest and conviction.

Explain why you are requesting a pardon.

I have lived in Utah and Montana since 2010. Compared to California, these areas have ridged, black & white thinking regarding felons. My case has been dismissed, but the word "pardon" just sounds more official and I would like to push this process as far as possible to prevent past transgressions from having last consequences. Recently I was lucky to be hired as a civilian engineer to the [REDACTED] but that career will be limited without a security clearance which would be made much easier to obtain with a gubernatorial pardon. With continued US involvement in the middle east, the skill set that I'm developing in my current job is perfect for being a facilities engineer for the [REDACTED] abroad. I'm not sure if I'll ever be able to get a security clearance, but I would like to believe it is possible.

Provide a brief statement explaining why you should be granted a pardon.

Since leaving California in 2008 I have worked internationally, counseled youth on substance addiction, obtained a degree in chemical engineering, served as a wildland firefighter, and now work for the [REDACTED] [REDACTED] It would be fair to say that I'm "rehabilitated" and doing good things in the world, but advancing my civil service career into management or roles requiring security clearance is unlikely even with an expungement.

Re: Joel Medina's Application for Gubernatorial Pardon

To Whom It May Concern:

Enclosed please find my application for a gubernatorial pardon. I have made significant positive changes in my life since I was sentenced over twenty years ago at the age of sixteen. Now, at the age of thirty-seven, nine years after my release from prison, I am a law-abiding husband, father, and medical doctor. I am deeply engaged in community service, have graduated from medical school, am pursuing a Master's in Public Health, and was recognized for my commitment to social justice with a prestigious Soros Justice Media Fellowship.

Although I fall just short of the ten years that are normally required for a direct pardon application, I believe my case warrants consideration before the full ten years have elapsed because: (1) my behavior and accomplishments since my conviction have been exemplary, and (2) a pardon would allow me to move forward with relocating to a safer location with my family and becoming fully licensed as a physician by eliminating a barrier that is currently preventing me from migrating to Canada, or returning to the United States, since I was deported upon my release from prison.

Exemplary Behavior

I served twelve years in prison for a violent crime I committed at the age of sixteen, but I have worked hard to transcend my troubled past. While in prison, I earned an Associate of Arts degree magna cum laude. When I was released and was deported to Mexico, I continued my education. I was certified to teach English as a second language and worked as an English teacher in Oaxaca and Rosarito, Mexico. I was accepted into medical school and enrolled in January 2012. I graduated four years later, in December 2016, completed a full-time internship in a public hospital in Tijuana in 2017, and am now a medical doctor. I am currently pursuing a Master's in Public Health, as I have a passion for understanding the social causes and consequences of poor health. My success has been recognized by a scholarship from my medical school and a Soros Justice Media Fellowship. I serve my community as a volunteer by providing free medical services to vulnerable populations, and by collecting and delivering food and clothing to people who live surrounded by trash at the Tijuana dump.

Numerous experts who have submitted letters in support of my application agree that my accomplishments are exemplary. According to Dr. Alexandra Cox, who holds a Ph.D. from Cambridge, "Joel Medina is an extraordinary man with a strong moral character and a passion for helping others that has fueled him." Dr. Judy Matthews, a clinical psychologist who has worked extensively in the California prison system, writes that it is "exceptional to see an individual go from that environment [prison] and eventually become a successful physician..." Dr. Ana Muñiz, an Assistant Professor of Criminology at UC Irvine, writes, "Joel has accomplished an extraordinary correction of trajectory. I believe that Joel is the ideal candidate for a pardon, as he has worked his way from poverty, abuse, and incarceration to a life as a loving father, husband, mentor, and healer."

Need for a Pardon

Having graduated from medical school, a pardon is an essential step towards becoming licensed as a physician. Further, my status as an educated professional in Mexico who is largely identified as an American (with an American wife) has placed my family in danger. My wife and two young children, who are all U.S. citizens, live with me in Rosarito, Mexico. Over the past year, we have received two kidnapping threats against our children, and six corpses have been found in the area immediately adjacent to our home, victims of the drug war that is terrorizing Mexico and has increasingly spread to our area.¹ I have consulted with both American and Canadian immigration attorneys who have informed me that a pardon is essential in order to qualify to migrate to Canada,² or to eventually return to the United States.³ I am asking for this pardon not only for myself but also for my family.

Procedural Issues

Timing: Due to the crucial importance of this pardon for my family's safety, and in order to become a fully licensed physician, I humbly ask you to consider my application despite the fact that I completed my sentence nine years ago rather than ten. Colleagues have expressed to me that I have accomplished more in this nine years than many people accomplish in their lifetimes.

Direct Application: I have been living in Mexico since my release from prison nine years ago in July 2009, when I was immediately deported to Mexico. I have attached proof that I have no criminal record in Mexico.⁴

Both Convictions Arose from Same Incident: Although I was convicted of two felonies, they arose out of the same course of conduct—at the same time, location, and involving the same victim. Therefore, I do not believe that review by the California Supreme Court is required in my case. I do not have any other criminal convictions, aside from a juvenile petition for theft of a vehicle that was handled entirely in the juvenile court system.

² See Exhibit G, Plans for Moving to Canada.

³ See Exhibit H, Plans for Returning to the United States.

APPLICATION FOR GUBERNATORIAL PARDON FOR SERGIO MENA
SUPPLEMENTAL QUESTIONS

1. Describe your involvement in the circumstances for the crime for which you are requesting pardon.

In 2002, I pled no contest to one felony count of possession for sale of ketamine. In 2003, the court suspended my sentence and I was sentenced to one day in jail, 36 months of probation, and fifty hours of community service. The court also imposed fines and fees. I completed my community service by working at a halfway house in Boyle Heights helping the counselors with paperwork and cleaning around the house.

After I successfully completed my probation on February 2, 2006, I had this felony conviction reduced to a misdemeanor. On January 7, 2009, I filed a Petition for Dismissal under California Penal Code Section 17(b). On February 26, 2009, a judge at the Los Angeles Superior Court granted the petition and the conviction was reduced to a misdemeanor for all purposes.

When I was arrested for this offense on April 26, 2001, I was very confused about my charges and I wanted to take my case to trial. However, my attorney advised me to take a plea instead of going to trial. Although I was very worried about the effect a conviction would have on my immigration status, the attorney told me that the conviction would not affect my immigration status. I believed him and went along with my life, until 2016 when I was taken into immigration custody when I returned with my wife and son from a family vacation in Mexico. For the first time, I learned that this mistake I made long ago could result in my deportation.

I regret my past conduct. I was young and immature, and I now realize that my actions were wrong and harmed society. I know that I hurt my family and I let them down. I feel so bad that my past actions are now hurting the people I love through no fault of their own. My son could be left without a father to raise him and my wife could be left without her husband. It is because of this that I am committed to living a law-abiding life and applying for a pardon would give me a chance to continue living an honest life in this country.

2. Explain why you want a pardon.

I have no connection to Mexico, other than it being the country where I was born. My parents brought me to this great country when I was a few months old. I love this country and I see myself as a proud American. I was raised in Los Angeles, and I have built my entire life in this country. Because my parents received amnesty, I became a lawful permanent resident in 1989, when I was just twelve years old.

The most important people in my life, my wife, [REDACTED] and my son, [REDACTED], are here. I am a dedicated father and husband and provide emotional and financial support to my wife and son. I do not want my son to grow up in a single-parent household when he has a father who loves him and takes care of him. I want to remain in this country to help raise and guide my son to be a good and productive member of the community. Additionally, my entire family, including my wife, son, parents, and siblings are all U.S. citizens.

A pardon would help me win my case in immigration court and stop the deportation process. Because of my misdemeanor conviction, I am currently facing deportation to Mexico, where I was born. Because I was previously told by my defense attorney that my conviction would not affect my immigration status, I decided to take my family on vacation to Mexico in 2016. When we attempted to enter the U.S., immigration officials came across my 2003 conviction and I was placed in removal proceedings. I had no idea that the conviction would make me inadmissible and cause me to be placed in removal proceedings. I have spent practically my entire life in this country. My wife and son were very scared.

A pardon would help me work in the U.S. so that I can continue taking care of my family. I made mistakes when I was younger but I am trying very hard to make amends. Since marrying my wife and the birth of my son, I have strived to be a devoted husband and father and work hard to support my family. I have worked for two decades as a construction worker, and in 2017 I began studying to become a powerline mechanic. Unfortunately, I was seriously injured at work and had to stop working. Thankfully, I had surgery in late 2017. I am still healing, but with physical therapy I will soon get strong enough to return to my dream of being a powerline mechanic. A pardon would allow me the chance to continue my job training so that I can work and be a good provider to my family.

A pardon would also allow me to continue being a good father and role model to my son. My son, [REDACTED] was born on Father's Day [REDACTED] and it was the best day of my life. His birth gave my life a sense of purpose—to always be by his side and guide him in all walks of life. I want [REDACTED] to have a father he can look up to. I don't want [REDACTED] to see me as a criminal, but instead as someone who turned his life around. Receiving a pardon would be a testament of my rehabilitation, showing my son I was able to turn my life around. I want my story to serve as an example for him if he ever encounters struggles in his life.

Without a pardon I will be separated from [REDACTED] depriving him of growing up with his father, something he doesn't deserve. As a father, I have learned how important my presence is in his life. He talks like me and observes my every move. I want to always be there for him. I want [REDACTED] to see me as a mentor and know that he can always come to me if he needs me. I want to be a good role model for my son and show him that, although I've made mistakes, I am dedicated to fixing them.

I also want to be granted a pardon to not be separated from my wife. My wife, [REDACTED] and I met when we were just kids. Years later, we reconnected after working together doing terrazzo tile and began dating shortly after. My wife and I studied together to become powerline mechanics. My wife finished and graduated at the top of her class and is currently working while I take care of [REDACTED]. I am always inspired by her strength and work ethic. Our marriage revolves around supporting each other in every way we can. For example, we make it a priority to work together as much as possible. I don't want our family to be separated. We both work as a team to juggle working and taking care of [REDACTED]. A pardon would allow me to continue taking care of my son and continue working to support him and my wife. Without my financial and emotional support, my wife would struggle to take care of our son and provide him with the life he deserves.

I also want to be granted a pardon so that I can take care of my ailing parents and my brother, who suffers from a mental illness. My parents worked tirelessly to provide for me and my four siblings. Growing up, there was always food on the table and whenever I wanted something my parents found a way to make it happen, despite being a low-income family. After my parents came to this country, my dad worked for Kern's nectar juice company, but was laid off because of his immigration status. After he was granted amnesty in the late 1980s he worked in construction. My mom was a stay-at-home mom and she always looked after me. As I see my parents age, I want to be able to provide for them as they did for me. My parents have struggled with their health. My dad has heart failure and has undergone several heart surgeries. He had his first surgery when I was 14 years old and his most recent surgery was in 2017. My mom has diabetes. I take them to the doctor and financially support them. I worry about them every single day. I want to keep repaying them for all they did for me.

My parents also struggle looking after my younger brother [REDACTED], who has schizophrenia [REDACTED] requires constant supervision, especially when he doesn't take his medication which can lead to outbursts [REDACTED] has physically assaulted my dad creating a lot of stress for him, something we all avoid doing given his heart complications. I want to be there to protect my parents and assist in getting [REDACTED] the help he needs. Because I am the oldest sibling [REDACTED] looks up to me and I want to be there for him and help him treat his mental illness.

3. Explain why you should be granted a pardon.

I should be granted a pardon because I have lived an honest and law-abiding life for more than fifteen years and have worked hard to rehabilitate myself. I have lived an honest life since my conviction in 2003, and I think I deserve a second chance. My relationship with my wife and the birth of my son [REDACTED] inspired me to work hard on rehabilitating myself. I am now a dedicated father; a committed husband; and a devoted son, brother, and uncle. I have also contributed to the U.S. through my two decades as a construction worker; my volunteer work; and as a caretaker to my son, elderly and ailing parents, my brother who suffers from a mental illness, and my nephews.

I have dedicated myself to the construction field for over two decades, and been part of teams building Los Angeles monuments. I have been a construction worker for over 20 years. My first construction job was with an Italian construction company, Corradini Corp., installing terrazzo tile. During the same time I worked for Corradini, I also worked painting road surface markings throughout Los Angeles, including some of the road surface markings at UCLA. I painted the letters on the street and the red curbs. When I walk around the UCLA campus, I feel very proud of the road surface markings I did. I also helped paint freeways, like the California 60. When the construction work was slow, I worked for American Apparel and volunteered with Homeboy Industries mentoring at-risk youth and doing clerical work around the office.

Around 2008, I left Corradini and began working for the Local 18 union. As a construction worker for Local 18, I prepped floors to install tiles. I am especially proud of this work because I got the chance to help install flooring for many of California's most notable landmarks, including the Staples Center, Walt Disney Concert Hall, Children's Hospital Los Angeles, LAX, SFO, San Diego International Airport, and the Hollywood Walk of Fame. My job as a construction worker makes me feel like I helped build the city of Los Angeles, and I'm very proud that I positively contributed to helping build the community I grew up in. At these places, I would install terrazzo tile, which involved mixing the cement, installing the tile, and then smoothing it out. Throughout my years in construction, I sought to improve and become a highly-skilled construction worker. I earned various certificates in tile finishing, logistics, and solar panels from Los Angeles City College and Homeboy Industries.

I have a passion for helping my community, and I have served as a mentor and counselor to at-risk youth and young men at Homeboy Industries under the mentorship of Father Gregory J. Boyle. I was one of the earliest members and volunteers of Homeboy Industries, which was founded by a Jesuit Priest, Father Gregory J. Boyle. I first met Father Boyle in the early 1990s when I was around thirteen years old in Boyle Heights, where Father Boyle first began to mentor at-risk youth and others affected by gang violence. He invited me to join a tutoring program he was getting started in the community. After I joined, I told my friends about this new program and soon they and others joined.

Father Boyle took me under his wings and began to mentor me because I was exactly the type of teen that he was attempting to reach. I had grown up in Boyle Heights, which was a gang-heavy neighborhood. When I'd walk to school with my siblings, I would have to change my routes often so that I would not have to face the gangs around the neighborhood. When I did run into gang members, they would pressure me to join their gang even though I did not want to. Because it was so difficult to avoid getting involved with gangs in Boyle Heights, some of my friends eventually joined gangs. However, because they knew me and knew that I did not want to join, they left me alone and did not bother me.

I learned from Father Boyle to stay away from gangs and I tried to impart this advice to my brother by telling him not to join a gang. I continued being a part of Homeboy Industries because I saw how much of an impact Father Boyle was making in the community. As a volunteer at Homeboy Industries, I got the once-in-a-lifetime opportunity to represent Homeboy Industries at a rap/hip hop convention in Italy around 1994. At the convention, I got the chance to share my love of art and music. I helped paint a mural, attended programming where I learned about different world cultures, and I met various prominent musicians and rappers, like Common and Craig Mack. The convention taught me how rap and music in general is universal and that my love for music was shared by others around the world.

In 1999, there was a devastating fire at the Homeboy Bakery that helped to fund Father Boyle's work. By this time, I was working in construction doing terrazzo tiling. However, I saw how much the fire impacted the community. Some people could not find work because Homeboy Bakery was the only place that gave them a job. Father Boyle was able to raise money and rebuild, and he founded what would become Homeboy Industries.

Even after my conviction in 2003, my work with Father Boyle and my community always brought me back to doing what was right. After my conviction, I was determined to use this past mistake as a lesson to at-risk youth to make good choices, stay in school, and keep away from gangs and criminal activity. It is with this foundation that I continue to do good for my family and community.

At Homeboy Industries, I've volunteered as a mentor and counselor to youth who were affected by gangs. I decided to volunteer at Homeboy Industries because it was a place where young people like me who were not accepted at other places could be accepted. The organization gave me so much growing up, so I felt I needed to use my past experiences to help other young people. By the time I joined Homeboy Industries, I had more experience on how to navigate dangerous situations and avoid gangs in my neighborhood, so I wanted to help kids who found themselves in similar situations. I've focused my mentorship on kids in danger of joining a gang. Many of these kids had families who were gang members and were now at a crossroad between a life in the gangs or a life free from them. I've counseled these kids and tried to guide them in the right direction. I encouraged them to join the programs offered by Homeboy Industries. If the kids got in trouble, I'd tell them to go back to school. Although I am now a busy father and family man, I still like to visit Homeboy Industries when I can to talk to my friends and help clean up the office.

I have volunteered at the Los Angeles Boys & Girls Club too. I joined the Boys & Girls Club when I was seven years old and I continued to spend time there as a teenager. It was there where I first learned to swim and I remember having so much fun there when I was younger. During my 20s, I'd volunteer at the Boys & Girls Club by talking to kids about not joining gangs. I tried to tell them to not get caught up with the gang life of Boyle Heights and East Los Angeles. I'd tell them to stay in school because that was what was important, and that gang life was only a distraction. Talking to these kids made me feel like I was paying back the community and the Boys & Girls Club for everything they did for me. I can't wait until my son starts going there.

I have worked hard to be a devoted father. I am a proud father to my three-year-old son, [REDACTED]. My son changed my life for the better. He was born on Father's Day [REDACTED]. From the moment I saw him being born, I realized that everything I did had to be for my son, and that my job as a father was to guide him in the right way. Being a father is the best feeling in the world. I take my son to the park, I play with him, I ride the bike with him, and I take him to the doctor. Although I am not the best cook, I enjoy looking through kids' recipes to cook for him. My life revolves around making sure that he has everything he needs and that he's comfortable.

I have matured into a committed husband. My wife, [REDACTED] and I were childhood friends, but lost touch as we grew older. Years later, we bumped into each other while we both worked doing terrazzo tile. She was my boss at that time, and I was so impressed by her strength and passion for her work. At work, I sometimes watched as she experienced sexual harassment because she was the only woman in our male-dominated construction work. Whenever I saw her experience this harassment, I would step in and tell the men who were bothering her to stop. We began dating around 2012, and we have been together ever since. We often worked together in construction, and we have made it a priority to try to work together as much as possible. I love working with my wife during the day and then going home with her to our son.

I am the primary caretaker to my elderly, ailing parents and my brother, who suffers from a mental illness. My dad suffers from heart failure, and has undergone several heart surgeries.

His most recent surgery was in the summer of 2017. My mom suffers from diabetes. I take my parents to the doctor and financially support them by paying for groceries, gas, and anything else they need.

I also help take care of my brother. My brother has struggled with schizophrenia for a decade, and his mental illness has been very difficult for my family. His illness sometimes makes my brother act out violently. Early this year, he physically hurt my dad. The police had to be called, and we had to commit my brother for a few days to help him get better. I try to help my brother the best way I can. I encourage him to take his medication. I help pay for his food. I also know how to calm my brother down, so my parents call on me for help when he's having an episode.

Although I have two other sisters, they cannot take primary responsibility for taking care of my family like I can. One of my sisters cannot be the primary caretaker because her family and job demands do not let her. My other sister is a single mother, so she also cannot take on this responsibility. In fact, I help take care of her son by babysitting him often. Luckily, my wife is very supportive of me and she understands that taking care of my parents and brother falls primarily to me. If I was to be deported, it would be catastrophic to my family, and my sisters would struggle to take care of my parents and brother.

I continue to have a close relationship with my parents, siblings, and nephews. I am very close to my family, and I try to spend as much time as I can with them. We have a lot of barbecues during the holidays, and we like to all get together at my parents' house because my dad is very sick and he can't travel. At the barbecues, my mom likes to make traditional Mexican food like tamales. My parents also have a greenhouse in their home, so I like spending time there planting and cleaning up. We love going to Dodgers baseball games together.

I am also a father figure to my nephews. My youngest sister has a young son and his father is not present in his life. I was there for my sister when he was born by being in the hospital and helping change his diapers and feeding him. Because my sister often works overtime, I help babysit my nephew along with my son. I like taking them to Griffith Park and Echo Park Lake. I also enjoy taking them to the zoo and the beach, like the Malibu beaches. Even though my son and nephew are still very young I like to take them to museums, like the Natural History Museum of Los Angeles. I also take another one of my nephews to school sometimes.

APPLICATION FOR GUBERNATORIAL PARDON FOR HAI NGUYEN
SUPPLEMENTAL QUESTIONS

1. Describe your involvement in the circumstances for which you are requesting a pardon.

On January 9, 1999, when I was sixteen years old, I committed a robbery along with four others. I was hanging out with a group of friends that day when a 21-year old guy, who was known for getting younger kids to steal for him, said, "We are gonna make some money today." I agreed to go along. In the car on the way to what I later learned was the Perfect Fashion Store, this older guy told the rest of us his plan. "We are gonna rob this place." I had never been involved in a robbery before and I was immediately intimidated. Yet at the same time I thought that if I didn't go along with the plan my friends would reject me.

When we got to the store, four of us ran inside and told everyone to get down. We demanded that everyone give us their belongings. It was at this time that one of the older guys who was with us handed me a gun and told me to point it at people. I held the gun while they gathered people's money and possessions. Within minutes, the police showed up. I never shot the gun and nobody was physically hurt.

My decision to participate in this robbery was a choice I made and is a decision I have dwelled on every day since, both during my incarceration and after my release. I have accepted full responsibility for my actions from the very beginning. As soon as the police showed up, I immediately told them what we did. I never once denied participating in this crime and am deeply ashamed of what I did. It was a thoughtless decision with devastating consequences that continues to haunt me each and everyday.

I am especially ashamed when I think about the victims and the emotional pain they suffered because of my actions. I am deeply remorseful for the pain I caused and would do anything to make up for what I did.

I am also embarrassed when I think about the shame I brought to my family. My dad fought for the South Vietnamese Army and was captured and tortured after the war by the oppressive communist government. After he escaped, he brought our family to a new country that accepted us as immigrants. I realize now how selfish my actions were in light of the sacrifices that my parents made for me. But it is because of the guilt and shame I feel that I wake up every day motivated to do something to make amends for my past—to help somebody or make a difference in somebody else's life.

The first time I felt hope about the possibility of regaining my freedom was the day that SB 260 passed. But I also knew that the Board of Parole Commissioners had high standards and that most people weren't granted parole on their first try. So during my hearing when Commissioner Ali Zarrinam told me that I should be proud and noted that this incident was an "anomaly" in my life and that I had "exhibited growth and maturity."

I did feel proud. But I also felt reflective because I knew this was only the beginning of my journey towards full redemption.

Growing up, I didn't have much. In 1982, the year I was born, my family fled an oppressive communist Vietnamese government. I was born on a boat traveling to the Philippines as my family escaped. We spent a year and a half in a refugee camp in Palawan before coming to the United States as refugees in 1984. When we arrived in the U.S., we lived in Long Beach, California with my uncle, his wife, and their four children. In all, there were fourteen people living in a two-bedroom apartment.

As refugees, it was difficult to integrate into our new community and we faced tremendous culture shock. My parents struggled to obtain work in a new country where they didn't speak the language. But they needed to support their six children. My dad found work as a landscaper and my mom made money selling home-cooked food. Their work required them to be out of the house for long hours every day, and it was rare that we spent any significant amount of time together as a family.

This sense of abandonment led me to act out in order to get the attention of my parents, who I felt had neglected me. This resulted in harsh discipline from my father, which came in the form of beatings. Although I knew that my misbehavior would result in this punishment, the beatings were at least some form of attention, which I so desperately craved. This turned into a daily routine of picking fights, stealing, and coming home late, only to be physically abused by my father.

When I was seven years old my older brother [REDACTED] was killed in a hit-and-run while riding his bike in front of our house. [REDACTED] death was a devastating loss for my family, and it hit me harder than I could have ever expected at the time. Without my brother, I felt even more alone at home. By the time I was ten years old, the resentment I felt toward my parents led me to spend more time with other kids in the community. I soon began spending more time with my friends and less time at home. With my friends I felt a sense of belonging. They were the family I always wanted. At the time I would have done anything for this family.

Looking back on my life today, I see where I went wrong and why. Growing up in a household where the memories of the war haunted my parents and two older siblings, living in poverty, and suffering from physical abuse only pushed me away. But this pushed me towards negative influences. At sixteen, I did not fully comprehend the consequences of my actions and how they would affect both the victims that day and my family—also victims. I also didn't realize how lucky I was to have a family that loved and cared for me enough to sacrifice as much as they had. My parents always worked hard to provide for me. I realized this every time they came to visit me in prison, as they stood by me through the parole process, and welcomed me home with open arms.

I do not resent the time I spent in prison. In fact, I have an appreciation for it. Being forced to endure harsh conditions from a young age taught me to find positivity within myself. This helped me reevaluate every aspect of my life and consider what it is that is important to me. I am now committed to continuing to right the wrongs of my past by giving back to others, building community, and being there for my family just as they have been there for me.

Almost twenty years since I committed the worst act of my life, I am able to fully reflect on where I went wrong. Although I realize now that the circumstances surrounding my childhood directly led to my involvement in this crime, that does not take away from the sense of guilt, shame, and remorse that I continue to feel every day. I take full responsibility for my actions and want to work now to keep other kids from making the same mistakes that I made.

2. Why do you want a pardon?

I want a pardon so I can remain in this country—my country—and work towards restoring what my actions took away from both my family and my community. After spending sixteen years in prison, I changed a lot. Today I am committed to doing everything I can to make amends for my past and prove I am a different person than I was at the age of sixteen. There are four main reasons why I want a pardon—why I want the opportunity to fully redeem myself.

I want a pardon so I will not be deported. I will never be able to fulfill my obligations to those who I hurt if I am not allowed to stay here in the United States where I can continue the long process of healing the wounds I created. I originally came to the U.S. when I was just two years old as a refugee from Vietnam, a country that my parents fled before I was even born. I have never known a country other than the United States.

Throughout my childhood, I was always trying to play two roles: I was Vietnamese at home, but I was American out in the world. It's strange to feel so entirely American but know that at the same time, I could be deported to a country that I have only ever heard stories of. Although I was raised to be proud of my roots, all of the stories I have heard about my parents' country growing up related to violence, death, and oppression. My family fled a brutal regime that imprisoned my father in a concentration camp and shot a bullet through my mother's chest. Luckily she survived. The thought of being sent back to a country that has done such awful things to my family haunts me constantly.

Now that the U.S. is beginning to deport Vietnamese refugees like me, I see the fear everywhere in the community. Those who still remember the brutal oppression of the communist government are afraid for those of us with final removal orders. Until recently, I thought I was safe from ever having to return to the country that my parents risked their lives to save me from. Now, for the first time in my life, my parents are revealing to me some of their most deeply traumatic experiences living in Vietnam; stories they had kept hidden away from me for so long. I don't think this is meant to scare me, but rather to prepare me for what might come next.

Despite my parents' attempts at preparing me for the worst-case scenario, I am preparing for the best-case scenario. Since my release from prison I have focused every day on what I can do to give back to the community and to my family. I work full time, am an active volunteer with many organizations, and spend a lot of time with my family. Because of this, I find it almost impossible to even think about going back to Vietnam. There is too much I hope to accomplish here. My whole life is here. For this reason, I have a responsibility to try as hard as I can to remain here. A pardon will allow me to stay and honor that responsibility.

I want a pardon so I can give back to my family. The most important thing I realized during the many years I was separated from my family, was how much I took away from them. Prison gave me the chance to reflect on the harm that my actions caused and allowed me to concentrate on my own rehabilitation. Now, having been granted parole, I have a chance to make up for what my actions took away.

In Vietnamese culture, family is the strongest bond that we have in life. They are our support system; they guide us and protect us. And more than anything, they are always there for us, no matter what. While I believed this to be true, because that was what I was told as a kid, it was never something I actually felt growing up. When I was younger, I was always looking for that sense of family I had been told about, but I never felt like my own family loved or treated me in the way that I thought families were supposed to. Once I found other people who I thought understood me, I became dependent on them. I would have done anything for them.

The first time I realized how much my family meant to me was on the day of my arrest in 1999. Sitting in the back of the police car that day, the first thing I thought was that I would never see my family again—my mom, dad, brothers, and sister. Or if I did, what would I say to them? Despite years of pushing my family away, I was now scared of losing them forever.

Once in prison I realized how much my family was there for me. Throughout my time in prison, my parents would visit me as often as they could and my brothers and sisters would write me letters, telling me all about their lives. On the day of my release, my whole family came to pick me up, including my brothers who flew in from Washington and Texas just to be there for me. Coming out after sixteen years, I had a lot to catch up on—everything from how to use a smart phone to how to apply for a driver's license—but they have all been there every day to walk me through it, step-by-step.

Since my release I have worked to establish the types of relationships with my family members that I felt I lacked growing up. My oldest brother, [REDACTED] was never around much when I was a kid, but now, even though he lives in Seattle, he always calls me to check in on how I'm doing and to offer his advice. [REDACTED] who used to reprimand me as a kid, has become the family protector. While he can still be blunt in how he talks to me, I know now that he's looking out for me. My little brother, [REDACTED] is the sibling who I'm most compatible with. Even though he also lives in Seattle now, every time we get together, all we do is laugh. I see my younger sister [REDACTED] the most often. She still lives in Orange County and we get together almost every day. Sometimes we just get boba tea and talk. She has made it her mission to help us all improve the bond we share as a family.

When I first went away to prison, I had reserved the most amount of anger for my parents. I felt like they had abandoned me as a kid and of course, I still resented my dad for physically abusing me throughout most of my childhood. Although it took years and didn't come easily, eventually my dad and I were able to work through our feelings of disappointment and anger toward one another. Today, I see my parents as often as I can. Whether it's just going for morning coffee or planning a fishing trip with my dad, we're always working to make up for the time we missed together. It means a lot for me to be able to be there for my parents, especially as they get older. They need me now more than ever.

I want a pardon so I can give back to my community. I feel a sense of responsibility to my community here in California. While my sentence helped to rehabilitate me, I now want to use all of the skills that I learned while in prison to serve the community that I affected.

Just two weeks after my release, when I was still living in transitional housing, I began volunteering with the Get on the Bus program. I knew about this program from my time in prison, as I would always see the kids coming visit their parents. I could tell how much it meant to the kids and their dads to have that time together. So I knew right away when I got out, that would be a worthwhile program to volunteer with. The Center for Restorative Justice Works, which runs the Get on the Bus Program, was far away from the transition home where I was living and I had to take three buses to get there. But that didn't stop me. For the first seven months after my release, I volunteered with the Get on the Bus program five days a week. I still volunteer with Get on the Bus at least once a month because it is important to me to mentor younger kids.

In 2016, I also became actively involved with the Anti-Recidivism Coalition (ARC), which helps formerly incarcerated individuals reenter society with the skills they need to succeed. After going through the program myself after I was released, I began mentoring others who were newly released. Most of my experiences mentoring others have been inspiring, such as when a woman who I was working with turned her life around and got her college education while also raising two children. But others have been sobering. I was saddened to learn that a young kid who I had mentored was recently killed. While I know that this work cannot change every life, experiences like this make me even more committed to doing as much as I can to change even a single life.

I know what it's like to grow up caught between two worlds without any guide, to be angry and lost, and to make a mistake. In a way, it is a privilege to have had these experiences because I can now use them to help at-risk youth make different decisions than I did. By sharing my experiences, I believe that I can help others from going down the same road of criminality and instead find a positive outlet for their hopes and dreams.

Other than my work with the Get on the Bus Program and the Anti-Recidivism Coalition, I also volunteer with Asian Pacific Islander Reentry and Inclusion Through Support and Empowerment (API RISE), Project Kinship, and helped found a new organization in Orange County called Asian & Pacific Islander Re-Entry of Orange County (APIROC).

I want a pardon so I can fulfill my dreams. It is my dream to become a counselor and work with youth who have gotten caught up in the juvenile justice system. Given my own life experiences, I am especially drawn to work with youth who face similar circumstances to my own. I strongly believe that in order to convey a message—any message—to others, you need to have walked in their footsteps. While we can read things in books or see things on TV, we cannot understand the true meaning or appreciate the full capacity of something without experiencing it ourselves. This is why I see my role as a mentor to at-risk youth as being so important. When I see a young person living a life of crime, I feel a sense of responsibility. I know what they are going through, that they are in need of help and guidance. If we can help guide these young people, we can prevent crimes from happening.

When I talk to at-risk youth, or kids living in poverty and gang-ridden communities just like I did, I know I can connect to them in a way that others cannot. I am able to tell my story, to share in what they are going through, and to honestly say, “I know exactly what you’re going through; I was that kid too.”

A pardon will therefore allow me to regain my legal status so that I can finally begin to fulfill this dream without the constant fear of deportation hanging over me. While I have been focused on my rehabilitation, reentry, and finding ways to get involved in the community since my release, there is so much more I hope to accomplish in the future building on the work I have already begun. Having lost sixteen years of my life already, I want the chance to make up for that time so that I can continue to give back to others. It is my hope to become a counselor and work in a juvenile facility, where I believe my experience and insight will be especially valuable.

3. Why do you deserve a pardon?

There is so much I hope to accomplish in the future as a loving son, brother, uncle, community member, and mentor to at-risk youth and formerly incarcerated individuals. With this in mind, I believe there are five main reasons why I deserve a pardon.

I give back to the community. When I went before the Board of Commissioners in 2015, I was one of the first non-lifers to be granted parole and I was granted on my first try. During the hearing, Commissioner Zarrinnam asked me a question that still plays in my mind today. He asked me, “If a thirty-two-year-old Mr. Nguyen were to go back and talk to a sixteen-year-old Mr. Nguyen, what would he tell him?” I responded by saying that, “through all the years of my incarceration, I come to realize that it’s not worth it. It’s not worth it one bit. You have a family that you thought didn’t care for you, but sixteen years later, they’re still here. If I can just plant this seed into this little kid’s head and one day he sees the light, I’ve done my job.”

I didn't know it then, but those words would come to define my life. While I don't have the power to go back in time and warn my sixteen-year-old self not to make this mistake, I do have the power to help other lost and angry kids see the light.

One day while I was volunteering with Get on the Bus, one of the children came up to me and expressed how much he hated his father for being locked up. It was a sad reminder of all of the hurt that my own absence must have caused for my family, but I also felt, as someone who had been through the same situation as this boy's father, that I could offer some insight. So, I bought this kid a soda, and we talked for a while. I told him that sometimes people make mistakes but that didn't mean his dad didn't love him. It felt good to cheer him up and I knew then that this was my calling. I wanted to do more to help others who are going through tough times.

Throughout my time in prison, I learned so much from the lifers who lived their lives knowing that they may never see freedom again. Although I wasn't technically a lifer, since I was sentenced to thirty-five years, the lifers accepted me. They taught me that even though I had many years ahead of me in prison, I could still do things now to improve myself, to become a better person. This is a lesson I have carried with me beyond the prison walls and have since shared with others.

ARC has helped me continue this work on the outside. After going through their program in 2016, I am now a seasoned veteran. I still return as often as I can to mentor others just getting out of prison and pass on what the lifers taught me. When I am mentoring a newly released guy, I try to update him on all that he has missed since he has been away, but more than anything, I just want to be a friend—someone he can rely on when he's feeling lost or scared or angry. Being a part of this community is very important to me. It's where I have made many friends. We can all relate to what each other are going through, and that is such a special bond. I enjoy sharing my own story with others, especially the younger guys, and being able to offer advice, knowing exactly what it is they are going through. Doing this work with such inspiring people, like my mentor Sam Lewis—a former lifer himself—has shown me how much we as formerly incarcerated individuals have to offer.

In addition to my work with ARC, I have also become involved with the Asian and Pacific Islander Community in both Los Angeles and Orange County. My work with Tung Nguyen has given me the opportunity to play a large role in the founding of a new organization, Asian & Pacific Islander Re-Entry of Orange County (APIROC). My work with APIROC has since become one of the most important parts of my life. There are very few reentry services available to the Asian community in Orange County. This makes it very hard for individuals to find the support they need when going through a challenging time after their release from prison. Because of this, the mission of APIROC is to provide these much needed reentry services to this community. Although we are just starting out, we have already established a core group of people committed to the cause.

Given everything that is going on right now with changing immigration policies, APIROC and the services we provide is needed now more than ever to help support individuals who are living every day on the edge, not knowing whether they will be deported. Being able to support others through these tough times—others who I can relate to because I am experiencing the same thing—is extremely meaningful to me. All of the work that I have done since getting out has helped remind me that I am not alone, and even more than that, it feels good to be able to be there for others.

I have proved my rehabilitation. At sixteen years old, the idea of spending thirty-five years in prison felt like eternity. I thought that I would die in prison. I have come a long way from that point in my life. I still remember the day when SB 260 passed. One of my friends in prison told me to watch the news at 5 o'clock. He said that there was some change regarding juvenile offenders. So, at 5 o'clock everybody gathered around to watch the news and we saw that SB 260 passed. The news segment said that they would be giving relief to individuals who were convicted as juveniles. Right away, something hit me: I could go home.

Although I had already spent many years at this point focused on my own rehabilitation and self-improvement, there was a lot to learn about the parole process. Because I was working in the prison library at that time and didn't know much about the legislation, I asked Valerie Schultz, the Library Assistant, about it. She would print out information for me and we would post it around the yard so other inmates, who this might help, could also be informed.

I was also a member of the lifers group and realized that all I was learning as a part of their group I could now apply to my own case. Before I was in the group based on my own personal desire to better myself. But now I realized that I would have the chance to demonstrate to the Board of Parole commissioners how much I had changed over the past fifteen years. I wanted them to be able to see all that I had accomplished—that I was not the same person I was when I was sixteen. It was also important to me that other juvenile offenders would also be able to benefit from the lifer's group because they would now need to prepare for similar parole hearings. So I went to the head of the group and pushed to include other youth sentenced as adults in these groups. This change didn't come easily, but eventually they agreed.

While SB 260 provided me with the opportunity to gain my freedom, my own rehabilitation and desire to change began long before. In 2002, when I was just seventeen years old, I spent sixteen months in solitary confinement. It was during this time that the man in the cell next to me asked me where I was from. When I told him that I was Vietnamese, he asked me about Vietnam. Realizing that I didn't know as much as I should about Vietnam, but also aware of the fact that because I was illiterate, I could not read about this in a book, I decided I wanted to learn to read and write. I then checked out a dictionary from the library and taught myself to read starting with the letter "A." This was the beginning of my desire to change, to learn more, and become better informed.

My transformation from an immature and resentful teenager to a thoughtful and giving person took time. It was a process. But a major turning point for me came in 2008. My parents used to come and visit me in prison once a week. But during the first few years, whenever my dad would come, he was always negative and would focus on my failings. He would tell me how he was right all along and that if I only listened to him I wouldn't be in prison. Finally I told him to stop coming. If he wasn't willing to face reality and accept that I had made a mistake, I didn't want to see him. He didn't come the next week. But when he came two weeks later, he asked me for the first time how I was doing. He said I was still his kid.

In the coming months and years my dad and I developed a much stronger bond. We got to know each other better and came to understand what we were both going through all those years before. Making amends with my father helped heal other wounds I had as well. It helped me come to appreciate my own family more, which was one of the biggest factors that led me to run away and seek the comfort of others in the first place. Knowing that I had the love and support of my family changed everything for me. After years of feeling abandoned and neglected by my family, I realized that I did have a family who loved and cared for me, and that it was me who let them down. I now needed to prove to them that I could change. I had something to live for.

Around this same time I became friends with a lifer who introduced me to self-help programs. I started with Toastmasters and Alcoholics Anonymous. Soon I was participating in Alcoholics Anonymous, Narcotics Anonymous, Criminals and Gang Members Anonymous, and Celebrate Recovery. I also began thinking more about the circumstances that led to the commission of the crime and wrote essays on causative factors, pre-commitment factors, remorse, empathy, apology, and responsibility. I also wrote letters of apology to my victims and to the community.

The self-help groups really helped me turn my life around. I was now more focused on my future rather than my past. In 2013 I received my GED and began working in the library. I began taking college courses, including a class on child growth and development, and wrote poetry, some of which was published. All of this helped me develop a new way of thinking based on positivity, selflessness, and reflection. Although I had a lot to show the Board of Parole Commissioners to demonstrate my rehabilitation, remorse, and transformation, people were saying that only three out of every ten people were getting approved. So, when I was granted parole on my very first try, I knew it was a big deal. Being granted parole meant that people saw potential in me. I had potential and that was motivating.

I was convicted as a juvenile and served my time. Growing up in prison was not easy. Three out of five kids become victims in adult prisons. They are raped, beaten, and used as pawns in gang wars. Right away you are taught the rules. You are either tougher than the guy next to you or you become his victim. I still remember my first day in prison. An older guy said to me, "you don't need to rehabilitate in here, you just need to survive." I heard the sounds of other kids my age being raped and saw how prison changed people. During my first few years in prison, I did everything I could just to survive. I would fight with people, just so I could go to solitary confinement and escape the violence in the general population. At least in solitary, I felt safe.

Because I made it through those sixteen years without being broken, however, I now want help prevent other young people from experiencing those same conditions. I want to send a message to young people, that they don't have to die in prison. That they can go on to live a life after prison, thanks to recent reforms like SB 260. Your support of me will help send a strong message to other youth offenders, who were sentenced as adults, that you were right to support juvenile justice reforms like SB 260. I want to validate your belief in young people and prove to any skeptics that youth have the capacity to change. I want to be the proof that change is possible.

I can support my family. In Vietnamese culture, burying a parent who passes away is one of the most important things a son or daughter to do. It is not only a sign of respect, but it is also an act of love on behalf of the people who raised you. When I got out of prison, I realized for the first time in sixteen years that I would actually be able to be there when my parents died—something I had thought I might miss before I was paroled. However, now that I might be deported on account of my past, I am afraid I won't be able to be there for them in their old age.

I have already missed out on almost two decades of a life with my family. Now that I am an adult, my parents are in their old age, and they're weaker. It makes me aware of the limited window of time I might have left with them. My mom, for instance, has high blood pressure and takes three to four medications a day. And my dad has been a heavy smoker since the age of ten—he's sixty-seven now. I can see them deteriorating, and I want to be there to make them happy in their final years, however long that is.

This is especially important to me because I know that I have placed a lot of stress on them over the years. They have told me how hard it was for them as parents to see their child go through what I did. This is why I am so determined now to spend as much time as I can with them and help alleviate any burden.

My parents live alone. Although I visit them three to four days a week, I realize that as they get older they will need help and support. Because I missed out on many years of being there for them, I want to be there for them in the years to come. Today I still feel at times like my parents have to help me. That I am still a kid. At thirty-five years old they had to teach me how to pay my taxes, get a driver's license, and open a bank account. For this reason, as they get older, I want to prove to them that I am self-sufficient and able to take care of them.

In addition, I have established a strong bond with my father that is very important to me. Shortly after my release from prison my dad called me one day and asked if I wanted to go fishing with him. He was raised in a fishing village in Vietnam and taught me how to fish when I was a kid. But we hadn't been fishing together in years. It is moments like this when I am reminded that my time with him is limited. I now want to make every moment count. I want to be there for my family in all of the ways I could not be there for them before. I want to make up for lost time.

I have successfully reentered. Although it has been less than three years since I was granted parole, I have made every effort during this time to become a productive member of society. Today I am employed full time as the head chef at [REDACTED], spend as much time with my family as possible, and am an active volunteer in the community. The gratitude I feel towards Commissioner Zarrinnam and towards those who demonstrated their belief in me has instilled in me a strong duty to give back to others and to never take my freedom for granted.

This sense of duty to be there for my family, to serve the community, and never take my freedom for granted helped me with my reentry. I knew coming out of prison what was important to me and have never been distracted by negative thinking or negative people. Since starting on this journey towards giving back, I have made many friends and met many others similarly committed to this work. It would be devastating not to be able to continue on this important journey with them towards reforming broken communities, helping individuals who are hurting, and bringing clarity to those who lack a clear vision for their futures. There is so much work that needs to be done. I want to be part of these continued efforts and believe my voice is needed, especially in Orange County where there is a lack of support services for the Asian community.

This pardon is not just about me. It is about all of the people who I am committed to working with and working on behalf of. A pardon will provide me with the opportunity to continue to do this work, and will validate your belief in providing youth like me, who were sentenced as adults, a true shot at a second chance.

Executive Department

State of California

PARDON

Tung Thanh Nguyen

Tung Thanh Nguyen, a resident of California, has submitted to this office an application for executive clemency. Mr. Nguyen lawfully entered the United States at the age of 15 as a refugee from Vietnam.

He was sentenced on or about August 19, 1994, in the Superior Court of the State of California in and for the County of Orange, for the crimes of murder and robbery. Specifically, Mr. Nguyen brandished a knife and acted as a lookout while his crime partners stabbed the victim, causing him to bleed to death. Mr. Nguyen, who was 16 years old at the time of the crime, served sixteen years, seven months prison, and seven years parole. He was discharged on April 13, 2018 having completed his sentence.

Tung Thanh Nguyen has submitted to this office a formal application for executive clemency in the form of a gubernatorial pardon. He has shown that since his release from custody, he has lived an honest and upright life, exhibited good moral character, and conducted himself as a law-abiding citizen. Indeed, Mr. Nguyen risked his life to protect civilians during a riot while in prison. Since his release, Mr. Nguyen has become a tireless advocate for juvenile justice reform, and was actively involved in efforts to pass Senate Bill 260 (2013), which established a separate parole hearing process for individuals who committed crimes as juveniles. He helped found Asian and Pacific Islanders Re-entry of Orange County, and has received numerous awards for his efforts. In recognizing that a pardon may permit Mr. Nguyen to remain in the country, a volunteer Catholic chaplain at San Quentin Prison wrote that a pardon would give Mr. Nguyen the opportunity to continue his advocacy and re-integration work with recently paroled individuals.

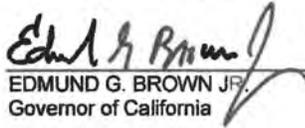

By the laws of this state it is proper that I, as Governor of the State of California, give testimony that, by completion of his sentence and good conduct in the community of his residence since his release, Tung Thanh Nguyen, has paid his debt to society and earned a full and unconditional pardon.

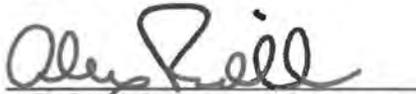

THEREFORE, I, EDMUND G. BROWN JR., Governor of the State of California, by virtue of the power and authority vested in me by the Constitution and statutes of the State of California, do hereby grant to Tung Thanh Nguyen a full and unconditional pardon for the above offenses, including the right to own, possess, and keep a firearm to the extent permitted by California Penal Code Section 4854.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF I have hereunto ~~set~~ my hand and caused the Great Seal of the State of California to be affixed this 21st Day of November, 2018.

Tung Nguyen's Pardon Statement

1. CIRCUMSTANCES OF CRIMES FOR WHICH YOU ARE REQUESTING A PARDON

On April 13, 1993, when I was 16 years old, I was involved in a crime resulting in the death of Mr. Tuan Truong and injuries to Mr. Hiep Hoang, Nhan Tran, and Ms. Kim Tran. There is nothing I regret more in my life than my actions and decisions that night.

I had immigrated from Vietnam two years earlier, and I had a very hard time adjusting. The kids in my neighborhood would make fun of me and my brothers because we looked different than them and couldn't speak English very well. They would bully me and pick on me, and there were times where they would physically beat me up. I didn't have any friends, other than my brothers, for a long time. In hindsight, I realize I was looking for a place to belong. Eventually, I found that acceptance in a bad group of friends, people who were older than me and were doing things that were not appropriate. I felt pressured to go along with them so that they would like me and think I was "cool." I didn't care about the consequences of my behavior as long as I got to be with my new friends.

On the night of the crime one of my friends at the time got into a fight over the phone with Mr. Truong. My friends said they wanted to go confront him, and I went along. I didn't stop to think about why we were going to see Mr. Truong or what could happen if we confronted him. I didn't stop to think about the potential consequences of my actions. When we arrived at Mr. Truong's hotel room he was there with a few other people. One of my co-defendants stated that he wanted to "teach him a lesson" by leaving him a scar. The scar that my co-defendant inflicted on Mr. Truong resulted in a lethal wound. I did not know or anticipate that this attack on Mr. Truong was going to happen, but regardless of that fact, I take full responsibility for my actions and my role that night. I should have never agreed to accompany my friends that night. More than that, I should have tried to convince them not to go. When I found out that Mr. Truong had passed away I was in complete shock. I will be forever sorry for the pain I inflicted on Mr. Truong, his family, and the other victims. Regardless whether I was young and stupid, I had a choice. I made a stupid and wrong choice. Every day, I live my life owning up to that wrong and continue doing my best to make amends.

I was charged as an adult in Orange County Superior Court under the Felony Murder rule for one count of First Degree murder and four counts of first degree robbery. I was convicted and sentenced to a 25 years to life in state prison.

2. WHY YOU ARE REQUESTING A PARDON

On April 13, 2011, I was released from San Quentin State Prison to Immigration Custom and Enforcement (ICE) for deportation proceedings and received a final removal order from the immigration judge. However, because of the US-Vietnam Repatriation Agreement, which protects refugees/immigrants who arrived to the US prior to 1995, Vietnam refused to accept me. Therefore, ICE granted my release under an Order of Supervision. The basis of ICE's decision to release me relied heavily on the Governor's Executive Decision releasing me from prison.

Since 2011, I have been in immigration limbo. I do not have the same protections or opportunities as a citizen, and I do not qualify for legal status due to my criminal conviction. I have lived a supervised life under both state and federal restrictions. Rebuilding my life as a person with a past criminal conviction was hard, but it was even harder being a person with Final Removal Order status. Because of this, I do not qualify for benefits from local and federal support, including health services or financial aid for higher education. I also have to pay fees in order to obtain employment, like a work permit. I do want to seem like I am complaining. I am eternally grateful that the Governor commuted my sentence and that I have been given a second chance at life to be with my family. In the past seven years since I have been home, I've had the opportunity to get married to my wonderful wife, and to be a father for my stepson. I will always be grateful for that. However, my life is still in limbo.

With the 2017 election of President Donald Trump my life changed dramatically, and I have been living in constant fear. On January 25th, 2017, the President issued an Executive Order – Border Security and Immigration Enforcement Improvements. The President has stated that if he cannot proceed with deportation, he will re-incarcerate 'criminal aliens'. The United States began applying pressure on Vietnam to accept repatriated Vietnamese. Since March 2017, Vietnamese individuals across the nation have been detained. These are individuals who have a similar, if not identical, immigration status as me.

I live a life of uncertainty and fear. Uncertain because I don't know what my future will become, whether in the US or in Vietnam. Fearful because I do not know if ICE will come and take me away from my family at any moment. Even if ICE can't deport me, ICE can still subject me to indefinite detention.

Since 2017, I have been actively involved in the anti-deportation movement and helped launch a national support network and led Vietnamese and Southeast Asian organizations in responding to ICE. In February 2018, we organized a deportation conference in Washington D.C., hosted by the Southeast Asia Resource Action Center, where I and approximately 45 Southeast Asian organizers across the nation spent two days discussing efforts to help those affected by President Trump's policies. Since March 2017, I voluntarily spend a minimum of 4-7 hours a day producing resource materials, translating documents, drafting guides, and taking calls from impacted individuals. I wake up at 4 a.m. in order to fit in this work on top of my other employment. During the ICE raids in March and September of 2017, the community needs were so dire that I had to sacrifice my day job for weeks.

Since California became the first sanctuary state for immigrants, ICE has increased their efforts to conduct raids and detain people, especially those with criminal backgrounds such as myself. On February 16, 2018, ICE raided and arrested about 212 people in Southern California. The recent ICE roundups near my home, demonstrate that I, along with thousands of others, are no longer safe.

As a result of my advocacy work and public media appearances speaking out on these issues, I fear that I have made myself a target for ICE. This threat is more imminent because our anti deportation network has recently filed a class action lawsuit against ICE for acting in violation of the Repatriation Agreement and has refused to release people. I was the main spokesperson and I fear this publicity has made me a high target. If I was deported, I would be taken away from my entire immediate family and from my wife and step son. I have not been to Vietnam in 25 years and I no family ties there that would help me readjust. Because I am an outspoken human rights advocate, I also fear that if I was deported to Vietnam I would be immediately detained. If I was deported or detained, I worry about my wife and step son dearly. They rely on me for financial support, and without me, my wife will be unable to make our mortgage payments and we would lose our home. The fear of deportation, of losing my family, and the terrible collateral consequences they would face have made me feel scared and hopeless at times. But at the end of each day, I choose to share my story and I choose to be an advocate because I want to help others.

If I am given the honor of a pardon, I will be able to ask to open my immigration case and apply for legal status. I am requesting a pardon so that I don't have to live a life of uncertainty and fear, and so that I can be given the chance to continue my advocacy work.

3. WHY YOU SHOULD BE GRANTED A PARDON

In 2010, after serving 18 years in prison, I was found suitable for parole by the Board of Parole Hearings. The Board set a future release date of 2023 and forwarded my case to the Governor's office for review. On April 1, 2011, after carefully reviewing my case, the Governor modified the Board's decision and issued an Executive Decision ordering my immediate release from prison.

Your Honor made a historical example out of my case. Most importantly, your kind decision charged me to become an agent of change. Since my release, I immediately became active in community activities in an effort to continue making amends for my wrongs. I participated in juvenile justice reforms which resulted in the passing of laws such as: SB260, SB261, and even your authored Proposition 57. I also participated in victim outreach hoping to bridge the gap and bring about healing. I founded the community support group named APIROC (Asians and Pacific Islanders Reentry of Orange County), whose mission is to serve incarcerated populations, including those who were recently released and those who are currently incarcerated, their families and friends, and victims of crimes. I am a finalist for the 2018 Soros Justice Advocacy Fellowship, which if granted will allow me to dedicate myself full-time to work to establish an anti-deportation support system for Vietnamese communities in Orange County while hoping to serve as a national model for support of Vietnamese and other API communities.

I have dedicated my life to serving others, and since my release from prison, I have not taken one single day for granted. My goal is to help at least one person each and every day. My contributions to the community thus far have been recognized and have earned me the title of "Unsung Hero." The lessons I learned while incarcerated, the mentors who guided me through my reentry, the classes I have taken as a part of my rehabilitation, and my faith have all played a role in my transformation. I am not the same boy I was in 1993 who made bad decisions. I am no longer a follower; I have gained the skills to realize my potential and I am now a community leader. Your honor, I ask for your mercy and that you give me a chance to live a life free from fear and uncertainty so that I can realize my full potential and continue my path of service. For all of these reasons, and the reasons outlined in the letters of support from the community, I believe I am deserving of the honor of a pardon.

IN SUPPORT OF REQUEST FOR TRADITIONAL GOVERNOR'S PARDON

PEOPLE OF THE STATE OF CALIFORNIA

Plaintiff, (Orange County Case No.

v.

MICHAEL ROBERT PACE,

Defendant.

I, MICHAEL ROBERT PACE, hereby declare:

1. I was born on [REDACTED] and currently reside in [REDACTED] North Carolina.
2. Twenty-four years ago, on March 4, 1993, I was sentenced to 16 months in state prison.
3. My conviction occurred during a terrible period in my life when I was addicted to cocaine and methamphetamine and living on and off the streets. My addiction lasted from the age of 18 (1980) to December 24, 1994. During that period, my entire life fell apart. My wife and young son left me, I had no job, no home, and was feeling hopeless and depressed.

4. From 1992-1994, I would sell drugs and steal things to feed my drug habit and to obtain food. During those two years, I was convicted of various drug offenses in Orange County (see attached DOJ Criminal History Transcript). The instant case is the only felony on my record that has not been reduced to a misdemeanor.
5. My conviction in the instant case occurred while I was already on probation and, as a result, I was sent to prison. I was in prison for approximately 7 months (April 1993 - November 1993). During that time I did not receive any drug treatment nor any therapy or counseling related to my serious drug addiction. Thus, when I was paroled in November 1993, I was still suffering from addiction and I returned to using drugs and committing crimes to feed my habit as soon as I was released. I was arrested again and returned to prison for 7 more months (April 1994-November 1994.)
6. On Christmas Eve 1994, I had a life-changing religious experience in which the Lord completely opened my heart and turned my life around in an instant. I was driving in my car when it occurred. I pulled over and immediately called my estranged wife, asking to see her and my son. I told them of my transformation. For good reason, she was skeptical.

7. Two years later, however, we remarried, with my son, [REDACTED] serving as my Best Man. (See attached letter of my son [REDACTED] Pace and my spouse [REDACTED] Pace, both supporting my application for a pardon.) My son, [REDACTED] is now 29 years old and is an officer in the U.S. Marines. (See attached letter of [REDACTED] Pace, supporting my application for a pardon.) My brother [REDACTED] Pace has also witnessed the profound changes in my life and he supports my request for relief. (See attached letter of [REDACTED] Pace, supporting my application for a pardon.)
8. I am very happy to say that I have been clean and sober since Christmas Eve 1994. In the twenty-three years since I overcame my addiction, I have worked hard to rebuild my life. I am very happy to say that I have succeeded. I am the owner and president of [REDACTED] We create the layout for circuit boards, and work with electronic engineers all across North America. My wife and I are also active real-estate investors.
9. I deeply regret the years I lost to my addiction and the frustration and worry that I caused to my loved ones. I feel fortunate that I have overcome my addiction, rebuilt my relationships, and I am still a relatively young man. I am absolutely committed to remaining clean and sober, and I hope to serve as a model that it is possible to turn your life around from the depths of addiction, homelessness, and despair.

10. In addition to my family's support, I have the support of my community. (See attached letters from [REDACTED] and [REDACTED] [REDACTED] all supporting my application for a governor's pardon.) I deeply regret the pain and heartache that I caused all those who loved me so dearly. I will not let them down again.

11. I have fulfilled all the terms and conditions of parole. I am not serving a sentence for any offense. I have paid all fines, fees, and restitution ordered by the court. I am not on probation for any offense. I am not charged with the commission of any offense.

I declare under penalty of perjury that the foregoing is true and correct. Signed on MARCH 8, 2017, in [REDACTED] North Carolina.

1. Describe your involvement in the circumstances of the crime(s) for which you are requesting a pardon:

Los Angeles Superior Court, Case No. VA 033618. In this case it was alleged that between July 1, 1995 through July 27, 1995 I had received or possessed stolen property. During this time, I had a storage business with two warehouses in Whittier, California. I rented storage space to an individual who stored stolen merchandise in my warehouses. I did not initially know the merchandise was stolen but I became suspicious (and should have known it was stolen) when I saw that the contents included electronic goods. The individual I rented to was an informant. On February 14, 1996 I pleaded guilty to violating Penal Code section 496(a), receiving stolen property. On April 15, 1996 I was placed on probation for a period of three years and ordered to serve 180 days in Los Angeles County jail. Then on February 25, 1997, based upon my conviction in Case No. KA034925, my probation was violated and I was sentenced to 16 months in state prison.

Los Angeles Superior Court, Case No. KA 034925. In this case, it was alleged that on January 25, 1997 I was in receipt of stolen property and that the value of the property exceeded $50,000. At that time I had a business storing refrigerated goods for distribution. I entered into an agreement to store cheese and dairy products in a portion of our warehouse. These goods were stolen and I was arrested and charged in this matter. I was on probation at this time. On February 11, 1997 I pleaded guilty to violating Penal Code section 496(a) receiving stolen property; and on February 25, 1997 was sentenced to 16 months in state prison.

The prison sentence on these two cases was ordered to run concurrently; I was not ordered to pay restitution in either case. While I was serving my sentence, I qualified for a special rehabilitation program, which combined education with a physical regimen. I was one of four tutors for other inmates, some of whom were completely illiterate. I was permitted to mentor other inmates and assist them in learning to read and write, I even helped a few of them earn their G.E.D. I was released from state prison on October 16, 1997.

At the time of my arrests in 1995 and 1997, my wife only worked part time and we were struggling to raise our four children based on my income. My three youngest children had all been diagnosed with disabilities, and my mother-in-law, who was born without legs, lived with us as well. I deeply regret my conduct; it is without justification or excuse, it was wrong. My mistakes have hurt the people I care about the most. They took me away from my wife and children when they desperately needed me.

My pardon request is only for the above discussed cases. I do have two other criminal matters in my past which are discussed more fully in other sections of my pardon application. I was arrested in Kentucky on a marijuana case which went to the U.S. Supreme Court and was ultimately dismissed. I also have a 2002 misdemeanor conviction from Los Angeles that relates to child support.

2. I want a pardon because:

I have been ordered removed from the United States because of the two felony convictions for which I am requesting a pardon. I am requesting this pardon so that I will not be deported.

The United States is my home. This is where my family is. I was born on [REDACTED] in Tegucigalpa, Honduras but I don't have anybody close to me back in Honduras. I left in 1965 and entered the U.S. as a permanent resident when I was 14 years old, to reunite with my family who had been living in Los Angeles since the early 1960s. I have been a lawful permanent resident for more than 50 years. I have only been back to Honduras one time, for a total of twelve days, since I first left. My parents were U.S. citizens who lived in San Diego until they passed away. I have four siblings who live in the U.S. My wife of almost 40 years and my U.S. citizen children and grandchildren all live in the U.S. as well. I have four children with [REDACTED] and four other children (one of whom passed away in 2011).

I want to stay in the U.S primarily for my wife, [REDACTED] and our children who depend on me to take care of them. My three youngest children are all adults who have been diagnosed with extreme disabilities and cannot care for themselves. Although I am 67 years old and retired, I work full-time caring for my children in our home. They are technically adults now (ages 27 – 37), but they still have the mentality of children and thus require significant physical, mental and emotional support. I provide this for them. My presence is calming. I am their anchor. Being with my children every day as their parent and caregiver has enabled me to develop the skills necessary to meet their unique needs. I understand them.

My son [REDACTED] is 27 years old, 6'9" and is still growing. He is diagnosed with Mitochondrial Myopathy, Marfan Syndrome, Mild Intellectual Disability, Unspecified Delay in Development, and Gigantism. He has the mental age of a pre-teenager. When I was incarcerated in 1997, [REDACTED] stopped talking completely because I was no longer there. He began talking again when I returned home. When [REDACTED] has tantrums, he is not aware of his own strength. He can easily hurt my wife or anyone else unintentionally. [REDACTED] cannot effectively communicate his needs; we are always on the lookout for any changes in his body and behavior. I am there to make sure he calms down in a safe manner and that he is safe from harm.

Our son [REDACTED] is 32 years old, is diagnosed with Mitochondrial Myopathy, Marfan Syndrome and Moderate Intellectual Disability. He also has an enlarged heart and high blood pressure. Even though he has a speech impediment, drools, and has the mental age of a young teenager, he is able to attend the Disabled Student Program at Citrus College. I take him to college, to the gym, and to his doctor appointments, [REDACTED] is naïve and lacks awareness of his surroundings. He has had experiences where people take advantage of him because of his lack of common sense. For example, when he purchases something he does not always ask for his change back. I give him fatherly advice to prepare him for different scenarios he could face in everyday life.

Our daughter [REDACTED] is 37 years old and is diagnosed with Mitochondrial Myopathy, Marfan Syndrome, Severe Intellectual Disability, and has autistic behaviors. She is the most severely disabled of our three children. She is non-verbal, has the mental age of a three-year-old, requires 24/7 supervision, and needs help with basic activities such as grooming, changing, and bathing. I take her to doctor visits, supervise her while she eats, and make sure she is comfortable and safe. Over time I have reached the point that I can now read her body language and know what is upsetting her. I can calm her down when she is angry and upset.

I am completely devoted to my children; they are kind and loving. I cannot imagine being separated from them and then unable to teach, guide, and support them through life. They have given me many gifts. I have learned from them to be patient and considerate. They are the focus of my life. We spend time playing board games, joking around, and just talking. I build things for them, like toys I make out of wood and play structures they can use in our yard. We are all so close that we know when we are sad, angry, happy, or depressed just by looking at each other. I am very protective of them, especially of [REDACTED] and [REDACTED] because they lack good judgment and are vulnerable to being exploited. I worry that they will put themselves in unsafe situations without them even knowing. I try to teach them awareness of their surroundings and expose them to different environments to stimulate their senses and so that they can be somewhat independent. I want them to be able groom themselves, have good etiquette, and know how to take care of their bodies. Being the over protective parent that I am, I pre-plan our outings and events. I make sure to supervise them and make sure that wherever we are going is a safe place where I can keep my eyes on them.

I do not know what my wife [REDACTED] would do without me. She has no one to help her with taking care of [REDACTED] [REDACTED] and [REDACTED]. If I am deported, I am concerned that my children's health would deteriorate. I fear that [REDACTED] would be unable to take care of herself because she would have sole responsibility to take care of our children.

If I had to return to Honduras I would not want my wife, children and grandchildren to move to Honduras with me because they will become targets for local gangs. My children could not get the same medical assistance in Honduras as they do in the U.S. I do not know how we would support ourselves in Honduras.

I am requesting this pardon to protect [REDACTED] and ensure I will be able to continue to care for our children.

3. I think I should be granted a pardon because:

I am a humble person, and it is contrary to my personality to say that I am deserving of the extraordinary relief of a governor's pardon. These are the facts of my life that support me being granted a pardon: I honorably and voluntarily served our country in a time of war; the litigation in my U.S. Supreme Court case, Padilla vs. Kentucky has helped ensure non-citizens are properly advised with the ultimate result being families remaining intact by avoiding immigration consequences; and most importantly, my current life is dedicated to the care and support of my children who depend on me for comfort, security, and basic needs.

I honorably served my country in the Vietnam War and I still suffer PTSD from the trauma of military service in a theater of combat. On June 30, 1970 I enlisted in the Army and volunteered to go to Vietnam. After my service in Vietnam, I was stationed in Fort Benning, Georgia. In 1973, I re-enlisted in the Army Reserve. For my service, I was awarded with the National Defense Service Medal, Vietnam Service Medal with 2 Bronze Stars, Republic of Vietnam Campaign Medal with 1960 Device, 2 Overseas Service Bars, and Sharpshooter (M-16).

After returning from Vietnam, I felt something was wrong with my head. I felt numb and disengaged, I didn't care about anything. I sought and received psychiatric counseling through the Veterans Administration for a few years. Eventually through spiritual guidance, I was able to find happiness again.

Over the last couple of years, my flashbacks from the Vietnam War have increased. I resumed therapy at the end of 2016, and am now part of a Post-Traumatic Stress Disorder program at the CalVet Center. I currently go to counseling twice a week. With the help of my counselor at the VA, I began to realize that I was suffering from PTSD. I still suffer from PTSD, but therapy has helped me understand my self and taught me ways to manage my emotions when I am having an episode.

Before I went back to counseling, I thought that my way of thinking was normal, I didn't realize I had this disorder. It took me more than 40 years to understand what I had been experiencing all this time. For example, I feel numb and disconnected from my experiences, sometimes my emotions will vary quickly, I have a hard time sleeping and can't remember my dreams, I will sweat heavily for no reason, and I enjoy being by myself rather than being in groups. It's hard for me to relax. I have to avoid triggering situations. Memorial Day is a terrible day for me. I don't like to remember my time in Vietnam. Two of my friends from the service committed suicide soon after we returned from Vietnam, in the 1970s. I feel very sad when I remember my friends that I've lost.

I am proud that because of my Supreme Court case, my name is synonymous with an immigrant's right to effective counsel in criminal proceedings. In 2002 in Kentucky, I was convicted of a felony for interstate trafficking marijuana that was later vacated and dismissed. My Kentucky case went all the way to the U.S. Supreme Court, Padilla v. Kentucky, 559 U.S. 356. The U.S. Supreme Court ruled that criminal defense attorneys must advise noncitizen clients about the risks of deportation when they plead guilty. I am proud that my case gives hope to immigrants in the U.S. who may be facing deportation. After the Supreme Court vacated and dismissed my case, I began to donate my time, and continue to do so, to talk at legal events about my case with the hope that it will inspire others with their own legal cases.

I am spending the twilight of my life as a homebody, taking care of my three children. I feel a great responsibility to them and my life is devoted to their care. Caring for them is hard work, but is not a burden. I get so much love and affection, and I learn daily from my children. Our home is warm, comfortable and loving.

Please grant my pardon application so I can become a U.S. citizen and continue to take care of my wife and children.

2 Continued

I served 180 days in San Joaquin County Jail (the latter of which was served in a work furlough program) and placed on five years felony probation.

3 Continued

1. Proposition 47 – None of the listed offenses apply to my charge.
2. Application for Restoration of Firearm Privileges, Form 3210.1 – This application is no longer accepted by the B.A.T.F. and they do not offer any alternatives.
3. Expungement under P.C. 1203.4(b) – Although granted this expungement in July 2005, I was not eligible for a reduction under P.C.17(b), as my charge was not considered a "wobbler".

I abided by the terms of and completed five years of felony probation. In July 2005, I applied for and was awarded an expungement under P.C.1203.4(b) (see attached). I had lived a productive life prior to and following my conviction. I have spent the last 16 years reflecting on the impact of my decision, how it has affected my family, friends and my ability to take accountability for my actions. One of the people I had let down the most was my son, [REDACTED], then almost ten years old. It was sad and unfortunate that a 15 year marriage had dissolved, and a career with the San Lorenzo School District was over. But the trust as a father was compromised because I had made a bad decision. Through this ordeal, I continued to maintain a healthy relationship with my son, always being available to him and spending every possible moment being supportive. Now 26 and a parent himself, he has long since forgiven me for making that decision.

In retrospect, reflecting back on my days in the military, I was field stripping and firing an M16. At the time of my arrest, I had been studying some of the mechanical differences between what I had learned in the military and the civilian version, an AR15. My curiosity and mechanical background were my culpability. Regardless that my firearms were legally registered in my name, it was clear that I had broken the law. I had to be accountable for what I had done.

In 2002, I attended several courses through Landmark Education in San Francisco, CA. What I received from that training were the tools to understand why we make the decisions that we do and that we must be committed to the outcome of those decisions. Those courses grounded me even further to be committed to my word. Those courses changed my life forever.

I have worked for the same company, [REDACTED], for the past 14 years. In 2007, a separate division was created and they purchased a commercial office property in Scottsdale, AZ. I continue to serve as a Project Manager of this 200,000 square foot property. I am responsible for overseeing all tenant improvements and day to day operations relating to mechanical, electrical, plumbing, etc. I am also overseeing a 10,000 square foot residential remodel for the same company in Paradise Valley, AZ.

I am an active committee member on both the Neighborhood Property Owners Association and Neighborhood Committee of Architecture in Fountain Hills, AZ.

KENNETH PAYNE

Santa Clara County
Case No. 126437

DECLARATION IN SUPPORT
FOR GOVERNOR'S PARDON

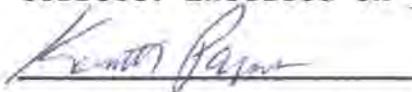

I, KENNETH PAYNE, hereby declare:

1. I was born on [REDACTED] and I reside in [REDACTED] Texas.
2. I was born in California, and lived in California until 1990, when I moved to Texas.
3. On or about January 19, 1989, I was convicted of felony possession of a controlled substance for sale (Pen. Code, § 11351). I was placed on three years probation.
4. My offense occurred in 1988, when I was just 18 years old. At that time in my life, I was very immature and had poor judgment. My arrest in this case was a wakeup call. I realized that my use of drugs was not just harming myself, but also causing harm to those who cared about me. I resolved to get my life back on track.
5. I completed my probation without incident of any kind and paid all fines, fees and restitution. With the exception of a marijuana possession conviction (under two ounces) in Texas in 2000, my life has been entirely crime free and very productive in the 27 years since my offense.

6. I completed a university education, obtaining my Bachelor of Science in Computer Science in 2003 at the University of Texas, El Paso. I worked as a laboratory assistant at a physics research lab and have published journal articles on semiconductor crystal growth.
7. Currently, I am lead programmer and co-owner of a video game company. I am also owner of [REDACTED] a guitar electronics company.
8. I have been married for ten years, and my wife and I are raising three wonderful children.
9. On May 26, 2016, my conviction was dismissed pursuant to Penal Code, § 1203.4.
10. In 2012, I was diagnosed with chronic lymphocytic leukemia. The diagnosis was another wakeup call of sorts. I realized that life is a gift and that I must use every minute to make things better for my family, and to do whatever I can to make the world a better place.
11. I am seeking this pardon to make amends for the bad decisions that I made as a young man. My conviction in this case does not reflect who I am today, and I want to do everything possible to re-establish my good name and to show my children that their father did his best to clean up any messes that he made.
12. I pray that the Governor grants me a full pardon.

I declare under penalty of perjury that the foregoing is true and correct. Executed on 7/13, 2016, in [REDACTED] Texas.

ATTACHMENT 1 – CONVICTION SUMMARY

Offense	Date of offense	County	Sentence
1. Sale of Barbituates	August 31, 1976	Federal/Minneapolis	3 years probation
2. Assault w/DW	April 14, 1981	San Diego	100 days jail and 3 years probation

I was arrested in 1983 or 1984 for driving under the influence of alcohol. This occurred in San Diego. I completed a first offender's program. I'm not sure if this is a actual conviction or not. It does not appear on my background checks.

I was arrested for misdemeanor battery in San Diego in 1995. I don't believe this resulted in a conviction.

Phillips

ATTACHMENT 2 – DESCRIPTION OF CRIME

In 1981 I attended a company picnic sponsored by the company I was working for at the time. Everyone at the picnic was drinking alcohol, including myself. I attended with my fiancé. During the picnic, I got into an argument with a man who was accusing me of something I did not do. I was explaining to him that he had mistaken me for someone else. During this argument, he punched me in the face and we began to fight. Several other men came to the aid of the man I was fighting with as he was a supervisor for the company. During the fight, I was punching and kicking people. One of the men involved in the fight pushed my fiancé as she was trying to stop the fight. I punched this man in the face in response to his pushing my fiancé. He was holding a camera in front of his face and the camera injured him when I hit him. I take full responsibility for my actions and regret this incident very much. I believe this incident would not have occurred if everyone had not been drinking. I also believe that I would have had a more tempered response to the situation if I personally had not been drinking. As a younger man, I suffered from a substance abuse problem. I dealt with this problem many years ago and have stayed free of contact with the criminal justice system as a result.

Phillips

ATTACHMENT 3 – REASON FOR PARDON

I would like to take this opportunity to tell you about me. I realize that I am asking you to take a chance on me and I want you to understand my background and who I am. I was born in 1956. I am 60 years old. I am asking for a pardon for a crime I committed thirty-five years ago.

I was born in San Diego, CA and grew up in San Diego. I was the youngest of three children. My parents, [REDACTED] Phillips were married during most of my childhood but divorced when I was thirteen years old. At the time of their divorce my older brother left home and got married. I stayed living with my mother and my older sister lived with my father. My sister joined the navy and later relocated to Monte Rio, CA. She committed suicide in 2011.

I saw my father occasionally after the divorce but didn't really develop a good relationship with him until I was an adult. My father was very harsh and strict when I was a child and I had difficulty understanding and identifying with him. My father was originally from a cattle ranching family from New Mexico.

I had a good childhood. My father worked as a machine parts inspector for airplanes and nuclear reactors and my mother worked as a secretary for a surgeon. My parents instilled a good work ethic in me. This is something I have benefitted from throughout my life. My parents were not abusive to me and did not suffer from any serious substance abuse problems. After I was an adult, and a convicted felon, I had a better understanding of my father and his strict parenting style. He and I became close during my adulthood until his passing in 2011. I have always had a positive relationship with my mother. She is still alive and living in San Diego. She is eighty-seven years old.

I attended public schools throughout my childhood. I dropped out of high school during my senior year because I got a good job and didn't fully understand the importance of completing high school and earning my diploma. I never received my GED. I went straight into the work force and began working in the construction industry. During my senior year of high school, I attended some construction classes at the junior college that gave me high school credits. I took classes in blue print reading, estimating and construction. During the construction class, myself and my class mates built a house that was then auctioned off to help pay for the high school/college trade program. I have worked in the construction industry ever since.

I began a relationship with my only wife, [REDACTED], when I was twenty-two years old. We met in high school but didn't begin a romantic relationship until after high school. We married when I was twenty-five years old and we divorced after approximately two years of marriage. [REDACTED] and I had one child together, [REDACTED] Phillips. I never remarried and never had any other children. [REDACTED] got primary custody of our son upon our divorce. My criminal history definitely played a role in me being unable to keep custody of my son. This was the first moment that I realized the far-reaching effects of a felony conviction, in particular for a crime of violence. I had visitation with my son every other weekend until he graduated from high school. I never gave up exercising this visitation. Having a relationship with my son was the most important thing to me.

Due to my felony convictions, I began having difficulty finding and keeping good jobs and I also suffered from a substance abuse problem as a young man. As a result of this I was unable to fully comply with my child support obligation. Ultimately I was arrested on a warrant for child support arrears. The Judge who handled the child support matter gave me a chance and released me from jail. It was at this time that I got serious about no longer abusing alcohol and drugs and was able to find some decent, stable employment. I was never able to get long term employment with a company that offered benefits due to my felony conviction. I was ordered to pay child support, past child support and repay the government for the aid that was provided to my wife and child. I completed making all of these payments and fulfilled my child support obligation. It took fifteen years to pay off these debts. My son was already an adult by the time I was able to complete the payments. I am very proud of this accomplishment.

I ultimately left San Diego and moved to Washington State. I was unable to get permanent work with the ferry system due to my 1981 conviction for the Assault with the Deadly Weapon. While I have a federal felony conviction from 1976 for controlled substances, it is the 1981 offense that has mostly been the obstacle in terms of my finding and keeping good jobs. I assume that is because it is for a crime of violence. I then moved to Guerneville, CA to be near my sister until her death in 2011. For the last ten years I have worked as a maintenance worker for the [REDACTED] [REDACTED] [REDACTED], CA. This is a seasonal position as the [REDACTED] is not open during the winter months. When I am not working at the [REDACTED] I am self-employed as a handy many and maintenance worker. I have always struggled to maintain good, steady employment due to my felony conviction and I have never been able to be a part of a company that has benefits and retirement. I am not eligible for many construction jobs that require security clearances as a result of my felony conviction.

I am now faced with the reality at sixty years old that I have no retirement. I believe I have many good years of hard work left in me and I would like to find a job with a stable company that offers benefits.

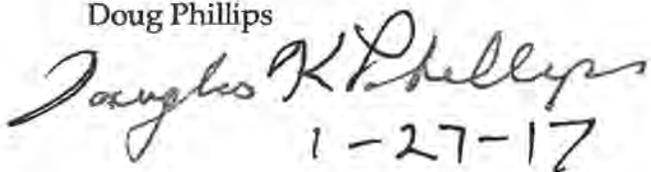

I am requesting a pardon because I am a changed person. The crime I committed took place thirty-five years ago. I don't even recognize the person I was when I committed this crime. In addition to missing employment opportunities as a result of my felony conviction, I have missed opportunities to better serve my community because I cannot pass background checks and security checks for constructions jobs and volunteer work. I am a hard-working man with many carpentry skills. I have an adult son and a three-year old grandson that I want to be a role model to and show them that no one should ever give up trying to better himself. I want to continue to work hard and be a successful person in my community and earn the respect of my neighbors and peers. I have suffered the stigma of "felon" for more than thirty-five years and believe that I have paid the debt associated with my wrongdoing. During the past thirty years, I have demonstrated my commitment to being a productive and honest member of my community by working to support myself and to better my community by donating my time and skills to local charitable organizations. In this regard, I have helped clean up abandoned homeless camps along the Russian River, I have donated my time assembling children's toys for Santa Tim's charitable organization (See attached exhibit 8) and I donated a week of my time doing construction work for the Hume Lake Christian Camp (See attached exhibit 4). I have continued to abide by and demonstrate respect for the laws of my community.

For the last thirty-five years through hard work, being a loyal, honest and capable employee and donating my time and skills to my community I believe I have earned the right to have the chance to be the best man I can be. My felony conviction has always prevented me from achieving my full potential for myself, my family and my community.

Sincerely,

Doug Phillips

The following is not an excuse for my actions, but only serves to contextualize the circumstances surrounding my crimes. By the time I committed my last crime in 2005, my family and I had gone through several chaotic years that included severe financial setbacks, several moves, and changes of school. These events also led to the deterioration of my family for a time.

My parents invested and lost nearly all of our savings during the technology and Dot-com bubble. The following 9/11 attacks and stock market downturns exacerbated matters further financially and emotionally. The financial stress and uncertainty gave way to my parents fighting constantly, usually prompting me to act as a mediator between them. My mother spoke limited English and was unable to find steady work in California. My father, who was entering his 60's, found a series of odd jobs, but the income wasn't enough to pay rent and feed our family. Naturally, he chose the latter and was served our first eviction notice in 2002. We moved from a modest size home we were leasing into a very small apartment, which further worsened my parent's marriage and my own relationship with them.

As the fighting increased at home I did my best to avoid the situation. I would stay out late with kids I met at school going through similar problems creating bonds that turned into close friendships. We had no guidance and little respect for anyone who was not associated with our group. I developed a false sense of pride as I grew closer with my group of friends. Anything perceived as disrespect towards us would be countered with threats or intimidation. Eventually, fighting with other groups or individuals became common. In 2002, as a freshman in high school, I was involved in a misunderstanding with a classmate that quickly escalated into a fight after he slapped me on the side of my head. Whether or not my classmate struck me as a joke, I interpreted it as disrespectful and began to throw punches. During the fight, I held onto my belt and the buckle struck him on the side of the head, which resulted in my classmate getting stitches and my arrest. As punishment I received probation, Juvenile Alternative Work Service (JAWS) and had to transfer to another high school in the district.

From 2002 to 2005, my parent's marriage deteriorated to the point that my mother returned to South Korea. She would visit sporadically but it was unclear if she would return to us permanently in the future. I did my best to stay clear from law enforcement, but that only lasted about 3 years. In 2005, as a junior in high school, my friends and I were returning tools we borrowed (hammer, screwdriver, and duct tape) to fix my garage from a friend who lived down the street from me after curfew. We were stopped by Sheriffs, arrested and initially charged with burglary. However, after detectives searched the cars and buildings in the area and found no signs of burglary, the charges were later reduced to possession of burglary tools. This is when I realized the importance of a person's character and reputation. My friends who had no criminal records were released to their parents, but because I was on probation, I was transferred from the Sheriff's department to juvenile hall for booking. Before being processed, however, the warden summoned me into his office, reviewed my charges and let me go. Rather than view this as an act of kindness, my behavior worsened. I felt judged and labeled before having an opportunity to plead my case. I did not comprehend that being out after curfew was a violation of my probation or the optics of walking around late with a backpack of tools. Instead, the bitterness over my arrest warped my thought process leading me to lash out further. Like a self-fulfilling prophecy, if I was to be perceived as a burglar, I will behave as such.

My resentment would eventually culminate into a plan to steal alcohol as well as my third arrest. Within a month after my second arrest, my group of friends and I ran into a local liquor store, I stole two bottles of Vodka and we dashed into a waiting vehicle behind the store. The driver and I were pulled over later that night and arrested for burglary. Thankfully, this would become the best thing that could happen to me as that event was a significant turning point in my life. As the arresting officer drove me to the police station, he spoke to me about his life. He talked about the mistakes he made, how he redeemed himself and put his life back on track. He made me believe I could do that too.

Serving my nation by enlisting in the military is how I plan to give back to the country that has provided me with opportunities to succeed despite my criminal record. My ambition is to take the experience I gain from serving in the military and turn it into a career in law enforcement with a focus on mentoring at-risk youths. However, my troubled past prevents me from achieving this goal; therefore, I am seeking a pardon.

My past interactions with law enforcement were a deciding factor that led to the disqualification of my application for the Los Angeles Police Department. Although my LAPD Mentor encourages me to pursue the one chance to appeal my disqualification, I feel it's best to wait until I can prove I am capable of serving with honor and distinction by enlisting in the military. However, I was confronted with a similar roadblock after applying for enlistment in the U.S. Army after my recruiter explained my chances are bleak due to my criminal record. Regardless, my recruiter still submitted several waivers on my behalf because he believes my mistakes may be outweighed by my positive attributes and community service thereafter. This demonstrates to me that despite my checkered history, there are still those who believe in me and the goals I aim to achieve. Unfortunately, my criminal past continues to hold me back from a career in the military and law enforcement. No matter how much time or goodwill exists between who I was before and who I am now, it seems I continue to be defined by my crimes.

In the hopes that I can be afforded one more opportunity to overcome my troubled past so I can move towards a life focused on giving back to my community and country, I humbly request to be pardoned. If granted this honor, it will demonstrate to my military recruiters and future employers in law enforcement that I have turned my life around, changed for the better and committed to being a force for good. I would be recognized as a man forgiven of his delinquencies as a youth, who rose above his faults to contribute to the betterment of his community. I hope to be an example for kids going through similar socio-economic hardships as I have experienced to not let a criminal history define you, that it is possible to learn from your mistakes and move forward to be a blessing for those around you. If I have the chance to overcome these barriers, I will serve my nation, my community and resolve a nagging suspicion that my history has already defined my future.

I hold myself accountable for my actions. What I did was wrong, foolish and immature and I am filled with shame and remorse. However, my history underscores a difficult period in my life; it does not define who I am. My achievements demonstrate the man I have become and the progress I have made.

My last conviction was a wake-up call. I was puzzled by why I was having strong urges to do things I knew were wrong. Tired of making stupid decisions that would hurt others and cause me to feel regret, remorse and suffering, I reflected on my behavior. I looked at why I acted out the negative feelings I had about myself in a self-punitive way. I realized I was miserable because at some point in my life I strayed from what always made me truly happy-- helping others. I decided to become a man my community can look up to and drew inspirations from the people in my life that I respected and provided me guidance. Whether from family members, police officers, teachers, school counselors or resource officers, I found traits in them I valued and wanted to embody. Upon reevaluating my life, I finally had a path to follow.

Thanks to the help of my teachers and school counselor, I went from becoming a potential high school dropout to completing enough credits at summer school and community college programs to graduate early. After high school, I enrolled in several community colleges in order to complete the classes needed to transfer to a four-year University. Taking the suggestion of my history professor, I applied and was selected to join the Ralph Bunche Scholars honors program, where I needed to maintain a 3.5 GPA or higher while completing supplemental research assignments for select courses. During community college, I looked for ways to be involved in my community. I brought my passion to help and love of baseball to the Los Angeles Boys and Girls Club where I volunteered as a tutor and assistant baseball coach. In between my classes and during lunch breaks, I also volunteered at the Los Angeles Braille Institute as a guide and teaching assistant for the vision-impaired.

After community college, I transferred to the University of Southern California majoring in Psychology with a focus in Criminology, Law and Forensics. My time at USC was pivotal in confirming my decision to join the military and pursue a future career in law enforcement. As an undergrad, I applied to be an intern at the Institute for Creative Technology (ICT) due to the work and research they conduct to help Veterans. ICT is a Department of Defense sponsored research facility and works in collaboration with the U.S. Army Research Laboratory. At ICT, I worked on a program to detect early markers of depression, PTSD and suicide risk in our Veteran community. I consider my time at ICT to be one of the most fulfilling experiences because I had the opportunity to witness firsthand how technology and researchers can help save the lives of Veterans suffering from psychological trauma.

In 2013, I graduated from USC with a Bachelor's Degree in Psychology and a Minor in Forensics and Criminality. At that point, I was not confident enough time existed between me and my criminal record to enlist in law enforcement or military service. However, I still wanted to serve my community in any way possible so I began working on political campaigns while pursuing a job in public service. In 2014, I was hired as Deputy Campaign Manager for Ben Allen's State Senate race to represent California's 26th Senate District. I currently have the honor of serving as Senator Allen's District Representative where I primarily manage his Constituent Services and Internship Program in his District Office. Whether it's advocating on the behalf of constituents, resolving an issue with a state agency, supplying resources or referrals, I am fortunate to have a job where my main goal is helping others. It's a great feeling to hear from a constituent how they can rely on our office in their moment of need. As an added bonus, each card or message of gratitude I receive from those I've helped encourages me to continue my work in public service and serves as a reminder that I can make a positive contribution to my community.

I owe my success to the professors, police officers, employers and counselors who took the time to offer me guidance and wanted to give back what they gave me. In recognition of the impact mentors had on turning my life around, I joined the Big Brothers Big Sisters of Greater Los Angeles Program as a 'Big'. Although history does not define who I am, it is a part of me that can work to try and achieve a greater good. Sharing my experiences and life lessons in a constructive way offers direction and insight as well as a cautionary tale, but also an example of hope and perseverance.

I should be granted a pardon because I have come a long way since committing my crimes. I changed for the better, sought forgiveness from those I have wronged and work each day to be a force for good. However, there is so much more I want contribute but my criminal record continues to hold me back. If granted a pardon, I hope to enlist in the military and eventually apply the skills and experience from my service to a career in law enforcement and continue to work with at-risk youths in my community.

2. Briefly describe the circumstances of the crime(s) for which you are requesting a pardon.

In November 1992, at the age of 20, a friend of mine from my neighborhood asked me to join him and two of his other friends on a drive through San Jose, California to look for Luis Aguilar. Mr. Aguilar was a member of a rival gang to the gang which my friend was affiliated, and he and my friend had recently had an altercation. I rode in the passenger seat and when we found the man we were looking for, my friend handed me a sawed-off shotgun and told me to shoot at the car the man was riding in. I did what I was told and we quickly drove away. This was my first and only time participating in an event like this. I was seeking acceptance as a young man living away from his family, and mistakenly believed this was the way to gain friends. Although I did not intend to harm Mr. Aguilar, or the other person who was in the car with him, I understand how reckless and dangerous my actions and involvement were. I am fortunate that no one was physically injured as a result of my poor choices.

A few days later, I was arrested for my participation in the incident. I pleaded guilty to four felony violations of Penal Code sections 245(A)(2), 246, and 12020(A) for shooting at an occupied vehicle, assault with a firearm, and possession of a dangerous weapon. I was sentenced to seven years, and served three years in state prison and four years in an immigration detention facility.

3. Explain why you are requesting a pardon.

I am seeking a pardon because I face imminent deportation to Cambodia as a result of my convictions 26 years ago, and a pardon is the only way I can prevent deportation. During one of my last immigration check-in appointments in July, the agent in charge of my case informed me that they are actively working to obtain a travel document to deport me back to Cambodia. Immigration authorities have scheduled monthly check-ins as a result. If I am forced to return to Cambodia, I would be alone. Although I was born in Cambodia, I have lived in the United States since I was about seven years old, when I entered along with my parents and four brothers and sisters as refugees. I have had no contact with anyone in Cambodia, and have not returned since my family immigrated in 1980. The United States is my only home.

But, I am more afraid for what would happen to my family if I were forced to leave. I am the sole provider for my wife and four children. I spend all my time when I am not working with my children, either outdoors going hiking, fishing, and camping, or relaxing at home where I help them with their schoolwork. Helping to raise my kids, and in particular our sons, is another chance to help make right the mistakes that I made growing up. I have been open with my children about my past and through my experiences have taught them and given them tools to learn from my mistakes and to stay on the right path. My family and I carry the weight of the uncertainty and fear about my deportation every day.

4. Provide a brief statement explaining why you should be granted a pardon.

My time in prison and detention separated me from those bad influences and helped to refocus me on the things that are the most important to me—family, work, and being a good role model for my young children. I worked hard while in custody to earn money to support my wife and young son. I also used the time to take classes to work toward completing my high school degree so that I would be in a better position to support my family and help my son with his schoolwork when I was released.

After I was released from immigration custody in 2000, I focused on finding a good, stable job as a manufacturing machine operator. I found that I excelled at that type of position and took pride in being able to provide for my family. As a result of my hard work and dedication, I was able to advance quickly from being an operator, to a junior supervisor, to a production line lead. I strove to be a good and supportive manager and made a point of being proactive, researching and keeping up on FDA best practices to ensure my team excelled. More recently, I've made a switch in role to maintenance technician that allows me a bit more flexibility and time with my family. I am very proud of the work I have done, and in doing so, not only have I supported my family, but I also endeavored to repay my debt to society. I continue to work hard every day.

Michael J. Sampson, a resident of Washington, has submitted to this office an application for executive clemency.

He was sentenced on or about May 1, 2003, in the Superior Court of the State of California in and for the County of Los Angeles, for the crime of burglary. Specifically, he printed fraudulent checks and attempted to cash them at banks. He served three years probation. He was discharged on May 1, 2006 having completed his sentence.

Michael J. Sampson has submitted to this office a formal application for executive clemency in the form of a gubernatorial pardon. He has shown that since his release from custody, he has lived an honest and upright life, exhibited good moral character, and conducted himself as a law-abiding citizen. Indeed, after leaving jail, he reports that he obtained his Airframe and Powerplant license from WyoTech Technical School, graduating with honors.

By the laws of this state it is proper that I, as Governor of the State of California, give testimony that, by completion of his sentence and good conduct in the community of his residence since his release, Michael J. Sampson, has paid his debt to society and earned a full and unconditional pardon.

THEREFORE, I, EDMUND G. 2. Briefly describe the circumstances of the crime(s) for which you are requesting a pardon (attach additional pages as necessary):

A lacking purpose that was falsely fulfilled by a life of irresponsibility. The friends that I had were similarly lost in direction. We all had divorced parents and found a connection through delinquency. I spent a lot of time coping with my emptiness through drug use.

3. Explain why you are requesting a pardon (attach additional pages as necessary):

This is not simply about completely overcoming my past, although that is hugely important to me. During my career development in aviation, other opportunities have presented themselves. To even entertain the idea of working for Boeing's Defense company (BDS), I would need full relief from disabilities. Among other airline positions and possible contract jobs, it will be difficult to pursue alternative avenues without the honor of a pardon.

4. Provide a brief statement explaining why you should be granted a pardon (attach additional pages if necessary):

Going to jail brought to my awareness the necessity for taking responsibility for my actions. I spend a great deal of energy on being as genuine and responsible as I can. I have learned the advantage of transparency and hard work. I have defeated the stigma of a felon; I am married with a daughter, I manage a crew of airplane builders, I have graduated trade school, and separately earned an Associates of Science in Aeronautics.

July 31, 2017

Your Honor,

Thank you in advance for your time.

My name is Brandon Shorr. Currently I am living in [REDACTED] VA at [REDACTED] [REDACTED]. I have been at this location for three years with my wife and three step children.

As an overview, we left southern California in 2013, with hopes of obtaining a solid, permanent residence. My wife, whom was in the Marine Corps for twenty years, was looking to settle herself and her children down after a long and successful military career. Before that, I was a southern California resident from approximately 1993 until 2013.

Your Honor, I arrived in Orange County, California from Salt Lake City, Utah, with my parents in 1993, which as you might imagine can be a bit of a culture shock. This was a move that went from a quiet, small town in Utah to the rapid pace of southern California. I loved California none the less. I was simply a young man experiencing something very different than what I was used to in Utah. I lived with both of my parents in Newport Beach and had a very healthy and supportive upbringing.

I quickly found employment as soon as we relocated to California. Unfortunately, I also found some other young folks that were using things I had never been exposed to in Utah. To be very specific, I was exposed to marijuana and methamphetamines. From then on, and until my conviction (less than one year), I became more engaged with bad people and bad habits. What caused my criminal offence is nothing more than myself. I won't blame it on meeting or socializing with a "bad" crowd. I was a young adult when these events happened, but an adult none the less. No one forced me to do the very stupid things I was engaged in. Twenty three years later, I still blame only myself for my actions.

Since my conviction in 1994, I have not had any arrests or any type of wrong doings. I am simply not the person I was at the time of my conviction.

As for the punishment for my crime, I believe the Court showed me mercy because of my young age. First, I was sentenced to three years of probation. The first year consisted of formal probation. I was tested for drugs and alcohol on a weekly basis. I also had to provide proof of employment and positive adjustments in my life. After only several months, my probation officer released me from formal probation to informal probation due to new found employment, testing clean for all use of drugs/alcohol and overall changed lifestyle. Secondly, I was sentenced to one year to reside in a drug and alcohol treatment facility where the testing of drugs and alcohol occurred twice per week. In addition, we had a 10:00 p.m. curfew every night. I was also required to attend and participate in Narcotics Anonymous and Alcoholics Anonymous meetings twice per day every day. The cost of this facility treatment at Mainstream, San Clemente, California was approximately $600.00 per month that the Judge ordered that I pay for myself. I remember this experience being pretty scary as I was not employed at the time of my conviction. My family was only allowed to help me financially, but only for the first couple of months.

Your Honor, with a one year sentence, I was released early because I had accomplished the goals set forth for me and exhibited exceptional behavior. I was no longer using ANY type of substances and had genuinely turned my life around. The most positive impact that this entire experience has had on my life, is that while I was in "recovery" serving my sentence, I found a career as a Composite Technician.

Your Honor, I would like to call your attention to a company called "[REDACTED]" listed on my resume. It is a sailboat mast manufacturing company in Rancho Santa Margerita, Ca. This is the company I started working for while I was in the treatment facility. From this point forward, you will see nothing but a consistent and highly successful career as you review my resume.

My conviction was over two decades ago. I am still living out an extremely successful career as a Composite Technician.

I am currently employed at [REDACTED], VA. I have been employed at this company since my relocation to Virginia in 2014. My job title is "Senior Composite/ Bonding Technician". At [REDACTED], we work on a variety of specialized aircraft, aerospace, commercial and military vehicle parts and assemblies. We manufacture parts for companies such as Boeing, Gulfstream, General Electronics (GE) Aviation, General Atomics, Northrup Grumman (F-35, Joint Strike Fighter Program) just to name a few and many other projects.

As a Senior Technician, some of my daily duties consist of training of new and or lesser experienced employees in the areas of bonding, splicing, and repair, construction of core assemblies, large scale oven operations, and vacuum bag operations. Also, I have been named as the president of a Communications Process Action Team (PAT), within [REDACTED]. My purpose within the PAT is to improve communications from a production level on up to the upper management and executive level.

One of the highlights of my career was my time spent at SpaceX (Space Exploration) in Hawthorne, California. From November 2010 until June 2013, my main duties were as followed: first shift lead on the payload attach fitting for the Falcon Heavy Rocket, performance of quality inspections, lamination, bonding and assembly of all composite parts as well as, composite training of new and or lesser experienced employees. In addition, my experience with the set up and operation of laser tracking systems led my team to the company success of the payload attach fitting. I consulted daily with the rocket structures engineering department to improve lay-up schedules and processes. We put rockets into orbit and supplied the International Space Station (ISS) with supplies.

Your Honor, I hope you recognize that I have maintained a dedicated career path in which I have excelled at. However, should the opportunity present itself, I am most willing to continue gaining additional knowledge, skills, and abilities that will allow me to enhance my professional career.

From a personal perspective, I have now been married for the first time since 2013 with no previous children. My wife, [REDACTED], is a decorated and highly respected twenty-year retired veteran of the United States Marine Corps. I met [REDACTED] at the end of her career as a Marine Corps Master Sergeant while stationed at Camp Pendleton, CA. We met in Mission Viejo CA, in August 2012. Needless to say I was simply taken by her poise and proud stature. We immediately connected and I now am part of a family with a wife and three wonderful kids; [REDACTED] (now 19), [REDACTED] (now 19) and [REDACTED] (now 10). All three children are classified as special needs. [REDACTED] and [REDACTED] both have specific learning disabilities requiring at-home patience at building, developing, educational and life skills, however [REDACTED] is both mentally and physically handicapped with cerebral palsy. [REDACTED] requires an extreme amount of love and patience to assist him in acquiring his life essential needs. I have personally witnessed and been exposed to the most violent "fits" where I immediately provided love, support, and sanity to the situations presented. I have accepted these kids as my own and taken on the responsibility of their father. While trying at times, I have and continue to be a father to best of my ability.

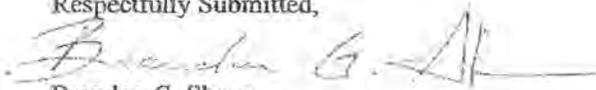

We now reside in [REDACTED], Virginia where we own our own home and are currently working towards steadfast retirement goals.

In closing, Your Honor, I take full ownership of my "hiccup" that occurred in my life during my early twenties given the newly exposed freedoms that I encountered moving to California. I truly did not understand the repercussions of my actions at that time. Needless to say, I did not value, nor did I understand the benefits I have as a United States citizen.

I have not previously pursued this initiative because of a lack of understanding of the process, nor did I have the financial means to engage on this endeavor. Since being married to a retired Marine and potential employee with the Federal Bureau of Investigation, my failure to contribute to society has hit home more than ever.

My request is brought forth to you today for consideration in allowing me to finally participate as a valued voice in our society. To respectfully address the Court, I am fully willing to personally appear before the Court to certify the truth of this written statement.

Respectfully Submitted,

Brandon G. Shorr

APPLICATION FOR GUBERNATORIAL PARDON FOR PHAL SOK

SUPPLEMENTAL QUESTIONS

1. Describe your involvement in the circumstances of the crime(s) for which you are requesting a pardon.

In 1998, when I was seventeen years old, I and four acquaintances stole about $850 from a clothing factory, ██████████ in Chinatown in Los Angeles, California. During the robbery, I pointed a firearm at several employees, but I did not fire it and no one was physically injured. Although I was only seventeen years old, I was tried and convicted as an adult. I could not afford a private attorney, so I was represented by a public defender.

In 2000, a jury found me guilty of three counts under California Penal Code Section 211, second degree robbery. Judge Curtis B. Rappe sentenced me to the maximum possible prison term of twenty-three years and eight months. More than sixteen years of my sentence was based on firearm enhancements. This was my first and only conviction.

In 2014, California enacted SB 260, which allowed me to present a case for early release to the parole board because I was a juvenile at the time of my offense. At the hearing, I sought early release by demonstrating my growth, maturity, and rehabilitation. On February 11, 2015, after my first parole hearing, I was granted early parole by Commissioners Ali Zarrinnam and Nina Starr. In preparation for the hearing, I was seen by Dr. Cherie Carrera, who conducted a Comprehensive Risk Assessment and found that I had maintained a “long period of stability” and “exhibited none of the [clinical] risk factors associated with violent recidivism.” Ex. C(1), (Comprehensive Risk Assessment for the Board of Parole Hearings). I am very grateful to Governor Brown and the California Legislature for passing SB 260 which gave me an opportunity for early release based on my rehabilitation in prison.

To this day, I deeply regret my actions and I feel terrible for all the suffering that I caused. Before my arrest, I was struggling deeply with my father’s recent death which left me parentless because my mother had moved away when I was a small child. Though I moved in with my older brother after my dad’s memorial service, ██████████ was unable to supervise me because he was working nights to make ends meet. I sought solace in the streets of Long Beach and got involved with the wrong crowd of people. Though these circumstances affected my choices, I take full responsibility for the decisions I made.

I know that my actions have had a ripple effect and I am very remorseful for the harm I caused to the victims, my family, and my community. However, I have worked hard to turn my life around. I believe I am fully rehabilitated and I am doing everything I can to pay back my family and community for the poor choices I made earlier in life.

2. Explain why you want a pardon.

A pardon is my only opportunity to stay in the United States, the only country I have ever known. I am a refugee and lawful permanent resident of the United States. I am currently in removal proceedings due to my criminal conviction. Although the government seeks to deport me to Cambodia, I have never set foot there because I was born in a refugee camp in Thailand during the Khmer Rouge regime.

My father, [REDACTED] and his adult son, my half-brother [REDACTED] fled Cambodia in late 1979 to escape the Khmer Rouge genocide. My mother, [REDACTED] also fled Cambodia at the same time. My father was a widow and my mother unmarried, and they fell in love in a refugee camp in Thailand. During the two year wait for acceptance into the United States, they had two sons—first, my brother, [REDACTED] and then me. A few weeks after I was born, my brother [REDACTED] died of an illness. When I was 61 days old, I arrived in the United States with my parents and older brother [REDACTED]. One year later, I became a lawful permanent resident.

My family first settled in Los Angeles. In February 1983, my baby sister, [REDACTED] was born. My parents separated later that year. My mom took physical custody of my baby sister [REDACTED] and my dad took physical custody of me. My dad, [REDACTED] and I moved to Long Beach. My mother moved away with my sister and did not maintain contact with my father or me. Because I was so little at the time, I don't have many memories of my mom and little sister. I mostly remember growing up with just my dad and older brother, [REDACTED]. I'm sad I never got to know them, especially because our family is so small. I have tried to find my mother and sister, but to this day, I do not know where they are.

After my parents separated, I was raised by my father. My father filed for naturalization and included me on his application. However, my father passed away from stomach cancer just before the government issued a decision on his naturalization application. Had my father completed the naturalization process before his death, I could have become a citizen and would not be deportable based on my conviction. However, as a lawful permanent resident, my conviction makes me deportable unless it is pardoned by the Governor. My next immigration court hearing is in November and if I were granted a pardon before then, it would give me the opportunity to petition to stop the deportation process and allow me to apply for U.S. citizenship.

I am scared of what would happen to me if I were deported to Cambodia. The current Prime Minister is becoming increasingly authoritarian and things are very bad, especially for people seen as having ties to the United States. I have lived my whole life in the United States and do not even know how to speak formal Khmer. I am afraid that people would know immediately that I'm from America, and they would target me with violent attacks.

I am asking for a pardon so I can continue supporting my community and building safer neighborhoods. I am dedicated to serving my community and reducing cycles of violence. Since my release, I have immersed myself in the immigrants' rights community here in Los Angeles. I believe I fulfill a unique role in the community as a person impacted by the criminal justice system and deportation proceedings. I currently work as an organizer with the Youth Justice Coalition, mentoring young people and teaching them how to live upright lives. Because I have been through the criminal justice system, I have a unique perspective to share. Youth always perk up when I share my experience with them. I also advocate for immigrants' rights with community members and policymakers and help run a support group for families impacted by deportation. A pardon would allow me to continue this important community work.

A pardon would keep my family together. If I am deported, my brother [REDACTED] a U.S. citizen, would be severely impacted. Since our father died, I am the only family [REDACTED] has left. My deportation would add to the many tragedies my brother has already experienced in his life. His mother died when he was a child, and he witnessed terrible violence under the Khmer Rouge regime in Cambodia. He was in his twenties when my family lived in the refugee camp in Thailand and he remembers the death of our brother [REDACTED]. Our father's death severely impacted him as well. When I got in trouble, since I had no parental supervision, [REDACTED] accompanied me to all my court appearances. It was all very hard on him.

My brother already has a lot on his plate. His wife is disabled and he is her primary caretaker and financial provider. He also supports his daughter, my niece, who lives with them as well.

I know that I brought hard times on my brother when I made the choices that led to my conviction, and I do not want him to suffer further if I am deported. My brother and I really value the time we have together after being separated for so many years. We communicate frequently via phone calls and texts and enjoying having family dinners together on the weekends. [REDACTED] would miss me terribly if I were deported. [REDACTED] is also terrified of what would happen to me if I were sent to Cambodia, a country where he experienced so much trauma. For his sake, as well as my own, I am requesting a pardon.

I want a pardon so I can plan for my future and be remembered as more than just my criminal record. I made a terrible mistake in my youth, but I have turned my life around. Because I am in deportation proceedings, I feel that my life is in limbo. I dream of returning to school and maybe even attending law school one day, but I can't make any long-term plans because I don't know if I'll be here next year. I have been dating an amazing woman, [REDACTED] [REDACTED] for the last year. We met while feeding homeless people on Skid Row in December 2016 and we belong to the same church. Our relationship is serious, and we have talked about the possibility of marriage. But I can't seriously consider starting a family because the threat of deportation looms over my head. A pardon would eliminate the threat of deportation and allow me to invest in my long-term future in the United States. It would also change my legacy from a story of a youth that got in trouble and wound up deported to a man who turned his life around and repented for his past mistakes.

3. Explain why you think you should be granted a pardon.

I understand that a pardon is not easily earned. It is an honor and a privilege that is bestowed by beneficence. I understand that the consequences of my actions are mine to bear. However, I am proud that I have turned my life around and am now a productive member of society. I work hard to support myself and have dedicated myself to strengthening my community since my release from prison. I have already made a difference in a lot of people's lives. Without a pardon, I will be deported. This would severely impact my life, and that of my family and my community.

I deserve a pardon because I am using my difficult past experiences to help others in my community. When I committed my crime as a teenager, I was traumatized by my childhood and the recent passing of my father. I now understand the circumstances that led me to commit delinquency, and I have learned tools to cope with my emotions in a healthy way.

My childhood was very hard. My family arrived in the United States as refugees, were traumatized by the death of my baby brother, and had trouble adjusting to life here. My mother worked a little bit as a seamstress, but she did not make very much money. My father had been so severely beaten by the Khmer Rouge that his shoulder was in constant pain and he had to sleep on plywood at night. He could not work due to his disability. We were very poor.

My father had trouble expressing his emotions due to the trauma he endured in Cambodia, and he refused to talk about what he experienced there. When I was about two, my parents separated. My mother took custody of my sister, while my father maintained custody of me. After they separated, I never saw my mother or sister again. Living alone with my father was not always easy. Sometimes he would get very angry for no reason and sometimes he would beat me.

In 1996, when I was fifteen years old, my father got very sick. In 1997, he was diagnosed with stomach cancer. We couldn't afford a full-time nurse, so I helped care for him every day after school. He passed away in May 1998, at the end of my junior year of high school, right before summer break. His death left an immense hole in my life because he was the only parent I ever really knew; after he died, I was parentless. For a few months, I lived alone in the house I had been living in with my father. Then, I moved in with my brother [REDACTED]. Although we lived in the same place, [REDACTED] was working nights to make ends meet so we rarely saw each other. I felt completely lost and alone. Although I had done well in school until that point, I ended up dropping out and seeking solace in the streets of Long Beach which were very dangerous at that time. I had already lost several friends to violence. When I was attending school, I even had to take different routes to get there every day so that I would avoid the worst of the violence. After my father's death I got involved with the wrong crowd of people and made bad decisions that still haunt me to this day. I have come a long way since those days.

In prison, I participated in self-help groups and formed many close relationships that taught me how to manage my emotions and work with people. For example, I participated in the Aiming for Success program through Pro-Social Transitions. I also engaged in Victims Awareness week, which gave me insight into the negative impact of my crime. Before my release, I participated in the Alternatives to Violence Project and engaged in both Alcoholics Anonymous and Narcotics Anonymous. I remain committed to non-violence and being sober.

I know people who come out of prison and have a difficult time reintegrating because they don't know how to talk to others. But through my work in prison and beyond, I gained many interpersonal skills. Because of my growth, I am able to form close relationships with friends and my girlfriend, manage my emotions, and lead a normal life.

My rehabilitation began in prison when I began to understand my past mistakes and started attending church more than ten years ago. Going to prison as a teenager was incredibly difficult. I was still reeling from my father's death and I had to adjust quickly to the unspoken rules of prison in order to survive. Because I was young, other inmates tried to pressure me to do things that would get me in trouble, but I resisted. In 2003, I was transferred to another facility, which gave me a fresh start.

I started attending church in 2004 and connected with others who were living a life of repentance. The biblical teachings helped ground me. I learned about principles of compassion, mercy, and forgiveness. I began examining myself and my past behavior. I felt terrible for the suffering my actions had caused, and I worked on forgiving myself so I could move forward and repent for my past wrongs. In May 2006, I was baptized. In 2007, volunteer chaplains selected me to be a chapel clerk. I helped coordinate attendance to various religious services, and oversaw the church supplies. I was also actively engaged in the music ministry.

I had multiple high-ranking jobs while I was in prison and was repeatedly recognized for my good work. In May 2007, I became a caregiver for handicapped inmates after the building officers recommended me for the job. They noted my "maturity and the ability to work effectively with designated population." In 2008, I was hired into the Prison Industry Authority (PIA) textile factory. I excelled in my assignments and climbed the ranks quickly. Eventually, I promoted to Production Coordinator, the most high-ranking inmate position available. It demanded many skills including sales order processing, databasing, inventory tracking and control, shop floor control and coordination, labor tabulation, production monitoring, scheduling, and routing, among others. I ensured the factory was up to speed and met sales order schedules. I developed interpersonal skills and worked effectively with the supervisory staff to help facilitate their decision-making. I also had to work professionally with many other inmates. My time as a PIA employee helped me grow immensely.

In prison, I earned my high school diploma, dedicated myself to continuing my education, and helped my fellow inmates. I earned my high school diploma while incarcerated and received vocational training in plumbing. I also enrolled in Coastline Community College and completed forty-two units of the business curriculum. I was awarded a Certificate of Achievement in Business for those efforts, while maintaining a 4.0 GPA. I secured placement on the President's List twice, each time completing twelve or more units in a semester with a 4.0.

I also volunteered in the Volunteer Education Program where I tutored and taught workshops focusing on GED preparation. I was later formally assigned as a literacy tutor. In that role, I encouraged men who did not have GEDs to get one and dedicated a significant amount of time to workshop instruction in math necessary for GED success.

In addition, I also served as a Prison Rape Elimination Act peer educator. In that role, I spoke to new inmates on the seriousness of prison sexual assault, ways to avoid it, and what can be done if it happens.

In my free time, I studied criminal and immigration law in the prison law library. I helped many inmates with their appeals and habeas petitions, filing at least one major petition each year. Through this work, I learned how many people struggle through the legal system without help. Moreover, my experience in immigration detention showed me how immigrants are especially vulnerable due to lack of representation. These experiences inspired me to join community advocacy groups when I was released from custody.

Since my release, I have dedicated myself to building a stronger and safer community. I was released from prison on July 20, 2015, but ICE detained me immediately. ICE allowed for my release in March 2016 but re-detained me in July 2016 to try to deport me. In those four months while I was out, I worked three days a week with "Get on the Bus," an organization that helps connect incarcerated people with their family on the outside. I volunteered at many community events, such as the "Pedal on the Pier" fundraiser, where I worked for twenty-four hours straight. They gave me an award for "Hardest Worker." I also volunteered with the Jefferson Church community and met many friends with whom I am still close to this day.

ICE detained me again in July 2016, but my church pastors, friends, and supporters attended court to ask for a bond. After it was granted, they came together to pay the bond so I could be released on November 30, 2016. This taught me more than words can express what community really means. I have humbly taken that lesson and I have done the best I can to return that investment they made in me, to make our communities a better place.

The time in detention also showed me how many families struggled with deportation proceedings and had no one else to help them. I shared my legal ability with anyone that came asking, in the hopes that I could help a husband remain here with his wife, a father to stay with his children. In that time, I also saw that people were terrified what would happen once President Trump was elected. Because of this experience, I got involved with the movement for Universal Representation in Los Angeles in 2016, advocating for the City and County to provide immigration attorneys to people in removal proceedings. At the same time, I returned to the Center for Restorative Justice Works (which hosts the “Get on the Bus” program) as a part-time employee to continue supporting children of incarcerated parents.

In May 2017, I was brought on as a paid organizer with the Youth Justice Coalition (YJC), a community-focused nonprofit in Los Angeles, after they saw my commitment to the community at a Board of Supervisors’ meeting. I am paid for twenty hours of work a week, but I volunteer many additional hours, providing a wide range of services and supporting the community in many ways. I mentor youth ages sixteen to twenty-four. I am also working to promote investment in our youth by advocating for alternatives to the street life, meaningful jobs, better educational opportunities, access to local peacebuilders they can turn to in times of need, and youth centers that offer resources so they can stay on track to success. My life story is instrumental in those discussions and I have been nominated to serve on the Juvenile Justice Coordinating Council directly as a result of that work.

At YJC, I also support our welcome home services, providing resources to men and women returning from incarceration for their successful re-entry.

I also advocate for systemic change. For example, I participated in lobbying in support of SB 54, a bill that the Governor supported and is now part of our state law. I spoke at the rally in Sacramento and even hand-delivered signed petitions to the Governor’s staffer.

I invest my time in supporting the immigrant community. In 2016, I joined the Los Angeles Coalition for Universal Representation and testified at city council meetings to advocate for legal representation for immigrants in removal proceedings. I am also an active member of the ICE Out of L.A. Coalition, and I attend their bi-weekly strategy meetings and help provide monthly Deportation Defense Clinics, offering free attorney consultations and legal rights trainings. People often ask me to speak at political and educational events because they find my story so inspiring, and I contribute a unique perspective to strategy discussions. My goal is to alleviate the fears of immigrant communities by promoting trust between immigrants, law enforcement, and local government.

I helped create a group that meets regularly to support families impacted by deportation. In these meetings, we create a safe space and explain the legal process to those in attendance. These groups empower the community and give people hope, because a lot of times people feel their situations are completely impossible.

I take these responsibilities to my community very seriously. I am lucky and honored to work alongside so many amazing people, and these friends and the work we do help keep me accountable.

I am a committed member of [REDACTED] Church. I attend Sunday services and volunteer each week in the church’s café. They trust me to open the café in the morning and return the cash box to the safe at night. I also help maintain the church facility on a regular basis. Staying connected with this church is an important part of my spiritual journey, which began in prison and remains important to me to this day.

In sum, I deserve a pardon because I have grown, matured, and realized the impact of my past actions. I am now a better man and dedicated to living a life that is true in repentance. I am working to support the community by bringing my life experience to the forefront, with the hope that I will be a helping voice in reducing violence in our communities.

2. Briefly describe the circumstances of the crime(s) for which you are requesting a pardon (attach additional pages as necessary):
As an adolescent I made poor choices. I was born in a refugee camp in Thailand and moved to the United States at age 2 and Modesto, California at age 4. As a Cambodian, I felt like an outcast and, like many others, was bullied by kids in the community. At age 13 my father, who was a huge role mode in my life, died leaving my family, especially my mom, emotionally devastaed. My siblings were busy trying to support the family. I did not know how to ... (cont)

3. Explain why you are requesting a pardon (attach additional pages as necessary):
I take full responsibility for my actions and am deeply remorseful for what I did twenty-three years ago. I deeply regret the pain and heartache I caused my victim's family as well as my own. Above everything else, I am asking for a pardon so that I am not separated from my wife and children. Today I am not the 14 year old kid from twenty-three years ago but a changed man who wants nothing more than to bring positivity into the lives of others. (cont)

4. Provide a brief statement explaining why you should be granted a pardon (attach additional pages if necessary):
Today, I am not the boy I was when I was 14; I am a thirty-eight year old, father of two, a husband, a brother, an uncle a friend, a coworker, a mentor and somone who for the past 9 years has only wanted to be a source of support, friendship and strength to those around me. I know I cannot take back the poor choices I made when I was 14...cont.)

None.

APPLICATION FOR GUBERNATORIAL PARDON | ADDENDUM |

2.) Briefly describe the circumstances surrounding your crime (cont.):

.....deal with the death of my father and turned to the streets. This was the biggest mistake of my life. At the age of 14, I was involved in a gang related shooting with several others that resulted in the death of a rival gang member and the injury of two others. I was arrested 8 months later and spent a year in juvenile hall. At age 16, I was charged and convicted of manslaughter PC 192(a) and two counts of assault with a deadly weapon PC 245(a)(2) with a firearm enhancement. I was sentenced to 15 years in an adult prison. I take full responsibility for my actions and am deeply remorseful for what I did twenty-three years ago. I deeply regret putting my victim's family in so much pain and heartache. I also deeply regret the pain and trouble I caused my own family as well.

3.) Explain why you are requesting a pardon (cont):

I am also asking for a pardon because the United States is the only home I have ever known. If granted a pardon I will be able to stay with my family and community here in the United States. My family means everything to me and being deported would be devastating for my wife and kids. I am especially worried about my kids because part of the reason I fell into a bad crowd was because of the absence of my father. I want to be here to guide them, to be a role model for them and to support them as they grow up. I also want to continue to help others learn from my mistakes.

4.) Provide a brief statement explaining why you should be granted a pardon (cont.):

.....but I can do everything in my power to make amends. Since being released, I have worked hard to pay my debts and become financially secure. Within a few years, my wife and I saved enough money to buy our own home. In 2011, my wife gave birth to our first child, [REDACTED] who is now a first grader in Sacramento. In 2015, we had my daughter, [REDACTED], who is three-years-old. I am a committed father and husband as everyone who knows me is aware. I also know that my experiences are valuable to other young adults who are going through difficult times.

Whenever I come across troubled teens or young adults, I share my experience with them and try to motivate them in a positive way. I also speak to recent parolees whenever possible because I know how hard it is to start a life once leaving prison. I want to show them that they can also transform and build their lives up from the bottom as I have, and maybe also have a loving wife and family to come home to too. I do these things because I know what it is like to need help, how important it is to be given a second chance, and I have a whole lot of compassion towards people. I hope Governor Brown will see me for the man I am today, not the boy I was when I was 14. I hope he will consider me for a pardon and allow me to raise my kids, redeem myself and spread positivity around to everyone I am in contact with. Receiving this pardon will allow me to do what I wish I would have done before that terrible day in 1995—apply to become what I already feel I am, a United States Citizen.

Offense(s):	Date of offense(s):	County of conviction(s):	Sentence(s):
459 PC, 11377(a) HS	8/28/1990	San Diego	2 years confinement/2 years state prison

2. Briefly describe the circumstances of the crime(s) for which you are requesting a pardon (attach additional pages as necessary):

My offense (San Diego Case #CR116431) concerns a 1990 drug and theft charge. I was involved with a bad crowd following the death of my father. I used drugs and made poor decisions, and ultimately suffered the instant conviction September 9, 1990. I served approximately 6.5 months, was released and violated probation, and served 2 years in prison. I relocated to Arizona after my release and committed no new offenses. See attached statement of Petitioner for more details.

3. Explain why you are requesting a pardon (attach additional pages as necessary):

I am requesting this relief chiefly because it impacts how I raise my children and what I must explain as they grow older and ask me questions such as why I did not vote. I want to be able to educate my children to participate in voting and jury service and I want to be an example for them in being able to do the same. I would also like access to the career and other opportunities (such as renting certain properties) that are not available to me while I am still considered a felon. See attached statement for more details.

4. Provide a brief statement explaining why you should be granted a pardon (attach additional pages if necessary):

I have made significant changes in my life. I have remained law abiding since my release from custody on the probation violation on June 18, 1992. I have met educational goals, started a family that I love dearly, advanced in a technical career, and maintained sobriety. I have a number of friends and former colleagues that can speak to the person I have become. See attached statements and character references for more details.

Governor Jerry Brown
Sacramento, CA 95814

Governor Brown,

I am enclosing this letter to accompany my application for pardon in hopes of having the effects of my poor decisions mitigated after more than 25 years.

A little history on the offense. At 15 I moved back to California when my father was very ill, to live with my mother and step-father. When my father passed away, 6 months later, I didn't handle it well, and began associating with some friends with some questionable habits. For the next 3-4 years, I made several poor decisions and was using drugs in a recreational capacity. I guess looking back, I was doing anything I could to not deal with the present circumstances. I did what I could to get the drugs, and resorted to stealing since I wasn't working. It was a series of poor decisions, which I regret, however they did occur.

In September 1990, I was arrested and due to a plea bargain in court, was sentenced to 1 year in county jail with 1 year suspended pending good behavior. 6 months, 23 days later I was released and went back to the friends I had left, and some of the poor decisions I had previously engaged in. Eventually I had my probation violated and was sent back to finish my 2-year sentence in state prison. About 9 months later I was released, and realizing I needed a change to break the cycle, I moved to Arizona with my mom and step-dad to attend college. I was hopeful the geographic change would be enough to turn my life around (and it was).

The first time I ran into issues with my felony, was ironically shortly after I was released from County jail. I had seen a friend, who was on the fast track to getting into trouble, enlist in the military and he was able to get his life squared away before trouble caught up to him. I tried contacting a recruiter to see if this was an option for me, and during our conversation, we determined it wasn't. I was told that with changed in enlistment policies, they probably wouldn't be able to get a waiver for my felony, due to the quantity of narcotics involved.

The geographic relocation after my incarceration gave me the clean break I desperately needed. Since my release, I have achieved many things I did not dream possible while doing drugs. I have been completely sober since my incarceration on June 18, 1992 and plan to stay that way. I believe this achievement would not have been possible had I stayed in California. I initially came to Arizona to stay with my parents and then attend Northern Arizona University. I started school in the Fall of 1992, and managed to stay sober, even living in the dorms (although I was called a lot to be the designated driver). I did not complete my degree at this time, but I did meet a wonderful young lady that December, whom I married, and have remained happily married to for over 21 years.

During the time since my release, I have made great progress and have done my best to integrate into society, even if they didn't always want me there. While in Flagstaff, Arizona, I was able to get a good job in sales, with a large electronics company. I did well, and enjoyed what I did, but unfortunately that company ended up closing down. I moved to Phoenix with my, then fiancé, and we were blessed to be able to buy a house at that time. I did well with the new company and moved up to an Assistant Manager, but stalled there for a couple of years. Things got tough, and we had some medical expenses, as well as poor roommate choices, and we ended up having to declare bankruptcy and move into an apartment. I didn't realize how difficult apartment hunting would be, having a felony on my record. We were refused by a couple of different apartment complexes, simply stating they couldn't rent to a felon regardless of the time. This was not an isolated incident, but we ended up getting an apartment and things kept on going.

I left the sales job, realizing that it isn't what I wanted to do for the rest of my life, but I didn't leave the job before securing another one. In my job hunt, I discovered that the felony excluded me from several occupations, and was grounds for legal discrimination. There were several jobs I applied for, and interviewed well for, but in the end, I was told that they have a policy against hiring felons. In the end, I managed to find new employment in the call center environment, where they were much less critical about their background checks, and didn't have an issue hiring a felon with my background. I carefully moved around jobs, hoping to find vertical traction in the workplace and finding difficulty, partly due to my background, and partly due to the business climate. After a couple of strategic jumps, and a couple of layoffs, I moved to contract work, mainly in IT. I have remained continuously employed within the IT sector, and making small career advances. Most recently, I was given a break and hired into [REDACTED], where I remain employed, regardless of my background, and been given a chance to grow. While I have many opportunities within the company, I am sure that some doors will remain closed to me with my felony background.

As I mentioned previously, I am happily married and met my wife at school. I made slow progress through my degree while working, but it wasn't until our daughter was born that I was able to complete my Bachelor's Degree in Management in 2008. I wanted to be a role model for her, by at least having a degree, and is what I continue to try and do. In 2011 our son was born and a new chapter was well under way in our lives.

Our previous house was getting too small with our latest addition, so we knew we needed more space for the family, and my wife working from home. We were looking to buy a new home, and had originally wanted to have a home built, but the average build time for the homes we were looking at were between 6 and 8 months. We had a timeline to be out of our old home, which was 90 days, so we would have to look at either getting a resale home, or renting an apartment for a few months while the new home was being built. Our initial apartment hunt was difficult, but there was a new 'coalition' that about 90% of the apartment complexes and property management companies had subscribed to, that prevented them from renting to anyone with a felony, regardless of time or nature of offense. While fortunately things did work out, and we were able to get a resale home, it was plain to see how much difficulty this felony would keep presenting.

This pardon would grant relief to me in several ways, but probably one of the largest ways would be the way I will have to explain this to my children, when the time arises. Recently, during the elections, the children were made aware of their civic duties in school, and had actually held mock elections. On election day, my daughter (now 8 years old) asked who I voted for, and I told her I hadn't voted. I didn't say why, but I am sure that was not the end of that conversation. I would like the chance, not only to vote, but to possibly serve on a jury, and this pardon would restore my rights and allow me that chance for the first time in my life. It is for all the reasons illustrated above that I humbly seek this pardon, and the restoral of all my rights.

Sincerely,

David Spiegelglass

Circumstances of Offense

On February 27, 2003, I was arrested for growing marijuana plants in my apartment in Hollywood, California.

I was charged and convicted in Los Angeles Superior Court with cultivating marijuana, Health and Safety Code section 11358, Case No. BA244145. In Court, my attorney brought a motion to dismiss because I had a doctor's recommendation to possess marijuana, but the motion was denied. On September 19, 2003 the issue of guilt or innocence was submitted to the judge based upon prior testimony and I was found guilty. The Court placed me on probation for 3 years and ordered me to complete 200 hours of community service. I complied with all the terms and conditions of probation. I later tried to have my conviction vacated because of the immigration consequences but was unsuccessful.

On April 11, 2006, this conviction was dismissed (expunged) pursuant to Penal Code section 1203.4.

On April 4, 2017, this conviction was reduced to a misdemeanor.

Attached as Exhibit D, is a copy of the Felony Information; attached as Exhibit E, is the minute orders from when I was convicted; and attached as Exhibit F, is the minute order from when the conviction was reduced to a misdemeanor.

Why I Am Requesting a Pardon

I am requesting a pardon so that I will not be deported. I have been ordered deported because of this conviction even though I have lived continuously in the United States for the past 35 years. I was a lawful permanent resident and came to the United States from Germany when I was only 5 years old.

I am informed that if I am granted a Gubernatorial Pardon, I would be eligible to apply for cancelation of removal to stop my deportation and regain my status as a lawful permanent resident.

Attached as Exhibit G, is a letter from my immigration attorney Stacy Tolchin which details my immigration status and the immigration benefits of a pardon.

Attached as Exhibit H, is a copy of the removal order issued by the United States Immigration Court.

Why I Should be Granted a Pardon

A pardon would arrest the ripple effect that my deportation would have on my family. My most significant concern, should I be deported, is for their well-being. My five-year-old son, [REDACTED], my mother and my son's mother all depend greatly on my financial support. Losing my income would create a situation where all would be forced to seek welfare and relocation. My son, [REDACTED], will be the most critical casualty. Not only would he be uprooted and financially unstable, his emotional and psychological well-being is at risk. He would lose his father. Thoughts of being forced to leave him torture me daily because I understand the destruction this would cause.

It will be devastating to leave the life I have built here. I contribute to our community by working as a handyman. I enjoy helping people and I like working with my hands. Working locally really makes me feel like I am an integral part of the community. Just like the garbage man, the street sweeper or the parking enforcement officer; I put on my uniform and drive my handyman truck all over town. As a handyman, I'm helping families and businesses on a daily basis. My reviews on Yelp over the years reflect my good workmanship and positive place I have in our community. (Attached as Exhibit I, is a copy of my Yelp reviews for Mid City Handyman). The thanks and appreciation I get from my clients makes my job very fulfilling. On weekends when I am not working, I could easily be found fixing the neighbor's kid's bike or helping the neighboring elderly couple patch a hole stucco wall.

I was brought from Germany at the age of five years old. This is the only homeland that I have ever known. As if the tally of losses to my family were not enough, I stand to lose everything that I have ever cared about: my son, my family, my home, my country, my income and my dignity. I will be isolated in a country where I do not speak the language and know no one. My entire family, and there are seven of us, all reside here in Los Angeles.

I consider myself a good guy. I take care of my family, my community and sometimes even strangers. I acknowledge my mistakes without reservation, but believe I should be granted a pardon to prevent the collateral consequences this deportation will have on my son [REDACTED] and others in our community.

Attached as Exhibit H, are 4 character letters; and attached as Exhibit I are two photographs of myself, one of which includes [REDACTED].

Governor Jerry Brown
Sacramento, CA 95814

Dear Governor Jerry Brown:

In the pages to follow you will find the answers to questions #2, 3 & 4 of the application for pardon which required additional space. It is my intention to provide you with enough information regarding my crime to make a weighted decision regarding my request for pardon.

#2) Briefly explain the circumstances of the crime(s) for which you are requesting a pardon:

On the night of 07/29/93 I was called by my two mutual school friends requesting a ride home from a party in Roseville. They were currently intoxicated and without a ride. I agreed to pick them up and as I was in transit to get them, they had decided to break into the neighbors' cars as they waited. Once I arrived they loaded into my car, at which time the neighbors relayed that information on to the sheriff's office and we were pulled over a short distance from the house. Stolen from the cars was a radio, some CD's and a couple credit cards. The passenger had put the credit cards on top of the dash so when the police were asking questions they noticed the credit card and called the owner whom was a match to the person who reported the offense.

Recovered from the car was the radio, CD's, credit cards, screwdriver and a small handgun. The back passenger had tossed it under the seat and since nobody would say it was theirs, the charge was put on everyone. The officer that arrested us said that since I was driving the car I was just as guilty and would be charged with all of the same offenses. My public defender informed me that if I took the chance to fight the charges I was looking at 2 years. However, if I took the plea bargain they would give me a Harvey Waiver the charges and give me work release, community service hours, restitution and fines. I was physically in the car when we were pulled over so I felt I was guilty and only option was to take the plea bargain. If I recall I was giving 70 days of work release. My assignment was washing the Roseville County buses. A group would wash the bus and my job was to squeegee the windows once they were done. It would take an hour to wash one bus and 10 minutes to do the windows. After a few days I felt it was a waste of my time and decided to stop going. A bench warrant was issued and I was picked up at my home. Because I was working full time and going to school fulltime I was granted to serve my jailtime on the weekends. This was a very humiliating experience with how many times I was stripped naked. As I arrived, then again when I got in my cell and they did a clothes change, then going from one place to another. After a couple weekends, I again stop going and another bench warrant was issued. When they picked me up the last time my boss at Raley's went before the judge and requested they allow me to do my time on home arrest in Nevada County. I was granted that request and I finished out my sentence on home arrest. All fines and restitution were paid in full before I was done with my home arrest. And my 400 hours of community service was completed at Auburn Boys & Girls Club of America. Upon finishing my required hours, I did remain on throughout the rest of the year as a full time volunteer.

#3) Explain why you are requesting a pardon:

There are a number of reasons for my request to be pardon. Almost 25 years ago now I made an extremely poor decision by associating with a group I knew to be bad company. That decision has haunted me since that day and will always be a hard lesson learned. The same two individuals that I was arrested with continued to go on and pursue a career life of crime. I completed my schooling and graduated with degrees in Accounting, Business Admin, Natural Science as well as a Chemical Engineering degree from University of Louisville. With my ChemE degree I have been somewhat hindered because most every Chemical Plant require full background checks and my record has prevented me from landing particular opportunities. I have 13 years of Chemical Engineering experience but still have issues with career advancement because of this poor decision. And as frustrated as I am with that advancement, I have limited options to seeking other employment because again, the new companies are also going to run the background check.

In addition, another reason for the request has to do with our church serving policy. If I am a convicted felon I am not allowed to serve in the children's ministry. When they need volunteers for camp supervisors I am not allowed to volunteer or participate. I have 5 children and try to have a very active role in their life. My time spent with the Auburn Boys & Girls club was thoroughly enjoyable and taught me a lot about how younger kids need positive role models. I want my kids to be able to see me serving, to know this is something that is right and follow in my footsteps.

Furthermore, when I was arrested I was told that I lost all of my rights. That I would never be able to vote or own a firearm. When I was arrested, I had just turned 18yrs old and to this date have never been able to vote in any of the elections. I am living in a world that I have no voice in because my vote is none existent. I see policies and laws passed that not only affect my life but the lives of my family and children. And again, I can't voice my concerns or disapproval by voting. As I mentioned earlier I have 5 children and I can't keep a firearm in the home for protection because I was told I can not be in possession of one. So I would have to worry that in a case of someone coming into our home which requires me to draw upon a weapon and shoot, that even if the weapon was registered to my wife that I would be in trouble for being in possession. A man should be able to protect his family from all dangers, especially the way our society has turned as of lately.

Lastly, I am requesting a pardon for my own peace of mind in knowing that I don't need to worry about the embarrassment of answering "Yes" when asked if I am a convicted felon on an application or interview. There is a tarnish against my character that will remain there as long as my record remains as is. That record does not speak of my true character as I am know today, but speaks of the only mistake I made as a youth.

#4) Provide a brief statement explaining why you should be granted a pardon:

I believe that I should be granted a pardon because the one mistake in judgement I made as a teenager turned out to be what shaped my character into what I am today. That poor decision to get in my car on the night of 7/29/93 gave me a first-row seat to a jail cell and a glimpse into what that sort of life would be. I knew from that first day that I had no intentions of every returning back to that place. But that mistake also lead me to the Boys/Girls club of America and volunteering. As I got older I continued to serve in leadership roles and with the community as much as possible. In 1999 I joined Triangle Fraternity and was immediately voted into Community Service Chair. I would arrange/participate in chapter events that I would set up with Habitat for Humanity. I would work with Jennifer Greener and the people at Make a Wish Foundation to be Wish Granters. We built a skate park for a kid that made that wish, or build a tree house of a little boy that wanted a treehouse, etc. We completed numerous projects along those lines throughout the years. In addition, I would volunteer with big brothers/big sisters of Louisville to volunteer as a mentor. Following the Community Service Chair I was then voted as VP Activities where I would arrange much larger scale projects which would get the entire Greek community involved with the charities of choice. We focused most of our attention on Big Brothers/Big Sisters since we could see the immediate impact we were making on their young minds needing positive role models. Jeremy Coyle along with myself then brought Leadership Advantage to the University of Louisville. It was a mentoring/leadership training for young high school students thinking about going into engineering. It provided them with a network for help once they were in classes, taught them leadership training, and gave them a head start on making friends and study groups. This program continues to flourish even today. In 2002, the University of Louisville Chemical Engineering department ask me to service as a Chemical Engineering Ambassador for new students. Again, this was to mentor them, promote the engineering field, and just be someone they can come to for answers or direction. My resume consists of one leadership opportunity after another and I gravitate toward it automatically. I have little doubts that a line can be traced back to that poor decision and the choices I knew I needed to make to change not only my life, but the life of anyone else that I could have an influence on. I feel this heavy weight still dragging around my neck after almost 25 years, and I am really ready to let it go. I am ready to be able to look at my wife and know she is not going to have a look of embarrassment on her face when people ask me why I am not using my gifts to serve at church, etc. Or why my kids think I won't be their counselor at camp. 25 years is long enough, I humbly ask for you to forgive me of this mistake and grant me a pardon.

Sincerely,
Aaron Stonebrook

Incarceration gave me the time to reflect and through that process I gained insight. I worked in groups, education, and meditation, fully realizing the criminal mentality I had as a youth and the level of harm I inflicted on others.

On May 13, 2016, I was released from ICE custody four-months of detention. I was placed on formal supervision. My first decision was to become the primary caretaker for my mother who is currently 71 years old and resides in the San Gabriel Valley. She is monolingual, speaking a Chiu Chow Chinese dialect, and continues to suffer from physical ailments dating back to the late-1970s when she was forced into labor and beaten regularly by the Khmer Rouge regime.

I received a work permit and began to support my mother. Also, I began volunteering with the Anti Recidivism Coalition (ARC) around July 2016.

I received a letter on September 29, 2017 from ICE to report for an interview with the Cambodian consulate on October 5, 2017. I was detained that day and after a brief stay in Adelanto detention facility, I was transported out-of-state. While in Louisiana, I received notice that travel documents to Cambodia had been issued for me. This was terrible news. Why? I'm not a Cambodian citizen. My parents are ethnically Chinese, and my grandparents and parents left China for Cambodia during the Great Chinese Famine of the late-1950s. My family's ethnicity and perceived social class were one of the primary reasons why the Khmer Rouge targeted us and ultimately beat and murdered my father. Despite not being a Cambodia citizen and of Cambodian parentage, the Cambodian government still accepted my repatriation. This acceptance is due to political pressure and threats of sanctions by the current U.S. government.

I was detained a second time by ICE and transferred to Adelanto detention facility. This caused me to realize that even though I already paid my debt to society and was granted an early parole because of my demonstrated, genuine remorse and positive actions, I was being punished again. The conditions were squalid and those detained (including me) were transferred between Louisiana, Texas, Arizona, and California – with no notice and no ability to communicate with family. I had endured severe adversity in the past but in this instance, it was different. I was forced to leave my crying mother, this time through no fault of my own. I knew she would be despondent, wondering whether she would ever see me again.

Through the support of my friends advocating on my behalf, and a nationwide class action lawsuit for which I am a member filed by Asian Americans Advancing Justice in the U.S. District Court, I narrowly avoided boarding a one-way flight to Cambodia in late-December of 2017. I was eventually granted a bond hearing and returned home on May 13, 2018.

I continue to prioritize my time volunteering for non-profits, developing my leadership and communication skills, and spending time with like-minded peers. I am a member of the Anti-Recidivism Coalition's Apprenticeship Program and its Mentoring program, which assists youth who are justice-impacted. I am also a core member of the non-profit, API RISE, which seeks to support formerly incarcerated Asian and Pacific Islanders. I occasionally facilitate their monthly healing circles, assist with grant writing and lead their outreach. Recently, I completed a 12-week leadership course offered by a local faith-based non-profit organization, Faith and Community Empowerment (FACE). I feel like I'm in my element when I'm volunteering and assisting others.

My vision is to become a successful entrepreneur and continue to assist those in need. I am part of Def Ventures, an entrepreneurial training program for formerly incarcerated individuals. Around August of 2016, I joined 2nd Call, a reentry organization that hosts life skills support. This is the organization that introduced me to the Electrical Training Institute. My plan is to continue seeking entry into a local electrical union.

My faith community continues to be a source of stability and encouragement. On Sundays, I volunteer at a church café with a friend and I've been building many positive associations there. I also continue to practice meditation and have been taken under the wings of Zen meditation practitioners who have mentored me over the past year. I attribute much of my personal growth and transformation to meditation, which opened my awareness and capacity to fully accept my circumstances and accept responsibility for my past self-destructive and harmful actions. I still have many years ahead of me and ample time to continue to learn, grow, and give back.

My motto: Be conscientious and do good one step at a time.

My goal: To be a productive, contributing member of society and to prove I have truly realized a different way to live my life.

4. WHY A PARDON SHOULD BE GRANTED

The current anti-immigrant sentiment makes it nearly impossible for me to continue assisting my mother and advance my future. I was given a second chance but the threat of deportation to Cambodia, a country I have faint memories of while my mother made a harrowing and desperate escape to the borders of Thailand as a war refugee, throws all my dreams and achievements into shambles.

My family and community mean everything to me. I believe that I have a greater purpose in life and I was raised to serve those who are less fortunate. My father was a language professor when he was alive, and his dedication to teaching is something that I also find in myself – a desire to be a support to others and to help show that people can regain dignity and self-respect after having made serious mistakes in the past.

This view in life led me to join the California National Guard before my crime was committed. I wanted to have that sense of purpose and belonging. Yet despite my upbringing and aspirations, I chose a dark path that led to criminality as a young adult. For that, I'm deeply remorseful and this is a burden I will carry for the rest of my life.

My mother and brother are the only family I have. I have a responsibility to take care of my mother after everything she has been through. The trauma and heartbreak she earnest efforts to rehabilitate over a span of two decades and approved my parole in 2015-16. I am asking once more to be given the chance to show my true worth in seeking this pardon.

APPLICATION FOR EXECUTIVE CLEMENCY

Complete this application to request a pardon or commutation from the Governor. A pardon is the forgiveness of a crime and a commutation is a reduction or elimination of a sentence. If you are eligible for a Certificate of Rehabilitation, do not complete this application; instead obtain a Certificate of Rehabilitation from the superior court in your county of residence. (See Penal Code, § 4852.01.) If a pardon is granted, this application will become a public record, however specific personal information will be redacted (hidden) before it is made available to the public.

ATTACHED HERETO IS THE LASO REPORT WHICH ACCURATELY DESCRIBES THE INCIDENT.

3. Explain why you are requesting a pardon or commutation (attach additional pages as necessary):

I attempted to purchase a firearm in Oregon not knowing I was not eligible because of the felony conviction 40 years ago. I was denied the purchase and informed that I could be prosecuted for the attempted purchase.

4. Provide a brief statement explaining why you should be granted a pardon or commutation (attach additional pages if necessary):

Since said conviction at the age of 19, I turned my life around completely. Attached hereto is my resume covering my activities since the receipt of my Bachelor of Science degree from Humboldt State in 1979. I went on to receive my PhD in 1989 from the Virginia Institute of Marine Science.

B. I was convicted for one count of sales of a small quantity of LSD. A friend asked me to get him some and he had just been turned for being arrested for sales. Unfortunately, I made the big mistake of procuring a dozen or so doses for him and the officer.

C. 1. I just recently learned that I still had this conviction on my record as a felony. Of course, it was over 40 years ago, but I thought that it had ben expunged. There are a number of reasons that I would like to have a pardon.

- 1) It is a grave embarrassment to me.
- 2) I travel for consulting and pleasure and would not want it to interfere with VISAs, etc. I now believe that it was the cause for the denial of a NEXUS application.
- 3) I would like to take possession of my childhood firearms and those antique firearms from my father for sentimental reasons.
- 4) Many of my friends in Oregon hunt, and I would like to participate with them.
- 5) I live alone and somewhat remotely. I would feel more secure with the protection of a firearm.

C. 2. Being arrested was a wakeup call for me. I turned my life around and left the LA area. In fact, I completed my probation early for good behavior. I completed a series of degrees in science including a Ph.D. I have been working in science and environmental conservation my entire career and I feel that I have contributed significantly to society. Basically, I made a serious mistake when I was only 19 years old. It is now over 40 years later and I have not been cited for any crimes except a few speeding tickets.

Sear Un

Sear Un, a resident of California, has submitted to this office an application for executive clemency. Mr. Un lawfully entered the United States at the age of 1 as a refugee from Cambodia.

He was sentenced on or about March 3, 1998, in the Superior Court of the State of California in and for the County of San Diego, for the crime of burglary. Specifically, Mr. Un's associates stole $4,500 in electronics from a residence while Mr. Un waited in the getaway car. He served four years, eleven months probation, and one year in jail. He was discharged on March 2, 2003 having completed his sentence.

Sear Un has submitted to this office a formal application for executive clemency in the form of a gubernatorial pardon. He has shown that since his release from custody, he has lived an honest and upright life, exhibited good moral character, and conducted himself as a law-abiding citizen. Indeed, Mr. Un reports that he has been clean and sober for fourteen years, and is described as a loving father to his two children and a caring husband to his wife, who is currently pregnant with their third child. His employer requested that I grant a pardon so that Mr. Un could remain in the United States.

By the laws of this state it is proper that I, as Governor of the State of California, give testimony that, by completion of his sentence and good conduct in the community of his residence since his release, Sear Un, has paid his debt to society and earned a full and unconditional pardon.

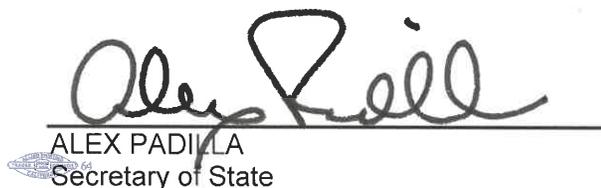

THEREFORE, I, EDMUND G. BROWN JR., Governor of the State of California, by virtue of the power and authority vested in me by the Constitution and statutes of the State of California, do hereby grant to Sear Un a full and unconditional pardon for the above offense, including the right to own, possess, and keep a firearm to the extent permitted by California Penal Code Section 4854.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF I have hereunto set my hand and caused the Great Seal of the State of California to be affixed this 11th Day of December, 2018.

██████████ and ██████████ went in the house. ██████████ and I were waiting for about 15 minutes. The garage door opened and we saw a car pulled out. ██████████ and ██████████ were in the car. So me and ██████████ follow the car back to ██████████ house. I noticed items were in the car. After they sold some of the stolen items, they abandon the car somewhere in City Heights area. I didn't take any part in the stolen goods but did receive $25 gas money and $100 just for being there. To my knowledge, no one carried any weapon. I don't even know how they managed to get inside the house. I told my attorney that I didn't even go into the house. He just looked at me. So I said, "If you don't even believe me, how are you going to fight the case for me." I decided to take the plea bargain because no matter how I looked at it, I took part in the crime. Since I already did some time, I thought a sentence of 365 days in custody was pretty good for something that I was guilty of. If I remembered correctly, I was in jail for 6 months and 20 days and was released early for good behavior.

Due to my wife's medical conditions, she's not able to continue working. I don't know who, if any, can help support my wife and kids. To my understanding, if I am deported, I would be barred from entering the US permanently. I cannot read or write in Cambodian. Average pay in Cambodia is about $3.00/day. With that kind of pay I don't know if I can support myself, let alone my family here who needs me. My wife will be faced with a choice whether to take our kids and move to Cambodia to be with me, a country that doesn't have adequate healthcare system or education, or stay here in the US where I can never return. Deportation will separate me from my family. I want to be given a second chance, an opportunity to show America that I am a responsible and productive member in society, a responsible husband and father. If I can be pardon, and the pardon comes in time, I will avoid deportation.

My real progress didn't start until August 2004 when I was about to lose my wife (girlfriend at the time) and my newborn son. That was when I really hit rock bottom. It was the first time that I witnessed my own mother crying. She said I continued to disappoint her time and again. I need to make some serious changes in my life. I wish I can change my past. I don't want to use the excuses that I was young and stupid because many others were young, but they didn't make the same choices as I did. The damages I've caused to myself and the others, especially while I was still an alcoholic, I can never repair and make amends. I can never undo the crime, the hurt, pain, and suffering to those who had crossed my path. I can only move forward and atone for my sins by staying away from bad crowds/influences. I vow to myself that I will live a crime-free life. My words doesn't mean anything without actions. Since then I have been clean and sober for 14 years. Everything started to improve once I made that commitment to never drink alcohol again. I attended the NA meetings when I can and shared my experiences with old and new addicts. I hope the experiences I shared in the meetings will encourage new addicts to the road of recovery. I continued to be a hardworking, productive member in society, providing for my family as best as I can. I hope in due time God will forgive me. I am hoping to be given a second chance with a clean slate. I know a pardon doesn't erase my past, but definitely, it will give me the opportunity to be with my family, my two kids, and my unborn child. To me that will be the best gift of all. It is too devastating for me to think that I will never see them again. I cannot imagine a life without them if I should get deported to Cambodia. Cambodia is not my home. America is my home.

Declaration

1, Edelmira Valencia, declare the following to be true:

1. I am applying for a Pardon from an April 7, 1994 conviction for Transportation of a Controlled Substance, Health and Safety Code Section 11352 and Possession for Sale of a Controlled Substance, Health and Safety Code Section 11378, out of Sacramento County, California.
2. I currently reside in [REDACTED] Indiana where I have been for about the last twenty years;
3. I am making this application for a Pardon because I believe that I have successfully turned around my life and made myself a productive member of society by being a business owner and a Real Estate broker; in addition, I have made myself a positive example for my children despite the 1994 conviction;
4. I was arrested on July 20, 1993 along with my husband, [REDACTED]; at that time we were stopped by police and a quantity of Cocaine and Methamphetamine was found by the police. As part of the processing, my documentation was hidden by the arresting officer and therefore I was processed as an illegal immigrant; causing me to serve 36 days in jail without bail until my documentation was found, and my first daughter being born while incarcerated.
5. I met [REDACTED] in 1987 at work and later we became romantically involved, we began living together in 1988;
6. I was subsequently charged and convicted of the crimes indicated; I was on probation for 5 years. I successfully completed my probation and I have not had any other law violations since.
7. [REDACTED] received 2.5 years in prison and was eventually deported some years later;
8. It was never my intent to get involved with drugs and I never used them. While it may seem like I am avoiding responsibility, the truth is my husband was the one who was involved with the drugs and he did use them. [REDACTED] was not a good man. He abused me physically and verbally while we were together and in the instance when I was arrested he used me as part of his criminal activity with drugs; I was not strong enough to leave him until several years later ;
9. After our criminal case concluded I was very upset with [REDACTED] for getting me involved with this matter and putting everything in jeopardy; in addition, I was tired of him beating me and verbally abusing me. Despite my frustrations with him we stayed together until about 2000 although we separated for a time in 1996. When we separated I moved to [REDACTED] with our child to be near my sister; I was actually pregnant with our second child at the time. Despite that, I was tired of being abused by [REDACTED] and I wanted to have a better life for myself and my children;
10. Prior to leaving for Indiana I worked in medical lab and studied business administration at Fullerton College but I did not get a degree;
11. My brother in law in Indiana was a restaurant manager, and he and my sister helped me open my own Mexican Restaurant. In addition I opened up five Mexican groceries in the [REDACTED] area; the Restaurant was called [REDACTED] and one of the groceries was called [REDACTED] while the four other Mexican groceries were named [REDACTED]; I owned and operated the businesses until 2014 under the corporate name [REDACTED], INC;

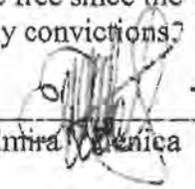

1 12. In 2000 I also started working with a friend buying and selling Real Estate; I proved to be
2 very successful at that, and so in 2005 I got my Real Estate License and started selling
3 my restaurant and the groceries to buy commercial and residential properties. I would 4 fix up and sell. Currently I have sold all my businesses and now I just operate a Real 5 Estate Business.

6 13. [REDACTED] never gave me child support; despite that I sent both of my daughters
7 to university at [REDACTED]; where they currently 8 study. [REDACTED] is 22 years old and is studying integrative studio arts and pursuing a career
9 as a digital artist while [REDACTED] is 18 years old and studying business management and 10 pursuing a career in the United States Marine Corps;

11 14. Despite making mistakes earlier in my life I learned from them and I did my best to be 12 industrious and set a positive example; I have been crime free since the 1994 conviction;

13 15. As such, I would request that I be granted a Pardon on my convictions?

1. Conviction Summary:

Offense	Date of Offense	County of conviction	Sentence
HS 11377(A)	8/30/04	Yolo	90 days jail, 80 days jail suspended, 36 months probation, fine
HS 11377(A)	5/17/06	Sacramento	180 days jail suspended, 60 months probation

2. Briefly describe the circumstances of the crime(s) for which you are requesting a pardon:

I began using methamphetamine in August of 2003 and the drug quickly took over my life. I was supposed to attend UCLA as an undergraduate transfer student in September, but suffice it to say I dropped out instead. A few months later, in February 2004, I was arrested in West Sacramento and charged with being under the influence of a controlled substance, possession of a controlled substance, and possession of a controlled substance for sale; I pleaded no contest to possession of a controlled substance. I completed residential drug rehabilitation as ordered by the court but went back almost immediately to using methamphetamine. The Yolo County Superior Court subsequently revoked my probation and issued a warrant for my arrest. I continued to use until I was arrested in Sacramento in February 2006, and charged with and convicted of possession of methamphetamine for a second time. After serving time in jail in both Sacramento and Yolo counties, I again attended residential drug rehabilitation. I have been clean ever since.

In both cases, I was arrested after my car was searched during traffic stops. The 2004 arrest followed a stop for a broken window on my vehicle. The 2006 arrest followed a stop for a broken taillight.

Pursuant to Proposition 36, the 2006 felony conviction was dismissed after I completed drug treatment. In 2014, I petitioned the Yolo County Superior Court and the 2004 felony conviction was subsequently reduced to a misdemeanor.

3. Explain why you are requesting a pardon:

My criminal convictions have blocked me from participating in educational and professional opportunities, and this will likely continue in the future.

In 2008 I was admitted to the London School of Economics for graduate school, with a scholarship, but was unable to attend because I could not obtain a student visa. In the years since, I've been unable to attend academic conferences for my field of study when held in Canada. Indeed, when I earlier made the mistake of thinking I could enter that country, their Border Services officers pulled me off the train, informed me that I would be jailed if I attempted to enter Canada again, and drove me back across the border.

I will likely have similar problems, and problems with professional licensing in particular, in the future. Teaching undergraduates for the past five years has been incredibly rewarding, and I would like to continue that work at the high school level. But obtaining a teaching credential and finding a district and/or school that will hire me is complicated by my criminal record. Indeed, a clean record is a basic threshold question when seeking employment in many fields. This is true even where professional licensing bodies will admit applicants with criminal convictions.

I have long planned my life around my criminal convictions. This often meant turning away from the professions and experiences that would likely founder on my criminal record. In addition to what I described above, this includes living and working overseas, joining the Peace Corps, applying for post-doctorate positions at foreign universities, and being admitted to practice by the bar association if I attended law school. Admittedly, these options have narrowed as I get older, but I would like the chance to make these choices freely and unencumbered by my past actions.

4. Provide a brief statement explaining why you should be granted a pardon:

In the years I spent using methamphetamine, I came across many people laid low by their addiction but who were otherwise of good character and just as kind, talented, and indeed human, as anyone else. Against that background, requesting a pardon raises many questions for me, not the least of which concern responsibility, rehabilitation, and equity. I have wrestled with these questions for years. Yes, I have demonstrated I can study, work, teach, and more generally conduct myself in a law abiding, public-regarding, and upstanding manner. Yet so can many folks who have little chance of escaping the burden of their criminal past. I have also received plenty of help and kindness, and had a great deal of luck along the way. Too many people who are similarly situated have not.

I do not wish to present myself, let alone believe, that I am more ethical, deserving, or upstanding than the next person. That is perhaps one of the lessons I have learned from carrying a criminal record; it demands a strong dose of humility from you every day.

I have been clean ever since my last arrest in February 2006. Since then, I completed an undergraduate and master's degree, acted as a steward for my union, taught undergraduates for five years, delivered papers at conferences and published in an academic journal, and will soon complete my PhD at UCLA. I would like the chance to continue my work in the future as a teacher. Though I have done what I can to mitigate the effects of having a criminal conviction, given the realities of background checks and arrest records, it remains a serious impediment to travel, housing, and employment.

Thank you for your consideration of my application for a pardon.

Mr. Wright served three years, six months probation and completed 1,500 hours of community service. He was discharged on August 15, 2017 having completed his sentence.

Roderick D. Wright has submitted to this office a formal application for executive clemency in the form of a gubernatorial pardon. He has shown that since his release from custody, he has lived an honest and upright life, exhibited good moral character, and conducted himself as a law abiding citizen. Indeed, Mr. Wright has devoted much of his life to public service, including serving six years in the California State Senate and six years in the California Assembly. Following his conviction, in a bipartisan vote the Legislature enacted Senate Bill 1250 (2017-2018 Leg. Sess.), which clarifies the law regarding the domicile of an elected official. The Legislative history of that bill specifically cited Mr. Wright's conviction as the reason why clarity in this area of the law was necessary.

The Board of Parole Hearings received and reviewed Mr. Wright's pardon application and related materials pursuant to California Penal Code section 4802, and recommended him for a pardon on September 18, 2018. Mr. Wright also received a recommendation for a pardon by a majority of the justices of the Supreme Court of California, received on November 20, 2018, as required by article V, section 8 subdivision (a) of the California Constitution.

By the laws of this state it is proper that I, as Governor of the State of California, give testimony that, by completion of his sentence and good conduct in the community of his residence since his release, Roderick D. Wright, has paid his debt to society and earned a full and unconditional pardon.

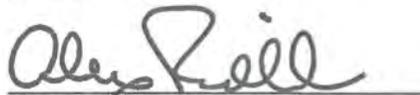

THEREFORE, I, EDMUND G. BROWN JR., Governor of the State of California, by virtue of the power and authority vested in me by the Constitution and statutes of the State of California, do hereby grant to Roderick D. Wright a full and unconditional pardon for the above offense, including the right to own, possess, and keep a firearm to the extent permitted by California Penal Code Section 4854.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF I have hereunto set my hand and caused the Great Seal of the State of California to be affixed this 21st Day of November, 2018.

2) Briefly describe the circumstances of the crime(s) for which you are requesting a pardon.

I was convicted of perjury and voter fraud on January 28, 2014 in the Los Angeles Superior Court, case number BA361187-01. The case was based on my listing my property in the City of Inglewood as the domicile address on my voter registration affidavit filed in 2007. This resulted in eight charges: two counts of filing a false document (when I filed my declaration of candidacy for the State Senate in 2008 it was signed twice); and, five counts of voter fraud for each election in which I simply voted between 2007 and 2009, in addition to the registration affidavit. To the best of my knowledge, I am the only sitting legislator ever charged or convicted of these offenses.

Much of this case centered on how the law, specifically Election Code section 349¹, is interpreted. I am the sole owner and taxpayer of the property listed as my domicile on the voter registration affidavit. I have continuously owned this property since 1977. I shared a three bedroom detached house on this property with my stepmother pursuant to a written rental agreement. I also own and reside in another residence in Baldwin Hills. I have been in the residential apartment business for over 40 years, so I did not think it would be a problem for me to establish domicile in my own house. The entire case was based on circumstantial evidence as there was no direct evidence of a crime. At no point during the trial was any evidence presented that there was a legal or physical reason I could not have been domiciled at my Inglewood property. To complicate this matter even further, I also had a condo in

(a) "Residence" for voting purposes means a person's domicile.

(b) The domicile of a person is that place in which his or her habitation is fixed, wherein the person has the intention of remaining, and to which, whenever he or she is absent, the person has the intention of returning. At a given time, a person may have only one domicile.

(c) The residence of a person is that place in which the person's habitation is fixed for some period of time, but wherein he or she does not have the intention of remaining. At a given time, a person may have more than one residence.

Sacramento where I also “lived” much of the time. To my detriment I did not spend much time in Inglewood or Baldwin Hills. I am not aware of any standard as to how much time a person must spend at a residence for it to be considered a domicile. If there were such a standard, I would have complied with it.

Election Code §349 allows a person to have more than one residence and only one domicile, which I had. Including my condo in Sacramento, I actually “lived” in three residences. While I had multiple residences, I only had one domicile. Incidentally, while I lived in Baldwin Hills, I never declared domicile there. I never used the Baldwin Hills residence for a homeowner’s tax exemption, California driver’s license, voter registration, or a passport—with the exception of the homeowner’s exemption, which is on a third property I own, all these items all declared on my property in Inglewood. Nothing in the law specifies that the more expensive residence or even the one where the most time is spent is by, default, the domicile. In fact relevant case law in this area says;

“The major issue involved in this appeal is whether or not the trial court erred when it ruled that respondent was “residing” within the district under Government Code section 61200. The trial court found that although respondent had been physically residing outside of the district, she was in fact “domiciled” within the district at Big Oak Flat and therefore “residing” within the district under Government Code section 61200.” Fenton v. Board of Directors (1984) 156 Cal.App.3d 1107.

Another important element in this case was the reinterpretation of Election Code section 2026², which granted a “conclusive presumption” of domicile to a state or federal legislator. The trial judge, the Office of Legislative Counsel, and former Assembly Speaker Willie L. Brown, the author of the legislation that became EC §2026, all agreed that a correct interpretation of the law would have provided me with an affirmative defense against some of these charges. The Legislative Counsel submitted an Amicus Curiae letter to the appellate court citing their understanding of the intent of the statute. Unfortunately, the Second District Court of Appeals interpreted EC §2026 differently and reversed the trial judge on a writ filed by the prosecution. Our subsequent Petition for Review was declined by the Supreme Court, so the clear meaning of the statute was changed in this case. This appellate decision effectively nullified the law, and I was retroactively charged and convicted under the new interpretation.

The domicile of a Member of the Legislature or a Representative in the Congress of the United States shall be conclusively presumed to be at the residence address indicated on that person’s currently filed affidavit of registration.

It is my understanding that perjury is a crime that usually requires specific intent. There was never an attempt to demonstrate any criminal intent on my part. I own all properties in question, and they were all listed on my publicly available FPPC Form 700. Additionally, I am the owner and taxpayer listed at the Los Angeles County Assessor's Office for these properties.

In this case, the term "live" was often conflated with "domicile." This sleight of hand was allowed because the actual voter registration affidavit I signed said "live." Although the statute says "residence" and "domicile," the affidavit said "live." Election Code §2157³ makes it clear that the voter registration affidavit is an editorial document and allows the Secretary of State complete discretion to use whatever language he or she chooses, provided it assists the voter in completing the form. Election Code §2157 makes clear the language on the affidavit does not substitute for the statute; however, this is precisely what was allowed to happen in this case.

The prosecution split hairs in their quest to substitute the words "domicile" and "residence" for "live." Having to explain to a jury the difference between "live" and "domicile" proved to be a burden my defense team and I could not overcome. Most people believe that legislators must live in a district in order to seek an elected office; however, that is not what the law says. People usually use the colloquial definition of "live," so trying to explain "domicile" and "residence" in this case proved to be an insurmountable challenge. This was compounded by

³ 2157, in part, states:

(a) Subject to this chapter, the paper affidavit of registration shall be in a form prescribed by regulations adopted by the Secretary of State. The affidavit shall comply with all of the following:

(1) Contain the information prescribed in Section 2150.

(2) Allow for the inclusion of informational language to meet the specific needs of that county, including, but not limited to, the return address of the elections official in that county, and a telephone number at which a voter can obtain elections information in that county.

(3) Be included on one portion of a multipart card, to be known as a voter registration card, the other portions of which shall include information sufficient to facilitate completion and mailing of the affidavit. The affidavit portion of the multipart card shall be numbered according to regulations adopted by the Secretary of State. For purposes of facilitating the distribution of voter registration cards as provided in Section 2158, there shall be attached to the affidavit portion a receipt. The receipt shall be separated from the body of the affidavit by a perforated line.

(4) Contain, in a type size and color of ink that is clearly distinguishable from surrounding text, a statement identical or substantially similar to the following:

"Certain voters facing life-threatening situations may qualify for confidential voter status. For more information, please contact the Secretary of State's Safe At Home program or visit the Secretary of State's Web site."

(5) Contain, in a type size and color of ink that is clearly distinguishable from surrounding text, a statement that the use of voter registration information for commercial purposes is a misdemeanor pursuant to subdivision (a) of Section 2194 and Section 18109, and any suspected misuse shall be reported to the Secretary of State.

(6) Contain a toll-free fraud hotline telephone number maintained by the Secretary of State that the public may use to report suspected fraudulent activity concerning misuse of voter registration information.

(7) Be returnable to the county elections official as a self-enclosed mailer with postage prepaid by the Secretary of State.

the way the trial court was allowing various definitions of "live" and "domicile" to be introduced by the prosecution during the trial.

Because of the complexities involved in this case it took five-plus years to prosecute. This included the writs filed in the appellate court, the trial, post-conviction motions and subsequent appeal. There were also numerous pre-trial motions, including arguments over the witness list and admissible evidence.

3) Explain why you are requesting a pardon?

I experience continuing punishments because of this felony conviction. On occasion, I have had difficulty with travel because the felony appears on airline background checks. Two banks closed accounts due to the investigation and subsequent conviction. One bank actually closed an IRA account which cost me several thousand dollars in tax exposure.

I have had difficulty securing employment, as many employers simply won't consider a candidate with a felony conviction. I never realized the number of restrictions placed on individuals with felony convictions after their sentence is completed. I did not take the sentence of the Court lightly; I served the sentence the Court imposed. I resigned from the Legislature, reported to Los Angeles County Jail to serve the 90 day sentence, completed 1500 hours of community service, completed 30 months of 36 months of probation, and paid over $5,000 in fines and fees. I am not seeking to have any portion of the sentence commuted but only to have some rights of citizenship restored. I understand that a pardon does not erase the conviction.

While I am no longer serving in elective office, I am still making significant contributions to the community. My experiences in public affairs have proven to be a valuable resource. However, the felony on my record limits my ability to be of even greater service. I am over 65 years of age and only plan to work a few more years before retirement. I believe a pardon would greatly enhance my employment options.

4) Provide a brief statement explaining why you should be granted a pardon.

I have given over 30 years of public service to the people of California. I served 13 years in elected office and over 15 years as a legislative staff member in the City of Los Angeles, State of California, and the United States Congress. I personally authored numerous bills that were signed by four different governors. I provided legislative leadership to the State during the energy crisis of 2000. I continue to volunteer countless hours to community programs. My professional contributions . . . both government and the private sector span over 45 years. Despite the complexity of this case, it should be noted I was never accused of abusing my office for personal gain.

After leaving the State Senate, I taught a summer session at the University of California, Davis. I served the County of Los Angeles as a member of an advisory committee focused on how to proceed with Proposition 47 compliance. I provided technical support to the City of Los Angeles in the drafting of the "Ban the Box" ordinance. Working with public and non-profit legal services providers, I participated in organizing justice fairs where we were able to secure reductions from felonies to misdemeanors for hundreds of former felons pursuant to Proposition 47.

In the worst-case scenario, I misinterpreted the law. Clearly, there was no intent to conceal or obfuscate my residences. In hindsight, could I have done more to protect myself? Yes. However, I believe a mistake deserves a second chance. In view of my many years of public service, and the political nature of these charges, I feel a Governor's Pardon would be a fair resolution of this matter.

Mr. Zech also received a recommendation for a pardon by a majority of the justices of the Supreme Court of California, received on November 14, 2018, as required by article V, section 8 subdivision (a) of the California Constitution.

By the laws of this state it is proper that I, as Governor of the State of California, give testimony that, by completion of his sentence and good conduct in the community of his residence since his release, John Base Zech has paid his debt to society and earned a full and unconditional pardon.

THEREFORE, I, EDMUND G. BROWN JR., Governor of the State of California, by virtue of the power and authority vested in me by the Constitution and statutes of the State of California, do hereby grant to John Base Zech a full and unconditional pardon for the above offenses.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF I have hereunto set my hand and caused the Great Seal of the State of California to be affixed this 24th Day of December, 2018.

COMMUTATION OF SENTENCE

Jorge Barajas

In 2005, when Jorge Barajas was 18 years old, he committed a series of robberies. During each robbery, he accosted victims on the street at gunpoint and demanded money. No one was injured. On May 2, 2006, the Los Angeles County Superior Court sentenced Mr. Barajas to 4 years for three counts of robbery, plus a 4-year firearm enhancement and a 10-year gang enhancement – a total term of 18 years.

Mr. Barajas has now been in prison for 12 years and has worked to turn his life around. In his application for clemency, Mr. Barajas explained that he committed these crimes in an attempt to get money for drugs, and that coming to prison forced him to recognize the severity of his drug problems and seek help. He wrote, "Now I can gladly tell you that I have a good idea and life plans to follow and fulfill. These past 11 years have changed me into a positive person." Mr. Barajas got sober, stopped associating with gang members, and has shown that he regrets the decisions that brought him to prison. He said, "I make no excuses for what I did. I blame myself and take full responsibility. I'm deeply sorry for what I did."

It is clear that Mr. Barajas has improved himself and left drugs and violence behind. He has been disciplined four times in 12 years in prison. He earned his GED and is currently taking college classes to get an A.A. degree. Mr. Barajas has participated in self-help programs including Narcotics Anonymous, Understanding Relapse, Victim Impact, and Criminal and Addictive Thinking. He received vocational training and dedicated himself to Biblical studies. In 2014, a correctional counselor commended Mr. Barajas for his positive programming and educational efforts. She wrote, "He appears to be putting all his efforts into having a successful life on the outside, by doing what he can on the inside...I could only hope we had more inmates that would apply themselves and use the tools while incarcerated in prison, as Inmate Barajas does. I feel that he would be a good citizen if given the chance." Mr. Barajas has the support of his family members, who have offered him housing and help finding employment when he is released.

Based on his age at the time of this crime, his conduct in prison, and his dedication to self-improvement, I believe it is appropriate to reduce Mr. Barajas' sentence so that he can be released on parole.

THEREFORE, I, EDMUND G. BROWN JR., Governor of the State of California, by virtue of the power and authority vested in me by the Constitution and statutes of the State of California, do hereby commute the sentence of Jorge Barajas to a total of 15 years.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF I have hereunto set my hand and caused the Great Seal of the State of California to be affixed this 30th Day of March, 2018.

but myself. I needed more money to support my addictions, I made the awful mistake to take somebody else's money. My intention's was to get money to get high again, before my crime's I had a part time job as a Janitor's assistant. I lost my job due to my drug addiction. I am sorry for what I did. There is absolutely nothing that I can say or do to take back what I did. The harm is done, if there was a way to stop myself from doing it, I would do it in a instant, I regret it every day. am sorry!

At the time of my crime's I had no sense of reality and was only focused on getting money to buy more drug's. Gang's had nothing to do with my crime's. Nobody was told that it was for a benefit to a gang. Since my incarceration I've been participating in Alcoholics Anonymous and Narcotics Anonymous these classes have helped me realize that I had a serious, out of control addiction that pushed me over to do these crime's. I make no excuses for what I did. I blame myself and take full responsibility I'm deeply sorry for what I did.

I ask for a commutation/elimination of the gang enhancement sentence of 10 yrs. Because I am no longer associated to any gang, I have no gang contacts at all. I was really never a hard gang member. I am currently in a S.N.Y (sensitive, Needs, Yard) or a P.C. yard (Protective Custody).

I never had the motivation to be somebody in a gang. I believe that holding me in prison for a gang enhancement ~~hold's~~ no merit. I have no gang ties or gang affiliations or inspirations to be part of any gang.

Growing up I was more of a party guy. I was more into drugs and alcohol and girls. I never got into the gang culture or life. I partied with people I literally grew up with as kids. My crimes were actually committed to finance my drug and alcohol addictions and party habits. Gangs had nothing to do with my crimes. I regret what I did, because I lost all my youth in here and lost the chance to grow up with my brothers, if I were capable to show it, I would, but I can't. But I can prove to you that I am a rehabilitated person, please see my C. file. (prison file). I ask you to please eliminate the remainder of my 4 yrs I have left, before I parole. Am also at the age that ~~hasn't~~ re-offend. Im a mature man that will be less of a ~~pr~~ threat, burden or problem. Im almost 30 yrs old and more than likely will not re-offend at all.

I believe that I do deserve a commutation/elimination of the remaining years I have to do on the gang enhancement because I am no longer associated, affiliated to any type of gang or gang members. I've been incarcerated for more than 11 yrs of my sentence and have 4 yrs left.

I am currently housed in a S.N.Y. yard. Where people have no affiliation to any street gang or association. I requested Protective Custody several years ago, because I grew up and matured into a grown man. Reality came to me at a late time, sadly, and I repented, regretted being in mainline and seen as an associate to a street gang. Because, there was no point in it and because I finally noticed that I was taking orders and following somebody else's rules and requirements. I seen no point in it and thought of myself as an idiot for following somebody else's rules.

I also believe that I deserve an commutation/elimination of the remainder of the 4 yrs of my sentence, because I've changed, I deeply regret my past actions that landed me in prison Also, because I've earned my G.E.D. and participated in several bible study courses thru mail. and self-help courses while incarcerated. I also built and brought my family relation closer and tighter. I have a strong family support that are willing to help me out if I get out alot more sooner.

My family are also willing to be the ones to invest their own money to help me stay away from government help and to get back into school. They willing to allow me to stay at their own house and help me get a job and keep it.

Please see the letters I've attached along with this commutation form. You will see that if you release me soon they will help me get a job at Costco a corporation that actually hires felons. I have family that own their own businesses and willing to hire me. This is an opportunity I would like to ask you to help me get or allow me to get.

Also, I would like to ask you to look into my C-file and you will see that I am not violent at all. I am in a level one prison yard because CDCR did not see any reason to impose the vio on my status and because they saw that there was no violence in my criminal case. In 11 yrs I proved that I am not violent and managed to learn to control myself and use reason to solve my issues and common sense. Am allowed to get a job in the work house.

I believe that holding me in carries no merit because I am rehabilitated, I pose no threat to society or anybody in the free world. Nor do I pose a threat to myself. I have no enemies and have no intentions on pursuing a reckless life style. Am more than willing to comply and follow all laws, rules of society.

I'm actually grateful am incarcerated, I needed this because I came to acknowledge that I had an addiction to drugs and alcohol, I had no sense of reality. Now I can gladly tell you that I have a good idea and life plans set for me to follow and fulfill. These past 11 yrs have changed me into a positive person

The other reason on why I reach out to you and ask for an commutation/elimination of the remainder of my 4 yrs I have left. Is because I want to help and support my mom. My mom has been supporting me and helping me all these years and I want to give back to her with your permission. My mom and brother's mean alot to me and I want to help them out.

Mr. Governor Edmvd G. Brown Jr. I am not a threat to anybody, I am not violent and I can be civilized in a uncivilized environment. I can control myself and can use reason and common sense to solve my problem's and completely avoid using any violence. I also believe that I am a good candidate to release earlier because of my prison record and because I am a grown, matured "man".

The possibility of me committing a new crime are extremely low, I can guarantee you that it won't happen again. Im a first timer, I grew up in prison and turned into a man. Please allow me to obtain and take advantage of what my family has to offer. Allow me to help my family.

Thank you for your time and please help me out and forgive me for what I did.

Barbara Chavez

Barbara Chavez was 22 years old when she organized and participated in the robbery of a liquor store. She stood outside the store while one of her crime partners went into the store and shot the clerk multiple times, killing him. On October 22, 1999, the Kern County Superior Court sentenced Ms. Chavez to life without the possibility of parole for first degree murder plus a one-year firearm enhancement.

Ms. Chavez has now been incarcerated for almost 20 years. In her application for clemency, Ms. Chavez wrote, "I cannot go back and change the pain and loss but I do choose to now to be the best person I can be...I now consider myself an asset to society rather than the liability I once was." Ms. Chavez has been actively involved in self-help programs, including Victim Impact, Anger Management, Co-Dependent Anonymous, and Parenting. She is a Certified Peer Mentor in the Substance Abuse Program and has lived in the honor dorm. Ms. Chavez was also a domestic violence peer educator. She earned a GED and an A.A. degree, along with completing several vocational training programs.

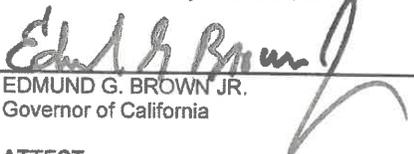

In 2016, Ms. Chavez was commended for her participation in the Women's Advisory Council. Also in 2016, a correctional lieutenant commended her for facilitating the Power of Positive Thinking workshop. A housing officer wrote, "Her growth and dedication to assisting, and mentoring others has been consistent throughout the years as she is an active, productive, inmate who is an asset to her community...It is my opinion that upon release Ms. Chavez will be successful, and an asset to society."

Given Ms. Chavez's commitment to her rehabilitation, I believe that it is appropriate to reduce her sentence so that the Board of Parole Hearings can determine whether she is ready to be paroled.

THEREFORE, I, EDMUND G. BROWN JR., Governor of the State of California, by virtue of the power and authority vested in me by the Constitution and statutes of the State of California, do hereby commute Barbara Chavez's sentence to 25 years to life.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF I have hereunto set my hand and caused the Great Seal of the State of California to be affixed this 30th Day of March, 2018.

1. Conviction Summary: No prior convictions.

Table with 4 columns: Offense(s), Date of offense(s), County of conviction(s), Sentence(s). Header: List all prior convictions, including any in other states or countries. Attach additional pages if necessary.

2. Briefly describe the circumstances of the crime(s) for which you are requesting a pardon or commutation (attach additional pages as necessary):

On the night of April 9, 1996, I was a party to an attempted robbery. We went to another city and decided to rob a specific liquor store that we were told was involved in criminal activity. We went to a family member's apartment and talked about the details and positions to be played. Later that night, before leaving town, we had the driver drop us off nearby, and we proceeded to walk towards the store. The other 2 went in the store as I remained outside as a "look out". (Cont. on next page)

3. Explain why you are requesting a pardon or commutation (attach additional pages as necessary):

I have exhausted all levels of appeal and am not aware of any other options or avenues for me in seeking the opportunity to receive a second chance. During the appeal stages I was told I had merit and the Magistrate issued an Order to show Cause, stating that I have Merit. However, after not hearing from the Attorney Generals office once the Order was given, I filed for a dismissal. The Attorney General's office responded with a new case stating I had missed the AEDPA deadline by four months in between filing in the State Courts. So now I seek mercy here. (Cont. on next pg.)

4. Provide a brief statement explaining why you should be granted a pardon or commutation (attach additional pages if necessary):

I feel as if I am the epitome of what CDCR, and Society would consider "rehabilitated". The average Inmate with a lengthy sentence rebels. Throughout my incarceration, instead of rebelling, I periodically would become depressed. I felt that my sentence was unfair and that I did not deserve an LWOP sentence due to just being a "look out". However, over time I learned to understand and accept the responsibility for what I did. (Cont. on next page)

5. If you have you paid any money or given any gift to anyone to assist in the preparation of this application, list their name, address, and amount paid or given (required by Penal Code section 4807.2):

I heard gunshots and a scream I got scared and ran to the car. The other 2 arrived to the car shortly after I, we left and headed back to town. I was in shock and afraid to know what had happened. The 2 that entered the store began arguing and I found out the store clerk was shot. None of us knew that Mr. Tomeh had died. Nearly 2 weeks later I heard from my family member that lived in Ridgecrest, Mr. Tomeh (store clerk), was in fact shot and killed. A year later, I was questioned by Ridgecrest P.D., I asked for an attorney and they arrested me. During the transportation from Barstow to Bakersfield they convinced me to give a statement. We turned around and I gave a video taped statement. I was released and rearrested 10 months later.

- Question #3 cont...

I have worked hard accepting the opportunity offered to me within the confines of prison. When I initially arrived to prison, I was told that I would never go home, that as an Inmate with a Life Without the possibility of Parole sentence, I would basically languish in prison. There is no incentive to neither excel nor achieve any sort of rehabilitation. In fact there is no measurement of an LWOP's behavior or achievements because Prisoners with an LWOP sentence do not go to the Board of Prison Hearings. Prior to prison, my youthful attitudes and selfish disregards for others blinded my view of the more important things in this life. As a result I did not consider that working with the Authorities trying to right my wrong would have benefitted me and I would have been able to accept the 15 years-Life deal that was offered to me during the Readiness Hearing prior to trial. Had I accepted the deal, my incarceration time would be much different than it is now, in the sense of a broader spectrum of programs/jobs not offered to LWOP inmates. Due to my Self determination I made a way to still accomplish most of my goals. I have three children, One Grandchild, and another Grandchild on the way; I chose to continue my education to be the best example as a mother I could. Never realizing that 15 years later I would have this opportunity to present my personal accomplishments, goals, and desires in an effort to rejoin society.

- Question #4 cont...

I became saddened in the realization of being responsible for someone losing their life. I had a choice, and I chose to be a part of a robbery that led to Mr. Tomeh losing his life! I am deeply remorseful for my criminal actions and the harm I have caused. I cannot go back and change the pain and loss but I do choose to now do everything in my power to be the best person I can be and to help as many people as I can. So I asked God for forgiveness and over time I realized there is hope and began applying for any and all programs that would assist me in becoming a better woman, mother, daughter, and eventually Grandmother. Today, I am self-confident, have healthy self-esteem and boundaries, as well as high self efficacy. I now consider myself an asset to society, vs. the liability I once was. I no longer allow others to choose me as a friend, rather I choose the company I keep. My Mother always told me that I am the company I keep. I have primarily focused on my education: having received my High School Diploma, Associate of Arts Degree and Business Certificate from Coastline Community College. I am a certified in Vocational Cosmetology, Fiber Optics/Electronics, and Office Services and Related Technology Vocational classes. I am a Certified Peer Domestic Violence Educator, Peer Health Educator, Mediator and Peace keeper, and have taken numerous self-help classes, courses, and workshops.(see enclosed documents) Recognizing that all rehabilitative needs were not being met; or offered in such a highly negative environment, I created / contributed to the creation of many programs to reach my peers, among them include: "The power of Positive Thinking"(a 3-day workshop that focused on the Law of Attraction; what we think about we bring about, exercises included Visualizing; we visualize to materialize, vision boards, Peace circles with topics such as Gratitude, Love, etc)," Peace Day" (an event derived from a racial riot in 2007. I spear headed this event in bringing all ethnicities, and cultures together for a day of Peace. This was such a success it became an annual celebration and event anticipated by a prison of 3500 + women, and recognized State wide.), "Tattoo Removal" (As a mentor, I frequently conversed with on site Parole Officers as a Liaison for the women I mentored. Tattoos prohibited the ladies from obtaining employment upon release, as well as lowered self-esteem), "Mentorship", "Networking Group" (I encouraged the residents of the Lighthouse Honor Dorm to utilize their talents and create classes to take out into the General Population. Over 30 classes were under the umbrella of the Networking Group), and "the Coalition for Cultural Awareness" (here we had seven sub-committees, European, Native American, Asian/Pacific Islanders, African American, Latina, Special events, and Newsletter. Each sub-committee had the opportunity to educate population of their specific culture in an effort to bridge the gap to one another). I know that I can be a part of a paradigm shift amongst our youth as I was a part of while incarcerated. Mentoring the younger population here has prepared me for my ultimate goal. I am confident with all the support I have in place and the skills I obtained while incarcerated, I will be a great asset to society. This is my chance to continue to make living amends in which I am passionate about and am determined to do if given the opportunity of a second chance at life and freedom.

- Question #5 cont...

However, I would like to give thanks to my bosses, Correctional Lieutenant Pimentel and Correctional Sergeant Shaffer, and peers Shelbi, Harris, and Sarah Kruzan for their input.

Danilo Frank Cortez

In 1998, 17-year-old Danilo Cortez was riding in Ruben Franco's car when they encountered a car occupied by several young men. Mr. Franco pulled up to the other car and Mr. Cortez pulled out a gun and fired it repeatedly. Yader Medina was shot twice in the head and died. Two other passengers were wounded, but survived. On September 13, 1999, the Los Angeles County Superior Court sentenced Mr. Cortez to life without the possibility of parole for first degree murder. Because the sentence originally imposed was unconstitutional, a Los Angeles Superior Court judge considered his case again in 2014 and found that Mr. Cortez was "someone who can be rehabilitated in time to have a meaningful life." On September 19, 2014, the judge sentenced Mr. Cortez to 25 years to life for first degree murder plus a 25 year to life firearm enhancement – a total term of 50 years to life with an opportunity for parole after 25 years.

Mr. Cortez has transformed his life during his 19 years in prison. He stopped associating with gang members, refrained from violence, and was disciplined just three times during nearly two decades of incarceration. He earned positive work ratings and a vocational certification, and participated in self-help programs including Criminals and Gangmembers Anonymous, Celebrate Recovery, and Nonviolent Conflict Reconciliation. He enrolled in educational courses, participated in a juvenile crime deterrent program, and assisted disabled inmates who needed help. In 2016, one of his work supervisors commended Mr. Cortez for his work ethic, applauded his "exceptional behavior and attitude towards supervisory staff as well as his inmate peers," and recommended him for future employment opportunities. Several other officers and staff members also praised Mr. Cortez for his respectful attitude and positive behavior.

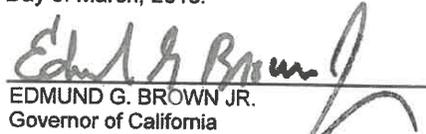

Mr. Cortez was found suitable for parole by the Board of Parole Hearings in 2016. In granting parole, the Commissioner told Mr. Cortez, "There was really nothing to connect you to any current dangerousness." The Board commended him for his lack of violence in prison and positive programming. In February 2018, a forensic psychologist evaluated Mr. Cortez and determined that his risk of future violence was low. The psychologist noted that Mr. Cortez was "genuinely remorseful" and that his "insight into the factors that led him to commit this crime is sound." Additionally, the psychologist found that Mr. Cortez has "significantly matured over time" and has "developed into a humble and generous inmate who is using his prison time to better himself and to help his fellow man."

Mr. Cortez has accepted responsibility for his actions as a teenager and has dedicated himself to self-improvement since then. His conduct in prison has been excellent, and the Board of Parole Hearings determined that he would not pose any danger if released. But without a commutation, he will remain in prison until 2022. I see no reason to continue Mr. Cortez's incarceration given the parole board's grant of parole.

THEREFORE, I, EDMUND G. BROWN JR., Governor of the State of California, by virtue of the power and authority vested in me by the Constitution and statutes of the State of California, do hereby commute the sentence of Danilo Cortez to a total of 19 years to life so he can be immediately released.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF I have hereunto set my hand and caused the Great Seal of the State of California to be affixed this 30th Day of March, 2018.

3) (Explain why you are requesting a pardon or Commutation)
- the wrongs that I committed against God, The Medina Family, my Family & against society. my hopes and dreams are to continue to live my life in The United States I finally and most humbly request if you can grant me this dream of allowing me to stay in this country that I been living in all my life. My mother migrated from Nicaragua bringing me along when I was just one year's old. I am very much afraid to go to a country that is in Central America that has been unknown to me. All my family and support network is in The United States. I have been able to reach out to transitional home where there is Juvenile Detention Program and I was accepted. Having organizations like The Anti-Raidism Coalition I can reach out to them and be part of the great work they do by contributing to society and utilizing guys like myself to mentor young men that are in the pitfalls of gangs. Thank you for allowing me to make my plea.

4) (continuous) Question number #4.

I can express is that I have worked hard to correct my criminal thinking actions and attitude. I no longer subscribe to any gang ideology. I have identified my risk factors and I worked to reduce them as well.
For the past several years I have utilize my time to ensure that I continue to live responsibly, remain law-abiding and respectful of the rights & feelings of others.

The death of Mr. Yeater Medina is not on those things that happened out of nowhere when drugs, alcohol and a teenager with a gun together. Nor was it the result of a teenage boy struggling with a toxic crisis of emotions, who and what killed Mr. Medina was me my lost of integrity, and my lack of empathy and no fore-thought.

Today I have explored and examine the magnitude of the crime to gain insight into the past and present. Through arduous effort of self-improvement & self-examination I develop the awareness to transition into a good human being with acquiring integrity, understanding, and righteous forethought. Having these principles I make the right choices for myself and society, like my family and great grand mother always imagined for me.

Being on this journey of redemption with the presence of mind of my sins that I committed as a youth, I am able to use this pain of guilt to live a life of service by mentoring "yets at risk" in the Juvenile Detention program like "We Care" that have helped me gain knowledge, wisdom, and understanding of the choices I made, as well as being a facilitator in a self-help group called "Life Cycle" and working in the past as a caregiver in a hospice program has enable me to see how I hurt other people.

I realize we are all interconnected and giving back is the greatest feeling on earth. I made a commitment to make amends for the terrible crime I committed by changing my thoughts, my belief system & my actions. I deeply regret of crushing the hopes & dreams of many families including my own. I felt ashamed with pain for many years for destroying Mr. Yader-Medina's life more so than his love ones.

I was wrong for playing God by victimizing Mr. Yader Medina, his friends, and the community itself. I hate the person I was, because I caused so many people pain.

Mr. Governor Brown, my life today is opposite of the 17 year old I was.

The feeling of remorse have been the motivation to honor the memory of Yader Medina. I have an obligation to change my life, and realizing the change & awareness are ongoing journeys - not destinations. Thank you for your previous time that allowed me to share my thoughts & feelings.

Respectfully submitted,
Danilo J. Carter

Philip Gordon

In August 1995, Philip Gordon and his wife Jill separated and filed for divorce. Later that month, Mr. Gordon broke into Jill's home, broke dishes and furniture, and left explicit messages. In October 1995, Mr. Gordon went to Jill's home with a gun. He threatened her and shot her boyfriend Michael French multiple times, seriously injuring him. On March 27, 1997, the Los Angeles County Superior Court sentenced Mr. Gordon to 33 years and 4 months to life for attempted murder, assault with a firearm, burglary, and firearm enhancements.

Notably, the victims in this case support Mr. Gordon's commutation. They wrote letters to me expressing their forgiveness of Mr. Gordon. They believe he has been sufficiently punished for his crimes. Mr. French wrote, "I have long forgiven him for his mistakes...I feel that the sentence was very extreme and ask that you consider releasing him." Mr. Gordon's commutation is also supported by his parents and other family members, who will provide him with housing and support in England, where he grew up.

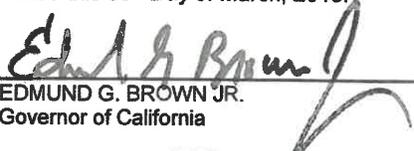

Mr. Gordon had no prior criminal history before committing this crime. An investigator from the Board of Parole Hearings who recently evaluated Mr. Gordon's case determined that he has been "a model inmate for over 15 years." He has only been disciplined twice for misconduct, has never been involved with drugs or gangs, and has earned positive work ratings. He participated in several vocational training programs and earned his GED. Mr. Gordon has been involved with multiple self-help programs including Victim Impact, Anger Management, and Domestic Violence.

Mr. Gordon committed an extremely serious crime. But I am moved by the statements of his victims, and after 22 years in prison, Mr. Gordon's continued incarceration may no longer be warranted. I believe he deserves an earlier opportunity to make his case to the Board of Parole Hearings so it can determine whether he is ready to be paroled.

THEREFORE, I, EDMUND G. BROWN JR., Governor of the State of California, by virtue of the power and authority vested in me by the Constitution and statutes of the State of California, do hereby commute the sentence of Philip Gordon to a total of 22 years to life.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF I have hereunto set my hand and caused the Great Seal of the State of California to be affixed this 30th Day of March, 2018.

Offense(s):	Date of offense(s):	County of conviction(s):	Sentence(s):
N/A

2. Briefly describe the circumstances of the crime(s) for which you are requesting a commutation (attach additional pages as necessary):

On 02-25-1997, I was found guilty of attempted murder and assault with a firearm. I was sentenced to life in prison as to the attempted murder plus 4 years for the assault. A 10 year consecutive firearm enhancement was added to each count for a total term of 33 years, 4 months to life in state prison.

3. Explain why you are requesting a commutation (attach additional pages as necessary):

I am seeking commutation of the entirety of my sentence so that I can return to England to care for my aging parents (as I am subject to deportation or, at a minimum, to have the two consecutive firearm enhancements commuted so that I may appear before the Board of Parole Hearings.

4. Provide a brief statement explaining why you should be granted a commutation (attach additional pages if necessary):

I believe a commutation should be granted based on my exemplary record of rehabilitation covering two decades of incarceration and in that the victim in my case support both commutation of my sentence and my release back into society.

5. If you have paid any money or given any gift to anyone to assist in the preparation of this application, list their name, address, and amount paid or given (required by Penal Code section 4807.2):

N/A

Following conviction on February 25, 1997, in Los Angeles County Superior Court Case No. PA021662, I was sentenced to 33 years, 4 months to life in prison, a sentence that includes two consecutive 10 year firearm enhancements. As it pertains to the specific circumstances of my crime, I am fully responsible for shooting and injuring Michael French and the resulting trauma that shooting caused both Michael, my then-wife Jill Gordon (now Jill French), my entire family, and the community. In essence, during the course of a separation and subsequent divorce, and while heavily intoxicated, I committed this terrible crime, a crime I deeply regret.

I am seeking a commutation of my sentence after two decades of incarceration in order that I may return to England to care for my aging parents, or, at a minimum, a commutation of the two consecutive, ten year firearm enhancements imposed in order that I may appear before the Board of Parole Hearings many years before I am currently scheduled to appear to accept responsibility for my actions, express my regret and remorse, and to establish my parole suitability by way of an exemplary record and by articulating that I understand who I once was, the man I am today, and the plans I have for the future, which center solely around returning to my home in England to care for my parents, just as they have long cared for me. Specifically, I could address with a Panel my efforts from the start of my incarceration to improve myself and to heal the wounds I caused in my family, beginning with the physical and emotional wounds I caused to my victims, Michael and Jill French, who have long since forgiven me and are in support of my efforts towards commutation and obtaining my eventual release from custody. I currently possess a CDCR placement score of 19 (the lowest level available for life prisoners), and have long been housed at a minimum level security facility based on my programming and rehabilitative efforts.

As to why I should be granted commutation, I, along with victims Michael and Jill French, believe that commuting or pardoning my sentence in its entirety, or at a minimum commuting the 20 years of gun enhancements, comports with what the courts have found and still holds me responsible for my life crime, a fact I believe is established by the declarations filed by Michael and Jill French in support of this application, a support and forgiveness I am truly grateful for. As a citizen of England, I am subject to deportation. Regardless, it is my desire to return and remain there to be with and care for my parents and to reintegrate into society as the productive, positive person I know I have become.

I thank you for your time and consideration of this application for commutation and hope and pray you will consider and grant my request.

Shawn Andrew Halstead

In 1993, Shawn Halstead and two friends decided to rob Edward Ahumada over a failed drug transaction. They forced Mr. Ahumada to drive to a remote area and took his gun. One of Mr. Halstead's crime partners shot Mr. Ahumada twice with a different weapon, killing him. On December 13, 1994, the Riverside County Superior Court sentenced Mr. Halstead to life without the possibility of parole for first degree murder.

Mr. Halstead has been incarcerated for almost 25 years. In his application for clemency, he explained that he has dedicated himself to serving others during his incarceration, writing, "I have served as a mentor, a tutor, assisted the church and helped other inmates. . . . I have exhibited personal growth, rehabilitation and remorse." Instead of continuing down a destructive path, Mr. Halstead has demonstrated a commitment to self-improvement and rehabilitation. He has been sober for almost two decades and has never participated in violence or gang activity while in prison. Mr. Halstead has been disciplined twice for misconduct during more than two decades in prison. He has participated in numerous self-help programs including Alcoholics Anonymous, Alternatives to Violence, Anger Management, Substance Abuse Awareness, and Conflict Resolution. Mr. Halstead earned multiple vocational certifications and worked for years in the Prison Industry Authority. He has routinely received above average to exceptional work ratings. A teacher commended him for his work with other inmates in a literacy program, writing that Mr. Halstead "has consistently demonstrated high work ethics and shows great interest in helping the students as needed." Mr. Halstead has been accepted to a transitional housing program, and his family and church community stand ready to help him upon his release from prison.

Many people sentenced to life without the possibility of parole give up hope and lose themselves in drugs, gangs, and violence. Faced with that same sentence, Mr. Halstead exhibited a commitment to rehabilitating himself and others. I acknowledge that this crime was devastating to Mr. Ahumada's family members, who have opposed clemency in this case and wrote a moving letter expressing their continuing, profound sense of loss. However, after serious consideration, I cannot discount the turnaround Mr. Halstead has made during his incarceration. I believe that it is appropriate to reduce his sentence so that the Board of Parole Hearings can determine whether he is ready to be paroled.

THEREFORE, I, EDMUND G. BROWN JR., Governor of the State of California, by virtue of the power and authority vested in me by the Constitution and statutes of the State of California, do hereby commute Shawn Halstead's sentence to 25 years to life.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF I have hereunto set my hand and caused the Great Seal of the State of California to be affixed this 30th Day of March, 2018.

1. Conviction Summary:

List all prior convictions, including any in other states or countries. Attach additional pages if necessary.
Offense(s):	Date of offense(s):	County of Conviction(s):	Sentence(s):
Murder-Special Circumstances	05/16/1993 (Age 22)	Riverside County	Life without Parole
Case CR49567 Charge PC 187

2. Briefly describe the circumstances of the crime(s) for which you are requesting a commutation:

When I was 22 years old (on 5/16/93) I, Shawn Halstead was 'present' in a murder and robbery of my best friend. The murder was committed by Esteban Nerey (documented 'shooter') in which he is convicted, incarcerated and documented as such. I was not the killer as documented.

I 'admitted' to the robbery, driven by fear; the detectives kept accusing me of this murder that I didn't commit. In my young mind I felt admitting to a robbery, would give the detectives something to stop accusing me of, murder. I also feared for my life from the shooter, Esteban Nerey. I thought he would kill me too.

In addition, the shooter Esteban Nerey's statement and testimony in court, stated 'Eddie Ahumada (victim) and myself tried to set him up'. This shows I was not conspiring with Esteban (shooter) to rob or kill Eddie (victim). Eddie was my best friend.

- Esteban Nerey committed this murder and he is convicted and serving for murder.
- I 'admitted' to a robbery under pressure, which presented LWOP.

This scenario (committed by Esteban) and my 'presence', charged me with 'Murder with Special Circumstances', presenting Life without parole!! I have served 22 ½ years.

3. Explain why you are requesting a commutation:

With the recent passing of Senate Bill 261 "The bill requires the board of Parole Hearings to conduct a Youth Offender parole hearing for offenders sentenced to state prison who committed those specified crimes when they were under 23 years of age." BUT shall NOT apply to "individuals sentenced to life in prison without the possibility of parole". This goes against the theory of the bills passing. I am an accused youth offender and not being considered because of my harsh sentencing of LWOP.

Bill 261 agreed, passed, belief and theory is:

"Existing sentencing laws ignore recent scientific evidence on adolescent development and neuroscience. Research has shown that certain areas of the brain, particularly those that affect judgment and decision-making, do not fully develop until the early 20's. The US Supreme Court stated in its 2005 Roper v. Simmons decision, "[t]he reality that juveniles still struggle to define their identity means it is less supportable to conclude that even a heinous crime committed by a juvenile is evidence of irretrievably depraved character." Moreover, the fact that young adults are still developing means that they are uniquely situated for personal growth and rehabilitation. "

Based on the SB 261 theory, why should this exclude LWOP?

In addition, during my case I was offered by the Riverside District Attorney 15 to life, I declined. Then, again offered 25 to life, I declined. It went to trial and I claimed my innocence and plead not guilty. They sentenced me to 'LIFE WITHOUT PAROLE'!!! I could have been out years ago if I would have taken the District Attorneys offer. I never thought I could get punished for a documented murder that I didn't commit, because of special circumstances.

My sentence of LWOP was severe for a murder that I didn't commit. I had unapt representation by a public defender that directed me defectively. The punishment for this is so harsh. I have served 22 ½ years already and life without parole. I was a young kid in the wrong place.

4. Provide a brief statement explaining why you should be granted a commutation:

I have demonstrated exemplary behavior following my conviction. I have served as a mentor, a tutor, assisted the church and helped other inmates and try to ease this prison environment in a positive manner. I have exercised all positive steps while incarcerated in prison for these 22 ½ years. I have exhibited personal growth, rehabilitation and remorse. I have maintained a good record while incarcerated and never had a criminal record before this horrific incident.

See attached, 'partial' list and supporting docs of my successes and references I've received over the years. NA, AA, Anger Management, Associates in Biblical Studies working on Bachelors, 12 step programs, self-help programs. Not for a reward, but for personal growth and to personally survive all these years in this prison. I continue to stay positive and optimistic in this prison cell hell in hopes that the system will once work and God will help me.

COMMUTATION OF SENTENCE

Natalie Lynn Jaspar

Natalie Jaspar and Thomas Hines were in a relationship with a history of domestic violence. On October 3, 1998, Mr. Hines and Ms. Jaspar were forced to move out of their home when an argument erupted. Ms. Jaspar threw a motorcycle helmet at Mr. Hines, who reportedly then hit and kicked Ms. Jaspar and threw her to the floor. Ms. Jaspar retrieved a gun and shot Mr. Hines once, killing him. On April 7, 2000, the Stanislaus County Superior Court sentenced Ms. Jaspar to 15 years to life for second degree murder and 25 years to life for a firearm enhancement – a total term of 40 years to life.

Ms. Jaspar suffered from years of physical and psychological abuse at the hands of Mr. Hines. A psychological evaluation noted that the "violence experienced by [Ms. Jaspar] has been extensive and pervasive," detailing physical and psychological abuse perpetrated by Mr. Hines towards Ms. Jaspar. A number of Ms. Jaspar's friends and neighbors described numerous injuries Ms. Jaspar received, including bruises, black eyes, welts, swollen lips, knots on her head, and missing hair. One witness testified that she overheard Mr. Hines threaten to kill Ms. Jaspar if she did not recant a police report of domestic violence she filed.

Since her incarceration 19 years ago, Ms. Jaspar has engaged in significant self-help, including myriad classes to address the factors that led to her commitment offense. She has participated in Domestic Violence, Self Esteem, Helping Women Recover, Anger Management, and Victim Awareness, among others. Ms. Jaspar had no criminal record prior to this offense and has not been disciplined for any misconduct in prison. She dedicated herself to self-help and rehabilitation, acting as a peer health educator, a hospice volunteer, and a certified grief counselor. Ms. Jaspar has also become a leader, facilitating various self-help classes and serving in leadership roles in the Long Termers Organization and the Women's Advisory Council.

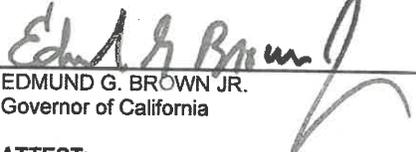

Ms. Jaspar has earned the respect of correctional staff. In 2017, her warden at the Central California Women's Facility recommended her for clemency. A supervisor, a captain, and a retired chief deputy warden all commended Ms. Jaspar for serving as a role model within the prison. A captain wrote that Jaspar has grown "into a leader in the prison community" who "is a positive influence, a motivator, a problem-solver, [and] task-driven. . . ." A correctional lieutenant wrote that Ms. Jaspar "exhibits an exceptional work ethic and is resourceful, caring, and extremely efficient in her job duties." A staff sponsor for the Long Termers Organization wrote in 2017 that Ms. Jaspar is "efficient, organized, energetic, and helpful," and has "maintained an excellent relationship with staff and inmates. . . ."

Several of Mr. Hines's family members have expressed opposition to clemency, and I have read their heartfelt letters. While the profound impact of Ms. Jaspar's crime cannot be erased, I have carefully weighed the evidence. Ms. Jaspar's conduct in prison has been exemplary, and she has taken advantage of many programs to improve herself. I believe she deserves an earlier opportunity to make her case to the Board of Parole Hearings so it can determine whether she is ready to be paroled.

THEREFORE, I, EDMUND G. BROWN JR., Governor of the State of California, by virtue of the power and authority vested in me by the Constitution and statutes of the State of California, do hereby commute the sentence of Natalie Jaspar to a total of 20 years to life.

Application for Commutation of Sentence (attachment Question #2)

Briefly describe the circumstances of the crime(s) for which you are requesting a commutation.

I, Natalie L. Jaspar, killed my boyfriend, Thomas E. Hines, on October 3, 1998 after years of physical and psychological abuse. On the day of my arrest, we were in the process of being evicted-unable to pay the rent. Thomas came to move more of his belongings to Riverbank. I was packing my belongings to move to our old neighbor's new house, The Chavez's property in Turlock. Thomas' friend, James Cagle, was with him. An argument started over a motorcycle helmet that didn't belong to either one of us. I threw the helmet out the back door at him and it hit him. Thomas barged through the back door, grabbed me by the back of the head and threw me to the kitchen floor. He grabbed my hair ramming my head into the kitchen cabinets. He kicked me in my stomach and called me a fat, pig, bitch. After I picked myself up off the kitchen floor, I loaded my 22 single shot rifle and shot it out the back door to scare him away. I slammed the door, reloaded the rifle to fire another round to scare him off when James Cagle said, "You hit him!" I said, "Good!" I thought they were messing with me. James said, "No, you really hit him!" I ran down the road to the neighbor's house pounding on the door to call 911. I told them I shot Thomas and I think I killed him. I ran back to our house and in shock, started CPR until the police and medical arrived. I had shot out the back door at Thomas 2 weeks prior to that day after he beat me up and he stayed gone for 2 weeks.

Explain why you are requesting a commutation.

I am requesting commutation because it is my prayer to show accountability, maturity, and rehabilitation to earn a second chance outside of prison. I am, and have developed into the woman I was created to be. I am a changed person who values life and always striving to be the best person within my community that I can be. I have stayed involved as an active participant and leader in my community, a valued worker, a self help group participant and facilitator, and a model citizen in prison with many productive talents. I am a role model and I have committed myself to living a life of service and rehabilitation. I have remained disciplinary-free my entire time of incarceration and I currently live in the Honor Dorm. It is my prayer to be afforded the opportunity to serve the outside community and give of myself in the same way. I live a life of love and integrity, truly living a life of amends to Thomas, so that his death will not be in vain.

As a battered woman and a first-time offender, I was sentenced to 15 years to Life for second degree murder, and 25 years to life for a gun enhancement; a total of 40 years to life. I have no prior criminal history. Other than my offense, I have never been a dangerous or angry person.

At the time of my trial in 1999, I don't feel the general public knew enough about Battered Women's Syndrome, which is now recognized as Intimate Partner Battering and its effects. At my trial I had many witnesses testify to the abuse, they saw Thomas hitting me and I was always seen with bruises and marks on my face, arms and body. I had an expert witness on Battered Women's Syndrome – Linda Barnard, PhD, and a defense attorney, Kirk McAllister. The jury, to my recollection, understood clearly that I was in a toxic and abusive relationship; but they did not receive clear and thorough information on the mental condition of women in battering relationships and why women stay. At the time of my arrest I didn't know anything about Battered Women's Syndrome or understand how I allowed this relationship to get out of control, nor did I understand why I stayed. Today, I understand why. I took advantage of every bit of self help and rehabilitation I could so that I could change and heal. I learned and understand why I was the way I was during my relationship with Thomas, who I was before my relationship with Thomas; and who I am now.

I was not able to represent myself well before the jury or the court answering the questions as I was not mentally in my right mind. I was traumatized from the years of abuse, and that I killed my boyfriend and on trial for murder facing a life sentence. It has taken years of self help groups and therapy in prison for me to understand about battering and its effects and why women get into these types of relationships and stay.

I am totally responsible for murdering Thomas as it was my choice to stay in a dangerous relationship, and pick up the gun that day and fire it in his direction. I deserve to pay for my crime and for being responsible for taking a person's life. I deserve some sort of Life sentence. I should have to sit before the Board to have them determine whether I am sufficiently rehabilitated and longer a threat to anyone. I am requesting the mercy of you to lessen my Life sentence to afford me the opportunity to appear before the Board at an earlier date.

Application for Commutation of Sentence (attachment Question #4)

Provide a brief statement explaining why you should be granted a commutation.

I am asking to be granted a commutation based on my rehabilitation and the fact that I am not the person I used to be. I am a battered woman, a first-time offender with no prior criminal history, and I am asking for a lesser sentence to appear before the Board. I have grown into a responsible woman who is confident, trustworthy, and makes good and healthy decisions. I have remained a model inmate with no disciplinary infractions. I am accountable for my offense and have knowledge and insight into why I stayed in an unhealthy and dangerous relationship. I have healthy boundaries. I live a life of amends to Thomas and the many victims as a result of my crime by taking ownership of my crime and holding myself completely accountable. I live a life of amends by being a productive citizen and leader within the prison community; by continuing my self help, by facilitating self help groups and helping others through my experiences.

From the first month of my prison incarceration in 2000 I set out to get help in every area that I could find in prison to be the woman God intended me to be. In 2000, this prison had very limited self help groups so I placed my focus in education and completed Vocation Electronics and Vocation Office Services. In 2004, I went to work in the Law Library as a clerk, and from there I worked as a maintenance mechanic in Plant Operations where I learned to weld. In 2008, I started grief/trauma therapy with a psychiatrist, Ms. Heron, and many self help groups began opening up. I reached out to get help to heal, grow, and to find out what was wrong with me that caused me to stay in a relationship that I knew was unhealthy and dangerous. (Attached is an Index of Self Help Groups and Accomplishments) I became a better person who is healthy in mind, body and soul; not only for me, but for Thomas, my family and friends, Thomas' family and friends, and so many people who are also victims affected by my crime. I am a Peer Health Educator (Basic Infectious Disease) , a Comfort Care Volunteer for the women housed in the Skilled Nursing Facility; I am a certified Grief Counselor; I served as the Facility Chairperson, Executive Body Vice Chairperson and Chairperson for the Women's Advisory Council for a total of 8 years; and I served as the Secretary for the Long Termers' Organization for 6 years. I am currently the Clerk for the Community Resources Manager who oversees all self help groups, Inmate Leisure Time Activity Groups, Fundraisers and Staff Sponsors. I also serve as a liaison for both Honor Dorms. A major pivotal point in my life of insight and healing came in 2013 through the A.W.A.R.E Restorative Justice Program and Victim Impact Awareness Program. It was then I came to truly understand my responsibility in my crime and how my past connected to who I was at the time of my relationship with Thomas. I have remained dedicated to my self help and on the positive path of rehabilitation. I have facilitated self help groups throughout the institution regarding Helping Women Recover, Domestic Violence, A.W.A.R.E. Accountability and Restoration, and a series of self help groups and workshops pertaining to Attitudes, Behaviors, Healthy/Unhealthy Relationships, and Self-Esteem. I am currently facilitating Domestic Violence self help groups and workshops with a wonderful group of women.

I pray to be granted a commutation so I can appear before the Board at an earlier date to afford me the opportunity to show accountability, maturity, and rehabilitation so that I may have a second chance. I will continue my service to the outside community and believe I have a lot to offer others in need through my life experiences. I have included realistic parole plans and letters from a strong support system upon my release.

Claudell Earl Martin

In 1978, Claudell Martin was high and tried to reclaim a drug debt from Mitchell Cory. Mr. Martin and his wife confronted Mr. Cory at his home and shot and killed him. Either Mr. Martin or his wife then shot and killed Mr. Cory's girlfriend Carmen Daniels. On January 4, 1980, the Los Angeles County Superior Court sentenced Mr. Martin to life without the possibility of parole for first degree murder.

Mr. Martin first tried drugs when he was in the third grade, and reported that he used a variety of drugs in the years before this crime. His parents sent him out of state to be raised by other family members, and he grew up surrounded by drug and alcohol abusers. Despite receiving a sentence that carried no possibility of parole, Mr. Martin stopped using drugs, devoted himself to self-improvement, and worked hard to become a role model for others in prison. In his application for clemency, he wrote, "I live to give hope to those who can't find in themselves to press on. I want to show every young man, you don't have to make my mistake; use me as your example."

He has now been incarcerated for almost 40 years and is 63 years old. He has not been disciplined for misconduct since 2001 and has never been involved with gangs or violence in prison. He has been involved in his faith for many years and has participated in self-help programs, including Alcoholics Anonymous and Anger Management. Mr. Martin could not read or write when he came to prison, but has since earned his GED and several vocational certifications. He currently works as a caregiver, providing services to elderly and infirm inmates. His correctional counselor reports that he is very respectful, has positive relationships with staff members, and works hard to care for his peers with disabilities. In the event of his release, Mr. Martin plans to live in transitional housing and support himself with his skills in upholstery and industrial drafting.

Mr. Martin had a serious drug addiction and committed a brutal crime. However, he has been sober and nonviolent for many years, and has dedicated himself to his rehabilitation. For these reasons, I believe that it is appropriate to reduce his sentence so that the Board of Parole Hearings can determine whether he is ready to be paroled.

THEREFORE, I, EDMUND G. BROWN JR., Governor of the State of California, by virtue of the power and authority vested in me by the Constitution and statutes of the State of California, do hereby commute the sentence of Claudell Martin to a total of 40 years to life.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF I have hereunto set my hand and caused the Great Seal of the State of California to be affixed this 30th Day of March, 2018.

EDMUND G. BROWN JR.

5. and those charges were later amended to include "special circumstance"
6. within the meaning of P.C. §190.2. Petitioner went to trial and was
7. found guilty on or about November 8, 1979. On or about January 4, 1980,
8. Petitioner was sentence to a term of 15 years to life, to run concurrent
9. with a sentence of life without the possibility of parole. Petitioner
10. then file a timely notice of appeal. The Appeal was filed and the result:
11. Judgment was affirmed on or about April 7, 1981. Petitioner then filed his
12. petition for review in the California State Supreme court; On or about
13. June 3, 1981, that court gave a post card denial. since that time Petiti-
14. oner has filed a few habeas corpus, but to no avail.

16. PROSECUTION THEORY

17. B.

18. Prosecution's theory of the case, was that Petitioner and his wife

20. stereo by any means necessary; that he and the victim cory had an argument
21. and that Petitioner shot Cory, Thus, that he or his wife also shot Carmen,
22. and that her killing was to silence her from telling about the killing of
23. Cory.

4. Honorable Gordon Ringer, Judge presiding, found Petitioner guilty of both
5. counts and sentence his to prison for the term of life without the possi-
6. bility of parole. (See, Abstract of Judgment, Ex. E.).

DEPARTMENTAL HISTORY

9. D.

10. — Petitioner is a first term inmate, received into the California
11. Department of Correction and Rehabilitation on 1-15-1980. Petitioner has
12. now been incarcerated for thirty-five (35) years. The Departmental records
13. indicate Petitioner has shown amenable conduct. (See, supportive documents
14. Ex. A-D) These documents demonstrate Petitioner's "exemplary record.

15. In 1992, after approximately twelve years after being in prison,
16. Petitioner became eligible for "Clemency". A hearing was held by BPT Deputy
17. Commissioner Connolly; After review of all the factors, Commissioner Connolly
18. found that Petitioner had not did enough time for two murder; thus, that
19. an extraordinary rehabilitation was not present. However, Commissioner
20. Connolly and the panel, did find Petitioner showed remorse, and appeared
21. to have matured and improved. (See, Ex.A) Also, key evidence relied on at
22. that hearing was a Psychiatric report. Senior Psychiatrist Marjorie
23. Tavoularis, M.D.; stating: "this man appears to have matured a greate deal
24. during his years in prison. I assess his impulse control to be better than
25. average for this inmate population, and his potential for violence to be
26. below average for this inmate population. His programing was in order and
27. he is motivated by an internal drive rather than pleasing the external
28. environment. He is likely to maintain gains in the absence of prison 29.

1. walls. (See, Ex. B.). On or about 3-17-1992, Commissioner Connolly,
2. denied Petitioner to have the Governor to consider his case for "clemency"
3. and rescheduled Petitioner to reviewed again in three (3) years, which
4. would have been in 1995. However, in 1994, the then Governor Pete Wilson,
5. discontinued first termers' hearings under CDCR § 2817.

REASONS FOR GRANTING CLEMENCY

8. E.

9. I, Claudell earl Martin, except full responsibility for all my
10. past wrong doings, especially the killing of Cory and Carmen. I under-
11. stand the hurt and pain I've caused their families and friends; Thus, that
12. no amount of rehabilitation can undue this. However, Petitioner Martin,
13. ask the Governor Jerry Brown, to keep in mind that when inmates are given
14. the sentence of life without the possibility of parole; The judge or jury
15. has found there are redeeming qualities, especially if the preson was as
16. young as Mr. Martin, was when he committed his crimes. Therefore, it is
17. understood that in some rare cases inmates like Mr. Martin, who have shown
18. considerable rehabilitation, and has never been given a second chance,
19. should be given that chance. California has always be a forgiving state.
20. However, Mr. Martin, believe very strongly the Governor has more to assure
21. himself about giving a second chance in this case. i.e. Martin, submit
22. his life is guided by the Holy Spirit, and that he is nothing without
23. Jesus Christ as the head of his life. I live to give hope to those who
24. can't find in themself to press on. I want to show every young man, you
25. don't have to make my mistake; use me as your example. I want to let them
26. know the resources I found available to me in puting my faith in Jesus
27. Christ. We as a society need to begin taking a good look at some of the
28. young men who have been there, and have now made those changes and want

1. to help young men make their life's better. I believe young mis-guided
2. youth can relate to my story and choose to make a change before it's
3. to late. I say to you Governor, Senior Psychiatrist Marjorie Tavoularis,
4. made it clear in her 1992, report; "that he is likely to maintain gains
5. in the absence of prison walls". Inmate Martin has demonstrated from 1992
6. until now, some twenty years later this is true, he can maintain long
7. term goals. The DRB, also commended him on once given the opportunity
8. to program on a level III yard; inmate Martin, maintained a positive
9. program and remain disciplinary free, and commended him on his rehabili-
10. tive efforts. (see, Ex. B-C)

11.

12. For the above reasons in this petition I pray
13. the Governor will consider and grant this peti-
14. tion for "clemency".

Tyrone Mayorga

In March 2006, Tyrone Mayorga was 16 years old and a gang member. On March 18th, Mr. Mayorga and Alex Murillo confronted Francisco Neri regarding his gang affiliation. Mr. Mayorga and Mr. Murillo drew guns from their waistbands and shot Mr. Neri as he attempted to run away. Mr. Neri survived his injuries. On April 18, 2008, the Los Angeles County Superior Court sentenced Mr. Mayorga to 9 years for attempted murder plus a 10-year firearm enhancement and a 2-year gang enhancement – a total term of 21 years.

Mr. Mayorga has been incarcerated for 12 years. He has committed himself to his rehabilitation through his immediate disassociation from gangs and his dedication to self-improvement. In his commutation application, Mr. Mayorga described how he has "reflected on my mistakes and wrong doings" and "learned from this experience." He wrote, "I know I will be a positive influence for the people in need. . . ." He told an investigator that he applied for a commutation because he has deep remorse for the victim and has much to offer as a productive member of society.

Since his incarceration, Mr. Mayorga has been disciplined for serious misconduct only once. He earned his GED and is currently taking college classes. He has completed vocational training in office services, welding, and carpentry. Mr. Mayorga participated in self-help programs, including Celebrate Recovery, Alternatives to Violence, and Criminals and Gangmembers Anonymous. A sponsor of Criminal and Gangmembers Anonymous wrote that Mr. Mayorga "has effectively communicated with the group and has encouraged individuals to benefit from the steps. He has been a reliable person and his attitude and participation are commended." A staff member commended Mr. Mayorga for his attitude, stating that he, "gets along well with staff and inmates alike," and "has demonstrated initiative, responsibility, professionalism, and has proven himself to be an exceptional programmer." Mr. Mayorga has a plan for his life after being released from prison that includes guaranteed housing, therapy, and a scholarship to continue his education.

I acknowledge that Mr. Mayorga was an active participant in a very serious crime. However, he was only 16 years old at the time and vulnerable to the influence of gangs. Since that time, Mr. Mayorga has disavowed any gang association and focused on his rehabilitation. As a result, he has earned an opportunity to appear before the Board of Parole Hearings so that it can determine whether he is ready to be paroled.

THEREFORE, I, EDMUND G. BROWN JR., Governor of the State of California, by virtue of the power and authority vested in me by the Constitution and statutes of the State of California, do hereby commute the sentence of Tyrone Mayorga to make him immediately eligible for a parole hearing.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF I have hereunto set my hand and caused the Great Seal of the State of California to be affixed this 30th Day of March, 2018.

Tyrone Mayorga
Application for Commutation

On March 18th, I Tyrone Mayorga was with my brother Derek Mayorga helping our Father Louis M. on a welding project of his in a home in Orange County, but in that morning the project site was closed so we headed back home. Back home after unloading some of my father's tools I went out to walk the dog as I do every morning.

Later that afternoon a friend comes by my home to ask me to hang out with a group of friends a block away. I told him yes and walked to my friends and hung outside his home. A little time later Alex Morillo came by and decided to stay for he was considered a friend, but a little older and drinking. A little time later I told all my friends I was going to head out to Leo's house for he was expecting me. Alex ask to tag along for he also new Leo, but ask me to wait for he needed to do something at home first, the came back moments later as we headed out to Leo's.

Half way to Leo's house Alex pulled me to a deserted street where I was threatened to hold a gun of his and to do what I was told by him for he also had another gun for himself. I grabbed the gun out of fear. We still headed to Leo's house until Alex saw one of his enemies. We walked where he saw the guy who's name is Francisco Neri. By the time we got there he was gone, when we were heading back Francisco Neri came out from a home and then Alex confronted him. Alex and Francisco were arguing and moments later Alex told me to shoot Francisco as he was pointing his gun towards me so I did out of fear. Francisco was shot one time in the buttocks and ran away to safety. Alex shot his gun as Francisco ran away. Moments later Alex told me to start walking. Couple blocks later we heard the police sirens Alex and I ran to a little street away from the main street, there he saw a dumpster where he stashed his gun and the one I carried. Moments later the police stopped us and arrested both of us and was taken to Francisco Neri to identify me and Alex.

I ask this request to be granted for a second chance in life. I was 16 years old when the crime was committed and felt so much guilt and remorse for what I have done. I reflected on my mistakes and wrong doings to positive deeds. I could say I've learned from this experience and made better one's for my future. I never got in trouble when I was in the halls, but worked my way to earning a GED and credits in a college program now in vocational welding in prison as I want to make it my career for the day I get out. I'm surrounded by positive people in my life that I love and care as I know I will be a positive influence for the people in need and for the future society.

COMMUTATION OF SENTENCE

Ferrari Moody

On March 15, 2003, David Thomas, who was engaged to Ferrari Moody's mother, punched Mr. Moody's cousin during an altercation, and Mr. Moody told Mr. Thomas to stay away from his cousin. A short time later, Mr. Moody's mother told him that Mr. Thomas and two other men were looking for him and were armed. On March 16, 2003, Mr. Moody saw Mr. Thomas approaching his cousin and intervened, which started a fight. During the fight, Mr. Thomas punched Mr. Moody. Mr. Moody pulled out a revolver and shot Mr. Thomas in the calf and abdomen, killing him. On February 4, 2004, the Los Angeles County Superior Court sentenced Mr. Moody to 15 years to life for second degree murder and 25 years to life for a firearm enhancement – a total term of 40 years to life.

In prison, Mr. Moody has dedicated his time and energy to self-improvement, avoiding any gang activity, furthering his education, and pursuing vocational training. He has never been disciplined for misconduct while incarcerated. He earned his GED, a business literacy certificate, and a diploma in Christian ministries. He has completed vocational training in addiction recovery counseling and office services. Mr. Moody participated in self-help programs, in a San Quentin News forum with prosecutors, and a forum with elected officials about public safety.

Mr. Moody has earned the respect of correctional staff. A correctional officer with 34 years of service wrote in 2017, "I can safely say this is a man of growth." Another wrote, "[I]t is clear that [Mr. Moody] takes full responsibility for these decisions and he understands the impact that his crimes have had on both his victims and the community." An additional correctional officer wrote, "I can personally bear witness that Inmate Moody is a changed man. . . . Inmate Moody has the skills needed to be a productive, beneficial and responsible citizen to society, and his family members if parole is granted." In 2017, a self-help sponsor wrote, "Mr. Ferrari Moody is a rare gem who has a lot of good work ahead of him when released."

Mr. Moody has been incarcerated for almost 15 years and told an investigator that he is not the same young man who was angry and fearful. He understands it is his social responsibility to give back and be a positive influence in his community. Mr. Moody has distinguished himself through his self-improvement and exemplary prison conduct. For all of these reasons, I believe that Mr. Moody deserves an earlier opportunity to make his case to the Board of Parole Hearings so it can determine whether he is ready to be paroled.

THEREFORE, I, EDMUND G. BROWN JR., Governor of the State of California, by virtue of the power and authority vested in me by the Constitution and statutes of the State of California, do hereby commute the sentence of Ferrari Moody to a total of 15 years to life.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF I have hereunto set my hand and caused the Great Seal of the State of California to be affixed this 30th Day of March, 2018.

2. Response:

At the time of the crime, I (Ferrari Moody) was 20 years old, unable to manage my emotions, and unaware of the issues that caused me to feel insecure, powerless, worthless, and unloved. I grew up in a single parent home, and my mother was addicted to drugs, but being too young to understand her addiction, I attributed her frequent absenteeism to the men that I saw her with before falling asleep, only to wake up alone. I learned early how to alienate myself from having to feel those intense emotions, and my inability to skillfully process those emotions manifested on March 16, 2003, when I chose to shoot and kill Mr. David Thomas who was my mother's fiancé. David and I had a number of verbal altercations and the last one was on March 15, a day before I killed him. David beat my cousin Paul up over a card game (poker), later that night, Paul went to David's grandmother's house, armed with a gun, looking for him. When David was told that Paul was looking for him, he came to my house in the hopes to address Paul who wasn't there, and we got into a heated argument. My mother called me about an hour later and told me that David was riding around the neighborhood with two men armed with guns looking for me. I immediately called my friend Kenyon Vasser who gave me a .38 revolver, and that night I slept at a friend's house who stayed about seven houses from me. On March 16, 2003, (my friend) Brandon Black and I were watching T.V., when we decided to walk to the store for some goodies, which was about 10 houses away. I armed myself with the .38 revolver and we left the house. As I walked through the front gate, I saw David driving slowly towards us on the wrong side of the street. Suddenly, he stopped in front of my cousin Paul's house, left his truck double parked in the middle of the street and got out. Paul stood in the driveway, David walked towards Paul as he back paddled. Brandon and I approached, I yelled, "What's up man, why are you tripping?" David turned, walked towards me and stated, "This don't have nothing to do with you, I mess with your mother." I replied, "So what?" This is my family." Before I could finish the sentence, David punched me in the face and head. I drew the .38 and started firing. David turned and ran towards the front of the truck. I fired six shots, emptying the gun and then ran into my house. I put on a T-shirt and then ran and hid at another friend's house.

My Mother drove David to the hospital, where he underwent surgery. I shot David twice, one bullet grazed his calf and the other bullet lodged into his lower abdomen causing sever complications. David died about 2 ½ hours later.

I used the facts of David beating up my cousin, verbally threatening me, and punching me in the face, all as means to justify me victimizing him, but in reality, the truth of the matter is that, my choice to shoot and kill David on March 16, 2003 was only the physical manifestations of a choice that I had made in my mind and heart years before, that generated from hurt, fear, and envy. I was hurt because I felt like my mother chose him over me, I had a fear of being abandoned by her again, and I envied the relationship he had with her.

3. Response:

I am requesting a commutation of my sentence due to the changes in law set forth in sec.4801(a) of Senate Bill 261. Before SB-261, I didn't have this chance, so, I elected to enter this petition based on the work and improvements I've made in regards to my rehabilitation. Other factors that should be taken into consideration is that my trial Judge, the Honorable Judge Allen J. Webster voiced regret during my sentencing hearing for the fact that the law (at the time) obligated him to impose the 40yrs to life sentence, due to the gun enhancement and mandatory sentencing. He said he had to give me the sentence because his hands were tied by the law, but If I come to prison and did what I was supposed to do, I'd be home before I turn 40 yrs. old. To commute my sentence now would coincide with SB-620, which now gives judge's discretion not to impose gun enhancement terms. Currently I am eligible for youth parole in 2027, my minimum parole date is 2036, and my maximum parole date is 2043. I am a first term offender and I have had no violent criminal history before my current crime which has become the worst mistake of my life.

I'm approaching the 15th year of my incarceration, in which I haven't received any 115 rule violations. I have a god rapport with inmates of all races as well as staff, and I'm committed to being a productive and influential member of society. I've been given the privilege to be a part of the Graced-Out youth Ministry Program at San Quentin Garden Chapel. Graced-Out mentors young men both inside and outside of prison, offering the different resources, depending on their needs, giving them a better view of positive thinking, and helping them become better human beings. I've dedicated my life unto the service of others both inside and outside of prison. I'm currently n training to become a domestic violence counselor and crisis intervention counselor. I repented, surrendered my life to God, through Christ Jesus, and was baptized, July 4th, 2004 at Calipatria state prison. I became a licensed Minister with the American Evangelical Churches in 2015, and I've been preaching, teaching, and most importantly living God's Word without compromise. I've also participated in various rehabilitation programs for 9 years. I've obtained my high school equivalence certificate (G.E.D. 2008), a certificate of Business Literacy (Palo Verde College, 2010), a CLD-Diploma in Ministry (Golden Gate Baptist Theological Seminary, 2013), a CLD-Diploma in Theology (Golden Gate Baptist Theological Seminary, 2015), and I am currently (6) six units from obtaining an Associate's Degree in Business (CoastLine Community College). I've completed and obtained training in the Office Services and related Technology program Level 1-3 which taught me Job Preparation, and knowledge of utilizing computer software such as Microsoft Word, Excel, Power Point, and Access. My current vocation is in Building Apartment Maintenance where I'm learning Construction; Distance Measurement; Leveling; Placing Concrete; Masonry; Roofing; Exterior Finishing; Electrical; Pipe Fitting, and Vent Systems. I've also completed various Self-Help groups such as G.R.I.P. (Guiding Rage into Power), an offender accountability program which has taught me emotional intelligence, awareness of my sensations, feelings, thoughts, and actions in the midst of conflict which allows me to make informed decisions and respond to situations maturely, rather than making an impulsive reaction. G.R.I.P. also has helped me to identify both the causative and contributing factors that lead to my prior criminal thinking, and negative behavior, by revisiting traumatic events from my past, recognizing how those events have shaped me, and how to deal with the triggers that cause emotions to surface from those painful events. I've also completed groups such as V.O.E.G. (Victims Offender Education Group), and No More Tears, which made me aware of the impact and the ripple affect that my negative behavior had, not only on David and his family, but on society as a whole. I've completed A.R.C. (Addiction Recovery Counseling), C.G.A. (Criminal and Gang Anonymous), NA/AA, Criminon, Life Cycle, Anger Management and Conflict Resolution, Project Choice, Kairos, Malachi Dads, the Positive Parenting Program, and I'm determined to take all that I'm learning from this experience and give back, in order to strengthen community ties, increase public safety, and be of service unto others.

4. Response:

Granting me a commutation would not only be safe in regards to public safety, it would also be a benefit to the community where I return. My rehabilitation has gone beyond correcting the negative beliefs and behaviors of my youth when I made the decision to shot and kill David Thomas. I'm not the same fearful, confused, angry young man who based his worth upon outward esteem, but today, I'm a totally different person with new healthy beliefs, values, and principals that are conducive to building and maintaining the moral structure of society. My spiritual principals and foundation has shaped my character in such a way that not only changed my behavior, but also changed my heart. So not only do I now have the ability to love instead of hate, forgive instead of resent, be humble instead of proud, selfless instead of selfish, faithful instead of faithless, but I've also developed the willingness and openness to allow people with similar characteristics to teach my how to identify and remedy the character defects that led me to victimize and hurt people. It is safe to commute my sentence because I now have the tools that will ensure and help keep me from committing another crime. I've developed the ability to manage and regulate my emotions in ways that are helpful for myself and beneficial for others. I now have the capability to control my anger which affords me the ability to respond instead of react in the midst of conflict or challenging situations. I'm committed to being a productive member of society and I'm deeply aware of the factors that caused and contributed to my criminal thinking and behavior, and I'm dedicated to employing the psychological, social, and emotional tools that I've learned and developed in order to neutralize that thinking and those behaviors.

The commutation is also safe because not only am I deeply sorry for murdering David Thomas, but I vow to live the rest of my days making amends and redeeming David's death through my actions and lifestyle. Because of my selfishness, I violated David's God given right to live and I robbed him of the chance to maximize his potential on earth. His possibilities to love, learn, grow, to succeed in life, to witness his six children and all those who he loved celebrate special moments, were cut short because of me, and David didn't deserve to be shot dead in the streets.

I deprived his kids Mother, Andrea McCarey, his parents Mr. and Mrs Jackson, his biological father Johnny Ray, each of his kids, his siblings, and all of his family members and friends of the chance for advancement in life with someone who meant the world to them, and I can only imagine the pain and trauma caused by the stupidity of my senseless actions upon all those effected. Because of me, so many lives were forever changed, and possibly ruined. My decision to shoot and kill David stays at the forefront of my mind, and it motivates me to live on purpose daily, while never losing sight of the preciousness of life again.

COMMUTATION OF SENTENCE

Quincy Darnell Robertson

On December 27, 1998, Quincy Robertson heard a noise outside his apartment, retrieved his handgun, and went outside to investigate. Mr. Robertson saw Rick Harris and Khinde Riley taking the hubcaps off his car and fired shots at them. As Mr. Harris and Mr. Riley fled, Mr. Robertson fired several more shots, hitting Mr. Harris in the foot and Mr. Riley in the back of the head, killing him. On May 17, 2001, the Alameda County Superior Court sentenced Mr. Robertson to 15 years to life for second degree murder and 25 years to life for a firearm enhancement – a total term of 40 years to life.

Judge Julie Conger, who presided over Mr. Robertson's trial, "wholeheartedly" recommended clemency for Mr. Robertson. She wrote that Mr. Robertson's case haunted her because she felt that he received an unjust sentence and "shot the would-be burglars in a moment of panic and fear for his family's safety." Judge Conger noted that "the inherent inflexibility in the law can lead to terribly unfair results in particular cases," and that "correcting the inequity that was done by commuting Mr. Robertson's sentence is the state's last chance to bring about substantive justice in Mr. Robertson's case." She urged clemency as an "opportunity to show mercy to Mr. Robertson, and, through mercy, mend an awful tear in the fabric of our criminal justice system."

Mr. Robertson has accepted responsibility for his actions and expressed remorse. Prior to this incident, Mr. Robertson had no criminal history, and he has not been disciplined for any serious misconduct in almost two decades of incarceration. He has avoided gangs, drugs, and violence in prison. Mr. Robertson has earned above-average to exceptional work ratings from his supervisors. A correctional supervisor commended Mr. Robertson in 2017 on his work ethic and stated that he "has demonstrated nothing but pure respect and class to all the staff and his fellow workers." Another correctional supervisor praised Mr. Robertson's work ethic and attitude, noting that if released, Mr. Robertson "would bring a positive impact to society." A correctional officer wrote in 2017 that he believed Mr. Robertson would serve as a positive mentor for the youth of Oakland if paroled.

For all the foregoing reasons, I believe it is appropriate to reduce Mr. Robertson's sentence so that he can be released on parole.

THEREFORE, I, EDMUND G. BROWN JR., Governor of the State of California, by virtue of the power and authority vested in me by the Constitution and statutes of the State of California, do hereby commute the sentence of Quincy Robertson to 19 years.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF I have hereunto set my hand and caused the Great Seal of the State of California to be affixed this 30th Day of March, 2018.

EDMUND G. BROWN JR.

APPLICATION OF QUINCY DARNELL ROBERTSON FOR COMMUTATION OF SENTENCE

Quincy Robertson hereby applies, through counsel, pursuant to California Penal Code section 4800 and Section 8, Article 5 of the California Constitution, for the Governor to grant him executive clemency as to the prison term he is currently serving and to commute his sentence to 18 years imprisonment, which would result in his immediate release from the California Department of Corrections and Rehabilitation.

Mr. Robertson's CDCR number is T-18261 and his date of birth is [REDACTED] 1973. He is presently housed at San Quentin State Prison, San Quentin, California, 94964. Mr. Robertson is serving a sentence of 40 years to life imprisonment. The following Memorandum includes all of the information required on the Application for Commutation of Sentence form published by the Governor's Office.

INTRODUCTION

The issues presented to us, a federal court of appeals, are in essence state issues. The facts show a law-abiding person converted into a felon in a few moments of provoked anger and excitement. We cannot change the facts or alter the law. I can and do express regret at the rigor of the law. (Judge John T. Noonan, Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals, in the court's decision denying Mr. Robertson's federal habeas petition.)

Nearly nineteen years ago, Mr. Robertson emerged from his home in East Oakland, in which his wife and young two daughters and were sleeping, in the middle of a foggy night, to confront four men who were burglarizing his car that was parked in the driveway adjacent to his home. When one of the men turned toward Robertson while holding a screwdriver in his hand, Robertson fired a burst of gunshots. One of the would-be burglars, Mr. Kehinde Riley, was hit in the head and killed, while another, Mr. Ricky Harris, was hit in the foot. Mr. Harris was later killed in an unrelated shooting.

As Judge Noonan recognized, Mr. Robertson committed his crime in a instant of fear and provocation. The penalty imposed on him for his offense is simply too severe. Mr. Robertson therefore asks that the Governor exercise his authority to correct the injustice of Mr. Robertson's sentence.

Mr. Robertson was sentenced to 40 years to life imprisonment on May 17, 2001. His conviction was based on a theory of criminal liability - second degree felony murder based on the negligent discharge of a gun - that is no longer valid under California law. Simply stated, the jury instructions given at Mr. Robertson's trial were wrong and resulted in his being erroneously convicted of murder. Mr. Robertson submits that the crime he actually committed was voluntary manslaughter and that his life sentence for that crime is far in excess of what is justified in his case.

Mr. Robertson has served nearly 19 years in prison (Mr. Robertson was held in custody prior to trial and was arrested on December 28, 1998).

To put the sentence Mr. Robertson has already served into perspective, had Mr. Robertson been convicted of manslaughter and sentenced to the aggravated term of 11 years, Mr. Robertson would have completed his term of imprisonment in the spring of 2008.

THE APPLICABLE LEGAL FRAMEWORK

The Governor has plenary constitutional power to grant clemency, subject only to "application procedures provided by statute." (Cal. Const., art. V, § 8, subd. (a).) The constitutional executive clemency power traces back to English common law. (People v. Bowen (1872) 43 Cal. 439, 442.)

Executive clemency is an ad hoc "act of grace" that may be granted for any reason without reference to any standards. (See Solem v. Helm (1983) 463 U.S. 277, 300-01; In re Rosenkrantz (2002) 29 Cal.4th 616, 663; People v. Blocker (2010) 190 Cal.App. 4th 438, 443.) Solem held the possibility of commutation under South Dakota law did not save a life sentence without possibility of parole from being cruel and unusual punishment. The high court distinguished a prior case where there had been a possibility of parole. "As a matter of law, parole and commutation are different concepts, despite some surface similarities. Parole is a regular part of the rehabilitative process. Assuming good behavior, it is the normal expectation in the vast majority of cases. The law generally specifies when a prisoner will be eligible to be considered for parole, and details the standards and procedures applicable at that time. [Citations.]. ... Commutation, on the other hand, is an ad hoc exercise of executive clemency. A governor may commute a sentence at any time for any reason without reference to any standards.” (Solem, supra, 463 U.S. at 300-301, internal citations omitted.)

As a result, “the governor, on conditions the governor deems proper, may grant a reprieve, pardon, and commutation,” subject to specified exceptions. (Cal. Const., art. V, § 8, subd. (a).)

MR. ROBERTSON’S HISTORY

As the letters from his family and friends explain far better than counsel ever could, Mr. Robertson was raised in a close-knit family that continues to support Mr. Robertson to this day. At the time of his arrest Mr. Robertson helped care for his mother and several extended family members, in addition to his wife and their two young daughters. Mr. Robertson is a loving and caring parent who was deeply involved in his daughters’ care, as well as his entire extended family’s well being. Should Mr. Robertson be released, he will return to a rock-solid web of family support.

Mr. Robertson was born and raised in East Oakland. Despite having grown up in a crime-ridden environment, Mr. Robertson had never been arrested until the offense for which he is imprisoned.

As a young man, Mr. Robertson was a good student who played several sports and participated in the Oakland Boys’ and Girls’ Club and several other youth groups. Mr. Robertson also began working at a very young age in order to help his mother raise not only his siblings, but also two nephews who came under the care of Mr. Robertson’s mother, Geneva Williams, when they were very young.

Mr. Robertson began dating his wife, Michelle, when they were 16. They were married soon after high school and had two daughters, Quinisha (who is now 25) and Quinne’ (who is now 19). After he started his young family, Mr. Robertson secured a full-time job as a postal worker at the Oakland main branch of the U.S. Postal Service. Mr. Robertson was still employed with the Postal Service when he was arrested.

Tragically, Mr. Robertson’s wife Michelle was killed on a car accident on August 28, 2016 (Mr. Robertson applied for, but was denied a pass to attend his family's service for his wife). Mr. Robertson's mother, Geneva Williams, is now 76 and suffering from several issues with her health.

Through his 19 years of incarceration, Mr. Robertson has been a model prisoner. He has not become involved in gangs or criminal activity inside the prison and he has no disciplinary history. He has participated in several ongoing counseling groups and has undergone vocational training. Submitted with this application are not only some of Mr. Robertson's recent work and counseling records from CDCR, but also several letters from correctional guards and staff recommending that Mr. Robertson be released. These letters describe Mr. Robertson as "respectful" and "positive", and exhibiting "integrity" and "exceptional" work ethic and behavior during his time in custody.

At the time of the offense for which Mr. Robertson was convicted, though he had never been involved in committing a crime, he had been a victim of several violent crimes. Mr. Robertson was seriously injured on March 26, 1998, as a result of a gunshot. He was a passenger in a car driven by his nephew, which was involved in a minor traffic incident. His nephew and the driver of the other car got into a verbal argument, during which someone in the other car pulled out a gun. Mr. Robertson was shot as he attempted to push his nephew out of danger. After this incident, and living in a neighborhood in which it seemed everyone had a gun, Mr. Robertson unfortunately decided he also needed a gun to protect himself and his family.

THE OFFENSE

Nine months after he was shot, on the night of December 27, 1998, Mr. Robertson was in his home with his wife and children when he heard noises outside his window. Thinking that someone was trying to break in, he went out on his porch, carrying the firearm. He was frightened and thought he may need to protect himself and his family.

After coming out of his house, Mr. Robertson saw young men by his car, which was parked just outside his home. Kehinde Riley, Ricky Harris, Bradley Gentry, and Lamont Benton had parked their car on 99th Avenue Court in Oakland. Riley and Harris got out of the car, and began to steal the hubcaps from Mr. Robertson's car. Mr. Robertson fired shots from his porch to scare them away from his house. Mr. Harris was shot in the foot; Mr. Riley was shot in the back of the head and killed.

Immediately after the shooting, Mr Robertson went back into his house, put his gun away, and sat down to wait for the police. When they arrived, Mr Robertson admitted he had done the shooting and was arrested. He was transported to the Oakland Police Department where he waived his Miranda rights and was interviewed by the police, including DA Investigator Louis Landini, who has submitted a letter in support of Mr Robertson's release. According to Mr Landini, Mr Robertson was quite distraught during his confession. Mr Robertson admitted shooting toward the men who were at his car, but indicated he was attempting to scare them away from his home, not kill them.

On the day the shooting occurred, Mr. Robertson was 25 years old. He is now 43.

MR. ROBERTSON'S TRIAL AND THE EFFECT OF THE IMPROPER JURY INSTRUCTION

At Mr. Robertson's trial, at the prosecutor's request, the jury was instructed they could find Mr. Robertson guilty under the second degree felony murder doctrine as defined in CALJIC No. 8.32, predicated upon the felony defined in Penal Code section 243.6 (grossly negligent discharge of a firearm), which would alleviate the necessity of finding malice necessary for a murder conviction. The California Supreme Court has now admitted it was wrong for the trial court to instruct the jury on the felony murder rule theory.

During summation, the prosecutor repeatedly told the jury they did not need to decide whether malice was proven beyond a reasonable doubt, all that was required to return a verdict of guilty on the murder charge was to find Mr. Robertson guilty of the crime of grossly negligent discharge of a firearm. This argument allowed the jury to put aside Mr. Robertson's defense that he had an honest belief in the need to defend himself and his family. Had the jury been properly instructed, it is not only reasonably probable, but almost a certainty, the jury would have found Mr. Robertson not guilty of murder.

The evidence at trial indicated Mr. Robertson, who had been the victim of several recent violent, crimes including being shot following a minor traffic accident (see Excerpts of Reporter's Transcript, submitted with this application and cited as "ER", at 936-938), fired wildly in the direction of three men who were stealing Mr. Robertson's car, which was parked directly in front of his house. Mr. Robertson apparently began shooting from the front porch of the house and then proceeded to the street while still firing. At the scene of the shooting, the police found casing from Mr. Robertson's gun on his front porch, at the foot of the stairs to his porch, and on the street immediately in front of Mr. Robertson's house. (See ER at 194-195, 578, 629-630, 634, 648.) The police also located bullet holes in the windshield of Mr. Robertson's car, two feet above the ground in a camper parked across the street from Mr. Robertson's house, in a tree branch seven feet off the ground and ten feet from the camper, and eight feet above ground in the wall of an adjacent house on 99th Avenue. (See ER 205-207, 635-639, 705-706, 667-668.)

According to his post-arrest statement, Mr. Robertson believed the men might try to enter his house, and fired his gun in the air with the intention of scaring the men away. (See People v. Chun (2009) 45 Cal.4th 1172, 1193 ("As we later summarized, '[t]he defendant in Robertson claimed he fired into the air, in order to frighten away several men who were burglarizing his car.'")); see also People v. Robertson (2004) 34 Cal.4th 156, 178 (Kennard, J., dissenting) (Justice Kennard noting that "defendant's claimed objective [was] to scare the victim.")). In his taped statement to the police, Mr. Robertson indicated he fired his gun after one of the would-be robbers spun to face him when he yelled from the front porch of his house. (See People's Exhibit 37A; see also ER 546.)

In his recorded post-arrest statement, Mr. Robertson told the officers, "[t]hey looked, they looked at me kind of like they was gonna do something. Then that's when I shot in the air. . . . My heart was beating too fast. I didn't know what they were gonna do." (ER 1336.) Elaborating on what he thought when he saw the men in his driveway around his car, Mr. Robertson told the officers, "I don't know. I can't really say because all I saw is somebody looking at me like they was gonna come back and try and do something to me. . . I don't know what they was doing or what they was carrying." (ER 1336.) Mr. Robertson also told the officers he was afraid because "I've been shot before, I know how it feel. I didn't know if I was gonna live or die." (ER 1335.)

During deliberations, the jury asked to listen to both of Mr. Robertson's taped statements to the police. (See ER 1458.)

At trial, Dr. Robert Kaufman testified as an expert that Mr. Robertson was, at the time of the shooting, suffering from post-traumatic stress disorder. (ER 1082-1085.) Dr. Kaufman testified that Mr. Robertson's condition rendered him excessively fearful and easily aroused and agitated. (ER 1089-1090, 1113-1114, 1263, 1272-1273.) In Dr. Kaufman's opinion, Mr. Robertson's condition likely caused him to react impulsively to perceived threats, with compromised judgement and without much forethought. (ER 1264.) As the Federal District Court acknowledged, at trial the prosecution conceded that Mr. Robertson's PTSD "could contribute to whether Robertson had an honest belief in the need for self-defense. RT 1400." (ER 27; see also ER 1320.)

Several of the people who knew Mr Robertson at the time and have submitted letters of support also noted the change in Mr, Robertson's demeanor - his fearfulness and wariness - in the months after Mr. Robertson was shot.

At Mr. Robertson's trial, the jury was instructed with second degree felony murder predicated on the crime of grossly negligent discharge of a firearm (CALJIC No. 8.32), second degree murder (CALJIC No. 8.30), and implied malice second degree murder (CALJIC 8.31). Mr. Robertson's defense was that he harbored no malice, either express or implied, in that he acted in an honest belief in the need for self-defense and that he acted in the heat of passion. An honest, but unreasonable belief in self defense and/or acting in the heat of passion negates malice, express or implied, needed for a conviction of second degree murder.

In closing argument, the prosecutor told the jury to ignore the element of malice. Recognizing that the jury would not find beyond a reasonable doubt that Mr. Robertson harbored the element of malice necessary for a murder conviction, the district attorney told the jury that they need not bother to determine whether or not Mr. Robertson harbored malice, as all the jury needed to do was follow the instructions on second degree felony-murder and find Mr. Robertson guilty of murder because he was guilty of the crime of grossly negligent discharge of a firearm. The district attorney told the jury:

If the defendant intentionally commits a dangerous felony and a human being dies as a result of that felony that's second degree murder. Intentionally, unintentionally or accidentally, it doesn't matter. If he commits a dangerous felony and someone dies as a result of it it's second degree murder. Discharging a gun in a reckless manner is second degree murder - - is a reckless felony.

So even if you believe the defendant's statement, even if you believe him that he discharged that gun up in the air, second degree murder. There's no way around it. There's no way around it. It's second degree murder because the dangerous felony was intentionally committed. Believe his statement. Go ahead. He fired that gun up in the air. That is a grossly negligent discharge of a gun. Instruction 9.03. Even if you believe his statement - - because Kehinde Riley died as a result of that dangerous action, Kehinde Riley is dead as a result of the defendant firing that gun intentionally firing that gun. So even if you believe his testimony, Ladies and Gentlemen, second degree felony murder.

(ER 1305 (emphasis added).)

Later in his argument, the prosecutor told the jury:

Even if you actually believe that the defendant had an honest belief that he was - - his life was threatened right then and there when he shot that gun, even if you believe that you don't get around recklessly discharging that firearm and killing somebody. You still get felony murder. When he recklessly discharged that gun as they were running away from him, Kehinde Riley died, you still get second degree murder. There's no way around this fourth theory. There really isn't.

In his rebuttal argument, the prosecutor again argued the felony-murder theory:

The best way to figure out what the defendant was thinking is the defendant himself and we have that in the statements. We see what he's saying, we see what he's thinking. We hear that he intentionally fired the gun. Even if you believe it was fired up in the air he still intentionally fired that gun and someone died. Kehinde Riley died as a result of it and that is murder.

During deliberations, the jurors asked the court if they could see "the definition boards which define murder, manslaughter, malice, used by the DA in his closing arguments." (ER 1378.) The court refused to give the jury the visual aids the prosecution had used and instead referred the jury to the court's instructions. (Id.)

The jury began deliberations on January 25, 2001. On February 1, juror number 7 approached the court and asked to be excused from the jury. Juror 7 told the court, "[i]t's real heated in there ... It's just too much stress." (ER 1382.) There was no real dispute as to the fact that Mr. Robertson fired numerous shots, resulting in the death of Mr. Riley. The only issue the jury could have considered for six days was Mr. Robertson's state of mind when he fired the gun.

On February 7, 2001, the jury returned verdicts finding Mr. Robertson guilty of second degree murder and assault with a firearm, and finding true the allegation of personal use of a firearm. On May 17, 2001, Mr. Robertson was sentenced to 40 years to life in prison.

POST-TRIAL PROCEEDINGS AND ADMISSION OF ERROR BY THE CALIFORNIA SUPREME COURT

It has now been 13 years since the California Supreme Court affirmed Mr. Robertson's conviction in a decision the court has now admitted it decided wrongly, and more than 9 years since California's high court acknowledged its mistake in deciding Mr. Robertson's appeal, but denied Mr. Robertson relief.

Mr.. Robertson's conviction was first affirmed by the California Court of Appeal, First Appellate District, Division Four, in a published opinion filed on June 30, 2003. The appellate court found it was error to give second degree felony-murder instructions predicated on a violation of Penal Code section 246.3, grossly negligent discharge of a firearm, but found the error harmless. People v. Robertson (2003) 109 Cal.App.4th 1740.)

The California Supreme Court granted review on the issue of whether the crime of grossly negligent discharge of a firearm could be the basis for a second degree felony-murder conviction. On August 19, 2004, the California Supreme Court affirmed Mr. Robertson's conviction, holding that when a defendant has no intent to commit an assault, but instead has a "collateral purpose" for discharging the firearm, the merger doctrine will not bar a second degree felony-murder instruction based on the underlying crime of discharging a firearm in a grossly negligent manner. (People v. Robertson, supra, 34 Cal.4th 156.) The court affirmed the conviction, stating that because Mr. Robertson's asserted underlying purpose was to frighten away the young men who were burglarizing his automobile, and not to kill them, the discharge of the firearm was undertaken with a purpose collateral to the resulting homicide, rendering the challenged instruction permissible.

Dissenting from the court's opinion affirming Mr. Robertson's conviction, Justice Werdegar warned that the second degree felony murder rule, as then formulated, created an unacceptable potential for unjust results:

The anomalies created when assaultive conduct is used as the predicate for a second degree felony-murder theory are too stark and potentially too productive of injustice to be written off as "characteristic of the second degree felony-murder rule in general". It simply cannot be the law that a defendant who shot the victim with the intent to kill or injure, but can show he or she acted in unreasonable self-defense, may be convicted of only voluntary manslaughter, whereas a defendant who shot only to scare the victim is precluded from raising that partial defense and is strictly liable as a murderer. (Robertson, supra, 34 Cal.4th at 185.)

Justice Kennard, also dissenting from the affirmation of Mr. Robertson's conviction, described in considerable detail how the felony murder rule as applied to in Mr, Robertson's case could lead to absurd results. (See Robertson, 34 Cal.4th at 182-183.) Justice Kennard noted Mr. Robertson “would have been better off had he testified to firing at the victim intending to hit him, because then the second degree felony-murder rule would not apply . . . the majority has twisted traditional concepts of criminal law. After today’s decision, prosecutors will try to obtain murder convictions by arguing that defendants lacked an intent to kill, while defense attorneys, to prevent their clients from being convicted of murder, will be compelled to argue that their clients intended to kill.” (Robertson, supra, 34 Cal.4th at 180-181.)

Justice Brown succinctly lamented in her own dissent, “Why? What purpose does the second degree felony-murder rule serve that justifies the fitful and erratic course of our jurisprudence?” (Robertson, supra, 34 Cal.4th at 189.)

Following the California Supreme Court’s decision, Mr. Robertson filed a petition for a writ of habeas corpus in the United States District Court for the Northern District of California. (Robertson v. Runnels, No. C05-3101 PJH.) The district court denied the petition on January 3, 2008, concluding claims that a state court error interpreting the elements of a state offense are not cognizable on federal habeas review.

Mr. Robertson appealed, and on February 2, 2009, the Ninth Circuit affirmed the decision of the district court. (Robertson v. Runnels, case No. 08-15173.)

Shortly thereafter, on March 30, 2009, the California Supreme Court decided People v. Chun, supra, 45 Cal.4th 1172, in which the state court again sought to clarify the contours of California’s second degree felony-murder law, and, as the Court admitted, correct its past errors in interpreting the rule. The Chun court explained that decisions that followed the ruling in Quincy Robertson’s case had brought “into sharp focus the anomaly that we noted in Robertson and accepted as inherent in the second degree felony-murder rule,” which was “questionable for the reasons discussed in the [dissents] in Robertson.” (Chun, supra, 45 Cal.4th at 1197.) The court then held, “[i]n light of these problems, we conclude we need to reconsider our merger doctrine jurisprudence. As Justice Werdegar observed in her dissenting opinion in Robertson, ‘sometimes consistency must yield to a better understanding of the developing law.’” (Id. at 1198.) The Chun court also stated that “the majority and dissent agreed on one thing - that the current state of the law regarding merger is ‘muddled.’ We agree that the scope and application of the merger doctrine as applied to second degree murder needs to be reconsidered.” (Id. at 1189.) In other words, the Court acknowledged it needed to apply the law more equitably, in order to attain more just results.

The Court explained that its reason for re-interpreting California’s felony murder rule was to avoid the “absurd” and unjust results that could occur under the courts prior version of the rule enunciated in Robertson:

To avoid the anomaly of putting a person who merely intends to frighten the victim in a worse legal position than the person who actually intended to shoot at the victim, and the difficult question of whether and how the jury should decide questions of merger, we need to reconsider our holdings in Robertson, supra, 34 Cal.4th 156 . . . When the underlying felony is assaultive in nature, such as a violation of section 246 or 246.3, we now conclude that the felony merges with the homicide and cannot be the basis of a felony-murder instruction. (Chun, 45 Cal.4th at 1200.)

The Chun court went on to expressly reverse its decision in Mr. Robertson’s appeal. In so doing, the court adopted much of the briefing submitted by Robertson in his appellate briefs and acknowledged that the prior versions of the rule had caused unacceptable outcomes in the criminal justice system. The Chun decision noted, “[w]e overrule People v. Robertson, supra, 34 Cal.4th 156, and the reasoning, although not the result, of People v. Randle (2005) 35 Cal.4th 987.” (Chun, supra, 45 Cal.4th at 1201.)

Following the California Supreme Court’s decision in Chun, on May 8, 2009, Mr. Robertson filed in that court a petition for a writ of habeas corpus (Cal. Supreme Ct. No. S172768) in which he alleged that in light of the holding in Chun, his conviction violated his federal constitutional rights to due process, a fair trial, and trial by jury. The California Supreme Court denied the petition without reasoning in a “postcard denial,” on October 14, 2009.

On December 23, 2010, Mr. Robertson filed a second habeas petition in the Ninth Circuit. On December 16, 2016, the court denied the petition and noted: “no federal law prevents the California Supreme Court from deciding that Chun states the correct interpretation of a statute now, while a different interpretation controlled when Robertson's conviction became final.” (Robertson v. Walker (9th Cir. 2016) 673 Fed. Appx. 681.)

THE GOVERNOR SHOULD COMMUTE MR. ROBERTSON’S SENTENCE BOTH BECAUSE MR. ROBERTSON’S PUNISHMENT DOES NOT FIT HIS CRIME, AND BECAUSE MR. ROBERTSON NEEDS NO FURTHER REHABILITATION

Mr. Robertson submits that while it might be true that no legal rule prevents the courts from changing the felony murder rule to a more just version, while at the same time refusing to correct a past injustice done to Mr. Robertson under the old rule, a fair criminal justice system would take action to correct such a mistake.

One of the primary reasons the executive’s clemency power is secured in the Constitution is assure that there is a forum of last resort for the correction of unjust sentences that are, unfortunately, an unavoidable part of our criminal court system. “Executive clemency exists to provide relief from harshness or mistake in the judicial system, and is therefore vested in an authority other than the courts.” (Ohio Adult Parole Authority v. Woodard (1998) 523 U.S. 272, 284.) Mr. Robertson’s sentence is just the sort of harsh mistake that warrants correction by the Governor.

The court’s erroneous jury instructions essentially destroyed what should have been Mr. Robertson’s defense to the murder charge. More importantly, it deprived the jury, as well as the trial court¹, of an opportunity to convict Mr. Robertson of an appropriate crime and impose a reasonable punishment for the acts Mr. Robertson committed. Robertson’s heat of passion and imperfect self-defense defenses were the key to his case. As Judge Noonan found, Mr. Robertson fired the shots “in a few moments of provoked anger and excitement.” The felony murder instruction deprived Mr. Robertson of these defenses and directed the jury to find him guilty regardless of whether he was provoked or honestly feared for his or his family’s safety.

¹ Unfortunately, the trial court had no discretion under the applicable statutes, Penal Code section 198 and 12022.53, to sentence Mr. Robertson to anything but 40 years to life.

Mr. Robertson's sentence does not reflect the seriousness of his offense; it punishes Mr. Robertson far more than is necessary or fair. As the Supreme Court noted in Chun, the alleged purpose of the felony murder rule is to deter "felons" from committing inherently dangerous crimes. (See Chun, supra, 45 Cal.4th at 1198.) Mr. Robertson was no felon, and he certainly was not committing some other dangerous crime - such as robbery or kidnaping - when he caused the death of Kehinde Riley. Instead, he was sitting in his home with his family, in possession of a gun he lawfully purchased for self-defense after he was victimized in a violent crime.

Just as importantly, the sentence on Mr. Robertson no longer serves any real purpose. Mr. Robertson has been a model prisoner. He has fully participated in every therapeutic and vocational program the CDCR has to offer him and has been successful in every respect. He clearly cannot be "helped" any further as he has been fully rehabilitated, and likely was some time ago.²

There is similarly no reason to incapacitate Mr. Robertson for public safety purposes. His crime was an aberration in his otherwise law-abiding life. He acted in a moment of irrationality brought about by fear, not anger. Most importantly, he has never shown any propensity for violence either before or after that brief moment 19 years ago. If he were to be released, there is no chance Mr. Robertson will offend again.

Finally, while Mr. Robertson clearly serves no public good in prison, if released he will be able to help several people who are in dire need. His mother and daughters, who have supported him throughout his incarceration are now in need to help from Mr. Robertson. His is now the only parent of Quincee' and Quinisha, and his mother's health is beginning to fade. Mr. Robertson would be of great help and comfort to his family, if given the opportunity to repay them for their love and support. He prays that the Governor will see his way clear to give allow him a chance to begin giving back to his family.

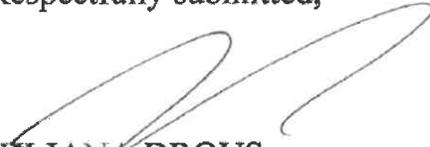

CONCLUSION

As the result of an outdated, widely criticized penal law, Mr. Robertson was given a sentence that was far out of line with his conduct. As the courts have not seen fit to correct their mistake, the Government should do so. Commuting Mr. Robertson's sentence would see that substantive justice is done, and would return to society a man that is fully rehabilitated and ready to return to being the positive, hard working, loving family man he has always been.

² Mr. Robertson's exemplary record in prison appears quite similar to that of former inmate Luis Calderon, who received executive clemency in 2016.

Aurelio Sanchez

In September 1983, Aurelio Sanchez participated in the kidnapping of his former employer, Jack Lee. Mr. Lee escaped while in transit and suffered injuries to his head, leg, and chest, including a broken nose. On February 15, 1985, the Los Angeles County Superior Court sentenced Mr. Sanchez to life without the possibility of parole for kidnapping for ransom with substantial bodily harm.

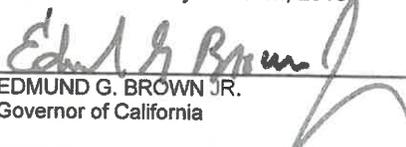

Mr. Sanchez has been incarcerated for over 34 years and is 67 years old. Mr. Sanchez has not been disciplined for any misconduct in prison for almost 15 years, and an investigation by the Board of Parole Hearings revealed that Mr. Sanchez is programming well. Mr. Sanchez was unable to read or write when he arrived in prison. Since then, he has successfully worked to better himself. He furthered his education through English as a Second Language courses and earned above-average work ratings. An English as a Second Language instructor wrote, "He is a very positive student who always stays on task and puts efforts into his classroom assignments." In 2017, a supervisor noted that Mr. Sanchez is a reliable and hard worker who always takes on new responsibilities without being told to do so. Mr. Sanchez participated in self-help programs and resided on the Progressive Programming Facility at Lancaster State Prison for many years.

Mr. Sanchez was sentenced to life without the possibility of parole for his role in this kidnapping. He has programmed well in almost 35 years of incarceration and has avoided gangs, drugs, and violence for well over a decade. For all of these reasons, Mr. Sanchez should have an opportunity to appear before the Board of Parole Hearings so it can determine whether he is ready to be paroled.

THEREFORE, I, EDMUND G. BROWN JR., Governor of the State of California, by virtue of the power and authority vested in me by the Constitution and statutes of the State of California, do hereby commute the sentence of Aurelio Sanchez to a total of 25 years to life.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF I have hereunto set my hand and caused the Great Seal of the State of California to be affixed this 30th Day of March, 2018.

COMMENTARY

I, petitioner, AURELIO FIGUEROA SANCHEZ, willfully accept responsibility for my actions which lead to my incarceration and sentence of Life Without the Possibility of Parole.

I also willfully announce my remorse and contriteness for my actions committed against the victim in my case (Mr. Ching Lee), I apologize to him, I ask for his forgiveness.

I apologize to the citizenry of the state of California for my actions and for the social disruption that I caused within our society. I have spent the last (30) years making amends for my social mistakes, and at this elderly stage of my life I have achieved understanding, compassion, and love for my fellow Humanity. During the course of my incarceration I have committed myself to social, academic, and psychological rehabilitation. I have made continuous progress with my life which is verifiable through my post-conviction prison record.

- * I have been incarcerated for over (30) successive years, literally half of my life.
- * I am now (65) years old. I have accumulated health problems that continue to worsen due to my advancing age.
- * The Department of Corrections and Rehabilitation has recently evaluated my case factors through their validated California Static Risk Assessment (CSRA) system, and have determined that I pose a "LOW RISK to public safety and are less likely to reoffend," (see attached supporting document).

I submit this application for Commutation of my sentence to the current Governor of the state of California, Mr. Edmond G. Brown Jr., respectfully requesting that my current sentence be Commutated to a Lesser Life With the Possibility of Parole sentence in the interest of Justice. Thank you. May God's grace be upon you.

COMMUTATION OF SENTENCE

Oliver Thomas

Oliver Thomas worked as a security guard for a bank for about a month. Mr. Thomas and his brother decided to commit a robbery at the bank. On November 8, 1991, Mr. Thomas and his brother went to the bank. Mr. Thomas remained in the car as his brother went around the corner and confronted Donald Lee, a man who regularly made large cash withdrawals. Mr. Lee and Mr. Thomas' brother exchanged gunfire; Mr. Lee was shot in the abdomen and died at the scene. On December 22, 1993, the Los Angeles County Superior Court sentenced Mr. Thomas to life without the possibility of parole for murder, plus a one-year firearm enhancement.

In his application for a commutation, Mr. Thomas wrote about his rehabilitative efforts and said, "Daily, I regret my actions on November 8, 1991, and daily I pray for Mr. Lee's family." He told an investigator from the Board of Parole Hearings that at the time of the crime, he was "struggling for direction and understanding," but that now he has matured and developed the skills he needs to support himself if released. He explained that in prison, he has dedicated himself to self-improvement and focused on giving back to society:

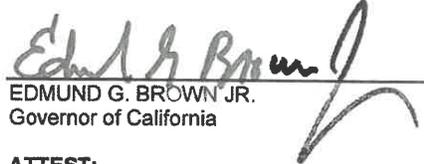

Mr. Thomas has now been incarcerated for 26 years. During that time, he has only been disciplined once for misconduct. Although his sentence offered him no hope of release from prison, he has avoided drugs and stayed away from gangs. Mr. Thomas earned his GED, receives positive ratings from his supervisors, and has learned marketable skills through his work assignments. For several years, he has participated in a program that trains rescue dogs; he was recently commended by the organization's director and an associate warden for his work as a leader mentoring other inmates in the program. They wrote that Mr. Thomas "is to be commended for his exceptional efforts and dedication to this worthy and vital program." He has lived on an honor yard for years.

Mr. Thomas participated in a tragic crime, but since then he has been a model inmate – he has never been violent and has avoided drugs and gangs. He has earned a chance to make his case before the Board of Parole Hearings so that it can determine whether he is ready to be paroled.

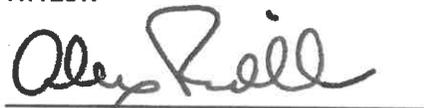

THEREFORE, I, EDMUND G. BROWN JR., Governor of the State of California, by virtue of the power and authority vested in me by the Constitution and statutes of the State of California, do hereby commute the sentence of Oliver Thomas to a total of 25 years to life.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF I have hereunto set my hand and caused the Great Seal of the State of California to be affixed this 30th Day of March, 2018.

car and told my brother and his friend, that the bank was too full. My brother wanted to check for himself. While myself and the driver stayed in the car parked down the street, my brother approached the bank and decided to rob the first person, who came out the bank. An argument occurred, and both men pulled out guns and shot at each other. Both were shot, Mikee died because of his injuries. I did not know either man was illegally armed with a weapon. We planned to rob the bank with a note; demanding money. My brother ran down the street and turned the corner and got into the car. We drove off.

although criminal, could not and would not, cause any harm to anyone. I didn't plan a armed robbery and I didn't know about any guns. Also, no one ever testified, that I did, nor did the D.A. present any evidence during the trial, that I had known or could have known about my brother or victim being armed. I felt that I was guilty of robbery and a involuntary manslaughter. I didn't know, that the trial judge would refuse my request for lower included offenses.

③ This is my first time in prison ④ An LWOP sentence is for someone who has committed the most heinous crime(s) and society believes can not be rehabilitated; I did not directly commit the robbery of murder, I was down the street and around the corner sitting in the back seat of the getaway car, when the robbery-murder occurred and not in a position to stop it. ⑤ I have spent over 25 years in prison, and only have one minor write-up [Ex. 1]. ⑥ I've earned several certificates [Ex. 2] and I've earned my G.E.D. [Ex. 3] and I'm one of the founding members of PAWS FOR LIFE here on the Progressive Programming Facility yard. I've dedicated over two years and counting of my life rehabilitating and training dogs, for they can be easily adopted to a forever home. otherwise, they would be put to sleep. [Ex. 4]. This has not only allowed me to give back to society, but also in the process, set a foundation for CDCR to assist in thousands of other inmates to be rehabilitated, save dogs and give a loving living creature to society. Through this program, we give back to the society, that we've taken so much from.

Daily, I regret my actions on 11-8-1991 and daily I pray for Mr. Lee's family. I'm not asking for my immediately release, I'm asking you to not give up on me and not to turn your back on me. I will continue to take the self-help classes to better myself. Please give me a chance for parole.

I thank you for your time.

Kiilu Washington

In 1988, 18-year-old Kiilu Washington and two friends attempted to rob Jeffrey Love. While his crime partners were inside Mr. Love's home, Mr. Washington held Mr. Love's 16-year-old girlfriend, Krisnia Hubbard, outside at gunpoint. After hearing someone fire shots, Mr. Washington shot Ms. Hubbard multiple times, then fled. Ms. Hubbard survived but suffered serious injuries. One of Mr. Washington's friends, Wayne Puckett, was shot and killed by Mr. Love. On October 12, 1990, the Los Angeles County Superior Court sentenced Mr. Washington to life without the possibility of parole plus 5 years for kidnapping for ransom, attempted robbery, and a firearm enhancement.

Mr. Washington has now been incarcerated for almost three decades and is 47 years old. Mr. Washington has shown that he is willing to work hard to transform his life and help those around him. He has not been disciplined for any misconduct in over 15 years, and has turned away from drugs and gang activity. He earned above-average to exceptional work ratings, and participated in self-help programs including Anger Management, Alternatives to Violence, and Men for Honor. Mr. Washington's wife and friends are prepared to provide him with housing, help finding employment, and assistance as he transitions back into the community.

Mr. Washington also earned commendations from multiple correctional staff members who interact with him on a regular basis. One correctional officer reported that Mr. Washington "has stood out as a positive role model for the inmate population...He should be commended for his efforts to rehabilitate." In 2015, an associate warden praised Mr. Washington's positive attitude and wrote, "It is my belief that if Washington is given a chance to return to society, he would be a positive contributing member and a good addition to any community." One correctional lieutenant who has known Mr. Washington for 15 years noted, "Over the years I have witnessed Washington become a positive individual who mentors other inmates to not fall victim to prison culture or the gang culture in prison. Washington consistently demonstrates how to program not only by his words but also by his actions...In the event Washington is granted parole it would be my privilege and honor to have Washington live in my community or even be my neighbor."

Although he is serving a sentence that gave him no hope of release from prison, Mr. Washington has dedicated himself to rehabilitation and has worked hard to set a positive example for his peers. I believe that it is appropriate to reduce his sentence so that the Board of Parole Hearings can determine whether he is ready to be paroled.

THEREFORE, I, EDMUND G. BROWN JR., Governor of the State of California, by virtue of the power and authority vested in me by the Constitution and statutes of the State of California, do hereby commute the sentence of Kiilu Washington to a total of 25 years to life.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF I have hereunto set my hand and caused the Great Seal of the State of California to be affixed this 30th Day of March, 2018.

APPLICATION FOR EXECUTIVE

18
19 I. Introduction

20 Petitioner Kiilu Washington has been incarcerated since 1988 for crimes he committed during a 21 failed attempt to rob a drug dealer. He was just 45 days past his 18th birthday when he committed the 22 crime, and he was sentenced to serve life without any chance at parole. During his 25 years in prison, 23 Washington turned his life around. At least 11 employees of the Department of Corrections and 24 Rehabilitation wrote chronos praising his character and supporting his release. He asks that the 25 Governor commute his sentence to 25 years to life so that he may earn his release through the Parole 26 Board.
28

1 II. Criminal conviction

2 The facts of the offense come from the Court of Appeal's opinion dated July 1, 1992, which is 3 attached as Exhibit A.

4 Washington's convictions stem from a misguided and tragic attempt to rob a drug dealer, Jeffrey
5 Love, of his drugs and money on November 3, 1988. Love was at a bowling alley with his girlfriend,
6 Krishna Hubbard, when someone paged him. He called and learned that someone wanted to buy $1,500
7 of cocaine. Love obtained the cocaine and went to the arranged meeting place, but the buyer never 8 arrived, so Love and Hubbard headed home.

10 On the way, Love received another page, so he stopped at his parent's house to return the call.
11 No one answered the door, so Love left Hubbard at the side of the house while he went to find a pay 12 phone. As Love made the call, Washington and his two friends arrived and pointed handguns at Love, 13 threatening to kill him unless he gave them money and drugs. After some argument, Love finally 14 claimed that he had money and drugs at his parents' house.

16 When they arrived at Love's parents' house, they found Hubbard, who was still waiting for 17 Love's return. Washington grabbed Hubbard by the arm and took her to his car.

18 Meanwhile, Love and one of the robbers walked into Love's parents' house (the parents were 19 home this time) where Love told the robber to wait in the living room while he got the money. But Love
20 did not get any money—he got a revolver, returned to the living room, and shot the robber in the chest
21 and head. Love then went outside where he exchanged gunshots with Washington and Washington's

24 As Washington would later explain to his step-mother, when he heard gunshots from inside the 25 house, he did not know what to do and shot Hubbard. She survived but was badly injured. About two 26 months after the crimes, Washington's step-mother turned him over to the police when she learned what 27 he did.
28

1 Washington was convicted of kidnapping for the purpose of extracting property and with
2 inflicting great bodily harm, attempted second-degree robbery, and willful, deliberate, and premeditated
3 attempted murder. He was sentenced to life without parole, plus a concurrent life term, plus three years.

5 III. Laudatory chronos from prison staff demonstrating good behavior and rehabilitation.

6 A. Many prison employees believe that Washington is ready for release and would 7 welcome Washington as a neighbor.

8 Remarkably, 11 employees of the Department of Corrections and Rehabilitation—including two 9 Associate Wardens—wrote laudatory chronos essentially recommending Washington’s release. Several 10 wrote that they would welcome having Washington as a neighbor.

11 The two associate wardens, L. Parker and C.L. Wofford, praised Washington for his 12 accomplishments and added, “I believe if Washington were to be released he would not only maintain 13 his positive attitude, but also strive to continue bettering himself.” (Ex. B at 4.) Each of the associate 14 warden has known Washington for at least several years, with L. Parker knowing him for about 10
15 years. (Id.)

16 A Correctional Captain, T.L. Cromwell, has known Washington for 13 years and believes that 17 “whenever Washington is released he would maintain his positive attitude and become a productive
18 member of society.” (Id. at 7.)

19 Lieutenant D.J. Williams believes that Washington will be “a successful and productive 20 member, not only to his family but to society as well.” (Id. at 7.)

21 Correctional Officer M. Bennett believes that Washington’s “positive attitude and work ethic”
22 will let him “flourish upon his release.” (Id. at 9.) Bennett has 20 years of experience as a correctional 23 officer, and notes that “Washington has such a strong and positive moral character, I would be more 24 than comfortable if he was my next door neighbor or paroled to my community.” (Id. at 16.)

25 Speaking directly about Washington’s effect on public safety, correctional officers B. Wilkerson 26 and J. Robbins believe that Washington “would not pose an unreasonable risk to society, and would 27 successfully adapt to changes within society since his incarceration.” (Id. at 10.)
28

1 Another Correctional Officer, J.P. Middleton, has 30 years of experience in corrections and a 2 Bachelor's degree in Behavioral Science, so he is adept at discerning which inmates maintain their
3 criminal dispositions and which are rehabilitated. (Id. at 12.) Middleton has known Washington for 13
4 years and is convinced of his improvements: "Washington has matured and grown into a self aware,
5 responsible man that is ready to be a productive member of society." (Id.) If Washington were released,
6 Mr. Moore "would be honored to have him as [a] neighbor or a member of [his] immediate 7 community." (Id. (emphasis added).)

8 Lieutenant C. Campbell III echoed what Middleton said about being Washington's neighbor: "I 9 commend Washington on his transition and believe that if released he would pose no threat to society.
10 In fact, it would be my pleasure to have Washington as a neighbor." (Id. at 13.)

11 R. Esparza is a correctional officer who has known Washington for 10 years. (Id. at 14.)
12 Esparza thinks that Washington will be a productive member of society and "an asset to any 13 community that he was a part of." (Id.) Washington would be welcomed if paroled to Esparza's
14 community. (Id.)

15 Correctional Officer A. Melendrez added to the consensus, writing that Washington would be a 16 productive member of society and would be welcomed as a neighbor. (Id. at 15.)

17 These people—all prison staff and long-time correctional workers—are not fooled by inmates
18 playing the straight man. The reason these people support Washington's release is because they have 19 seen him grow and, as the next section shows, actively rehabilitate himself.

20 B. Chronos praising Washington's active rehabilitation and personal growth

21 There is no shortage of prison staffers willing to praise Washington's rehabilitative efforts and 22 successes. Associate Warden Parker commended the "tremendous strides [Washington] has made to 23 better himself, along with the noticeable changes he has made in his life, which [are] evident in his day-
24 to-day activities." (Ex. B at 4.) The phrase "tremendous strides" appears in several of the laudatory
25 chronos, including from Associate Warden Wofford (id. at 4), Officer Wilkerson (id. at 10), Officer
26 Cromwell (id. at 7), and Lieutenant Williams (id. at 7, although noting only "strides"). Officer
28

1 Cromwell added that Washington is a “respectful, mature person who demonstrates a positive attitude
2 towards staff and inmates alike.” (Id. at 7.)

3 Officer Lee has known Washington for 10 years and reports “noticeable changes in his attitude
4 and life [that are] evident in the way he carries himself.” (Id. at 6.)

5 Lieutenant Hughes, who has known Washington for 12 years, has seen a “transformation” in 6 Washington from a person involved in crime to a “responsible man that carries himself in a respectful
7 manner as well as adhering to the rules and regulations of the department of corrections.” (Id. at 11.)

8 Sergeant Williams, who has known Washington for 10 years, “watched Washington grow from a 9 person still trying to discover who he is, to the responsible hard working man he has become.” (Id. at 10 11.) Further, Williams added that Washington “has overwhelmingly demonstrated consistency in the 11 betterment of himself in the pursuit of positive career goals relevant to becoming a productive member
12 of society.” (Id.)

13 Over 13 years, Lieutenant Middleton has seen Washington “mature[] and grow[] into a self 14 aware, responsible man that is ready to be a productive member of society.” (Id. at 12.)

15 Similar comments come from Lieutenant Campbell, a 26-year veteran of CDCR who knows
16 whether an inmate remains immersed in prison politics or has reformed. (Id. at 13.) Campbell places
17 Washington in the latter category: “I have observed Washington turn his life around.” (Id.) Washington
18 “has become a positive role model.” (Id.) Campbell notes that Washington counsels new inmates and 19 advises them to attend education and rehabilitation courses. (Id.) He has also seen Washington counsel
20 at-risk youth to deter them from crime. (Id.)

21 Like other prison staff, Correctional Officer Esparza has known Washington for 10 years and 22 praised “Washington’s growth into a positive, mature, respectful person that communicates well with 23 staff and inmates alike.” (Id. at 14.) In Esparza’s “professional opinion,” Washington has used available
24 programming to “rehabilitate himself.” (Id.)

25 Officer Bennet also reports that Washington “is now a rehabilitated man,” in light of his change
26 in attitude and behavior and use of the system in a positive way. (Id. at 16.) Bennett reports that 27 Washington has a “strong and positive moral character.” (Id.)
28

1 IV. Washington's certificates, prison work, and self-help programming

2 Washington's rehabilitative programming earned him several certificates and even more
3 laudatory chronos from prison staff.

4 In 1997, the Universal Life Church awarded a certificate to Washington for completing the 5 Credentials of Ministry. (Ex. C at 1.) A program called Crimion gave Washington certificates in 1997
6 for completing two courses: The Way to Happiness, and The Learning Improvement Extension Course.
7 (Id. at 2-3.)

8 The Crossroad Bible Institute in 2004 gave Washington a certificate of achievement for the 9 course, Great Truths of the Bible. (Id. at 4.) The Institute gave Washington another certificate in 2006
10 for the course, Ten Men You Should Know. (Id. at 6.)

12 course, Success From the Inside Out, Transition: Life Skills, Anger Management. (Id. at 5.)

14 effort. (Id. at 7.)

15 Finally, the Department of Corrections, CSP-Corcoran, gave Washington a certificate of 16 appreciation for his service on the Men's Advisory Council. (Id. at 8.)

17 As for chronos, several prison staff members commended Washington's self-help programming.
18 He earned chronos for participating in Alcoholics Anonymous and Narcotics Anonymous. (Ex. B at 1-19 2.) He earned two for completing business courses. (Ex. B at 8, 18.) Officer Melendrez praised 20 Washington for taking advantage of several educational programs, including a Parenting Class, Business
21 Class, Pure Education Program, Malachi Dads/Men Program, and the American Cancer Society's Relay
22 for Life Walk-a-Thon. (Id. at 15.)

23 V. Washington's personal statement

24 Washington wrote a paper called, My Talk, in which he explains his feelings about being in 25 prison and rehabilitating himself. It is attached as pages 1 and 2 of Exhibit D.

26 Washington explains that when he was sentenced, 25 years ago as an 18-year-old, he was "a lost 27 male that had no direction in life." (Ex. D at 1.) He didn't care about his life or anyone else. (Id.) He 28

1 looked up to drug dealers, hustlers, and gangsters as role models. (Id.) He lacked a positive male role
2 model and eventually started robbing, selling drugs, and doing what he felt necessary to feed and clothe
3 himself. (Id.) Nevertheless, Washington blames himself, not his circumstances, for his bad choices. (Id.)

4 Washington describes that he felt numb when sentenced to life without parole. (Id.) He felt
5 angry about being told that he was beyond redemption. He dove into the prison lifestyle that involved
6 fighting and rebelling against authority. (Id.) During several terms in Administrative Segregation and 7 the Security Housing Unit, he began to reflect on his life. (Id.)

8 In 2004, Washington decided to change his life. He forgave himself and turned his negative
9 feelings into self-acceptance and love. (Id.) He cut out negative influences and eventually learned that 10 his own positive behavior would naturally repel negative influences. (Id. at 1-2.) He actively practiced
11 loving people around him. (Id.)

12 At first, expressing his love made him uncomfortable because he had never been so emotionally
13 vulnerable before. (Id. at 2.) But he started liking his new self and turned his life around. (Id.)

14 Now, Washington's goal is to help others avoid falling into a life of crime and prison. (Id.) He 15 realizes how much his friends and family have suffered due to his confinement and wants to spare other
16 families that pain. (Id.)

17 VI. Washington's parole plans and community support

18 Even though Washington has no pending parole date or realistic chance of release, he has plans
19 to succeed in society. (Ex. D at 3-4.) He divided his parole plans into 7 steps. First, accepting that he 20 needs a healthy living environment to aid his transition to free society; his wife Crystal Chavez-
21 Washington will provide that environment. (Id. at 3.) Second, obtaining the necessary official
22 documents (driver's license, social security card, etc.) necessary to get a job. (Id.) Third, finding support
23 programs such as AA, NA, or other programs that aid in self-reflection. (Id.) Fourth, frequently 24 communicating with his parole officer and following the officer's directions. Washington will also 25 surround himself with positive, supporting people. (Id. at 4.) Fifth, acting deliberately, meaning thinking
26 through each situation before deciding on a course of conduct. (Id.) Sixth, actively pursue job offers
27 and, if he does not have a job within 30 days of his release, seeking help from his parole officer. (Id.)
28

1 Finally, reconnecting with his family and give back to the community through charity work, especially
2 by aiding his wife with the charity work that she regularly does. (Id.)

3 People outside of prison are ready to give Washington any necessary support. An organization
4 called 2nd Call, Second Chance at Loving Life, offered to help Washington develop additional job skills
5 and let Washington participate in weekly group meetings with potential employers. (Ex. E (support
6 letters) at 1.)

7 Washington's friend Dr. Shannon Sims, a professor at El Camino College in Los Angeles,
8 describes seeing Washington's personal growth and development into a man of character. (Id. at 2.) She 9 has personally seen Washington's positive attitude and offers to "personally take responsibility for 10 [Washington] to become active in [her] church, as well as in the community." (Id.) Sims also offered to 11 provide Washington with transportation to and from any job he gets, as well any other support. (Id.)

12 Washington's wife, Crystal Chavez-Washington, has seen Washington's "transformation first 13 hand from a troubled youth with no direction to a well-spoken, responsible, empathetic man." (Id. at 3.)
14 She notes that when released, Washington will have a stable home, reliable transportation, financial 15 support, and a loving family. (Id. at 4.) She does charity work and will be sure that Washington "will be 16 surrounded in positivity and giving back to society instead of taking" if he is released. (Id.)

17 Another friend, Eva Williams-Bly, knows Washington through his wife, and over 12 years has 18 seen Washington transform himself into a "positive and productive man." (Id. at 5.) Williams-Bly notes
19 that Washington accepts responsibility for his crime and will be a productive member of society on his 20 release. (Id.) She is sure of this and will provide any support needed to help Washington achieve his 21 goals. (Id. at 5-6.)

22 Maurice Butler has been Washington's friend since 1981, and he offers "unbridled support" for 23 Washington's clemency. (Id. at 8.) Butler served 18 years as a military officer who praises
24 Washington's "accomplishments, advancements, and positive influences." (Id.)

25 Lest there be any doubt about Washington's support network, several members of the prison
26 staff have seen Washington and his family in the visiting room and confirm that he has loving family 27 willing to give needed support. Sergeant Williams reports that on several occasions, he "had the 28 pleasure of meeting and interacting with Washington's family, [and] he has a loving support system that

1 really cares about his well being.” (Ex. B at 11.) Officer Campbell reported the same thing. (Ex. B at 2 13.)

4 VII. Conclusion

5 Washington was barely 18 years old when he committed his crime. He has spent 25 years in 6 prison, so he is more familiar with prison than he ever was with freedom. All accounts show a reformed
7 person of great character who would pose no threat to anyone.

8 Commuting Washington’s sentence to 25 years to life will reward his rehabilitative efforts
9 without endangering public safety. The Parole Board will not release him until he is ready, and if the 10 Board sets a release date, the Governor will have a chance to review it before Washington is released.
11 He merely asks for that chance.

Winona Marie Weathers

In 1990, Winona Weathers and several friends confronted William McClelland at his home over a debt that Mr. McClelland owed to Ms. Weathers. During the confrontation, one of Ms. Weathers' crime partners shot Mr. McClelland, killing him. On July 20, 1993, the Fresno County Superior Court sentenced Ms. Weathers to life without the possibility of parole plus 4 years for murder, assault with a firearm, and a firearm enhancement.

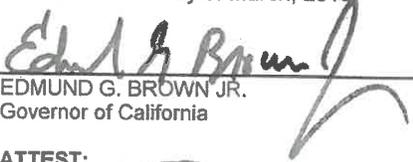

Ms. Weathers is now 57 years old and has been incarcerated for 27 years. In her application for clemency, Ms. Weathers wrote, "I use my past mistakes now to teach others not to make the same ones...I have a newfound appreciation for life." She has participated in numerous self-help programs, including White Bison, Narcotics Anonymous, and Freedom to Choose. Ms. Weathers has worked for years in the Prison Industry Authority, including as the lead inmate in the dental laboratory, and earned positive work ratings and commendations from her supervisors. One PIA superintendent praised her work ethic and noted that she "exhibited an attitude of good team spirit... Her work and efforts are very much appreciated by the laboratory." Another supervisor wrote, "I would endorse Ms. Weathers for any position whether inside the institution or in the free world where I hope she will be someday released." Although her sentence gave her no opportunity to be released from prison, Ms. Weathers earned her GED and developed marketable skills. She has been accepted to multiple transitional housing programs, and her family is prepared to help her if she is released.

Ms. Weathers participated in a very serious crime, but she has accepted responsibility for her actions and has worked hard to turn her life around. I believe that it is appropriate to reduce her sentence so that the Board of Parole Hearings can determine whether she is ready to be paroled.

THEREFORE, I, EDMUND G. BROWN JR., Governor of the State of California, by virtue of the power and authority vested in me by the Constitution and statutes of the State of California, do hereby commute the sentence of Winona Weathers to a total of 25 years to life.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF I have hereunto set my hand and caused the Great Seal of the State of California to be affixed this 30th Day of March, 2018.

EDMUND G. BROWN JR.
Governor of California

Why are you requesting clemency?

There are several issues I would like to address regarding this question. First and foremost, due to my age and the fact I'm not getting any younger, I will be 52 in May and my life continues to pass me by.

I am seeking release before I'm too old to work and support myself. I do

... have a couple of medical issues but they will not hinder me from holding a job and taking care of myself. I do not want to be a burden on Society or my Family when I'm released. I am, and always have been an independent individual whom, while in society, held jobs for long periods of time. I was trustworthy and dependable; As I have also been throughout my years in Prison, Report-cards will reflect.

Before my incarceration, I had never ever been in any trouble. I am not a repeat offender, nor am I a violent or troublesome person. I've lived with great regret and remorse through these years and wish, still today, to take it all back if I could! I made a grave mistake because of my own poor judgement and still, I feel the remorse for the loss of another persons life. I would never take another persons life intentionally, even if my own were on the brink of death, Though the regret weighed heavy on me for many years, I can say I've learned how to take something so awful and turn it into a positive tool. I use my past mistakes now to teach others not to make the same ones. I use myself as a bad example and let it be known that sometimes horrible things do happen even if it's not intended. I do this with the hope it will deter and change these women's lives, giving them new hope and a push toward a better future for themselves; If I can turn one life around, I believe I have done some good for Society. I work hard at this at every AA and NA meeting I attend. I have a newfound appreciation for life, and because of that, I take my sobriety very serious and will continue to do so throughout the rest of my life.

I am a humble Women, not Religious but very Spiritual. I have found through that Spirituality, Gods grace and His forgiveness. With the acceptance of that, I've learned to forgive myself. This I admit, did not come easy! I was riddled with the burden of guilt and as time passed, I found it helped praying for peace for my Victims family and the suffering they had to endure because of their loss. They however, were not the only ones who suffered for the price of my actions. My own family, my Parents, and my Children suffered as well. For when I was sentenced, they too were sentenced to a life without me in it. Unfair to all is an understatement! I was blind as to how many other human beings would be affected by my selfless actions. I was selfish and wrong beyond explanation.

However, my past does not make me a bad person, nor who I am today. I learn from my mistakes. I work hard now daily, making amends, helping others through their troubles, or simply giving of myself wherever or whenever the need arises, even within these walls. I've reached out to people outside of these walls as well, seeking forgiveness from all who I've hurt. As for my behavior while incarcerated these past 21 years, I believe my record speaks for itself. I can't make excuses for what trouble I've gotten into while incarcerated. I know better. Unfortunately we all fall sometimes. I will continue to learn from those mistakes and in the future remove myself from such things before anything happens. Otherwise I've done fairly well following the rules and regulations of CDCR. I did receive (8) eight infractions (115's) in all of these 21 years I've served, my most serious was the last one I received in January 2010. My infractions are minor compared to most, but not excusable. I have never, as a Lifer, been involved in any physical altercations (Fights). It is

..... not in my nature to be violent, I have always walked away from confrontation and I have continued to remain disciplinary free since my transfer back here to CCCWF, Central California Womens Facility. In closing this section, I ask that you take note of all chrono's and disciplinary history when reviewing my Central File. You will see, the good behavior does out weigh the inappropriate. Thank you for taking your time to read this section.

You will find all letters of support attached at the closing of this application.

COMMUTATION OF SENTENCE

Complete this section if you are currently under sentence and requesting clemency for any reason not covered above.

Explain why you are requesting clemency.

My reason for requesting Commutation is because I am an Indigent Inmate who for the most part cannot afford an Attorney to appeal my case. Though I do believe I have excellent grounds for Appeal, I have no Finances to replace the some 4,000 or so pages of transcripts which were lost. The grounds I speak of are as follows. First was my 6th amendment to be violated. During trial, I/ my Attorney was unable to cont: Have you sought relief from the courts? pg.7a Initial appeal was all that was sought due to loss of Transcripts later on in sentence.

Cross-Examine my number one accuser, witness for the D.A. Micheal Allen due to him taking the Fifth Amendment during questioning to avoid incrimination. Mis-Trial Motion was declared at once, however, Judge Fitch, who was the Judge for our trial, denied our motion stating he was letting it slide and to take it up with the higher Courts and at that time instructed the jury to disregard the witness and his testimony. Unfortunately, the D.A. managed to plant that seed of questioning in the Jury's minds. During direct Appeal this was also denied. Second violation of my rights was the violation of my Fourth amendment. This happened when the Judge allowed evidence obtained without search warrant, from my personal property, into evidence for the Trial. Both pieces of evidence obtained, were obtained from two separate properties. This showing the D.A. felt he was above the law and didn't have to follow it. He had ample time to obtain a Search Warrant but chose not to. My Attorney Motioned to suppress the Evidence, but again, the Judge denied the Motion and stated he was tired of our case and wanted it out of his Court room. Motion Denied! Third was Jury Misconduct. This took place when one of the jurors took it upon himself to travel to Cathy's Valley, where I resided and took several pictures of my property there. Returning to Court the next day, he then shared with the other jurors the pictures while on lunch break in the Court house lunch room. All Attornies were made aware of this behavior and upon resuming Court proceedings after lunch Motioned for Mis-Trial once again, due to Jury Misconduct. Judge Fitch was becoming very short on patience, making it very clear with his gavel that he would deny any further motions for Mis-Trial, ordering all attornies to get their closing arguments together because he was done and wanted our case out of his Court Room now!! The D.A. then called his witness, Debbie Baker to the stand. This witnesses behavior was very unsettling. So much so that she had a problem staying focused on the questioning. Shortly after the questioning began Ms. Baker was shaking so bad the Judge stopped the questioning and asked her what her problem was. At first she refused to answer, the Judge then told her he would find her in contempt of Court if she refused any further questioning. Again he asked her what her problem was, was she high on drugs. She then answered yes to this question. When the judge asked where she obtained the drugs, she hesitated but then told him they, the drugs were delivered to her by the D.A. or his assistant to her Hotel room where he had housed her for the trial. Our attornies attempted to declair a Mis-Trial, all knew it was fruitless because the Judge didn't even respond, all we got was a fierce glare.

From there the trial moved on and after the testimony of the defendants forensic expert, the D.A called for a recess. We were coming to the end of the forth week of trial. While out of the presents of the jury, the D.A. offered all defendants their own plea bargains. I and one of my Co-defendants was offered (11), Eleven years plus one for the enhancement. I, alone jumped on it. I felt it was fair because I did owe some kind of time to the State for what had happened. A humans life was lost and I was willing to take my part of the responsibility. However, none of my Co-defendants accepted theirs. At that time Court was ajourned with proceedings picking back up the next day. Upon resuming the Trial the next morning, and before the jury was allowed in the Court room, the D.A. again offered us all the plea agreements. Again I accepted mine a second time. Unfortunately, my Co-defendants did not accept theirs and at that time the D.A turned to me and said he was taking mine back because it was a package deal, if they were'nt taking theirs I couldnt have mine!

Now here I sit 21½ years later, I've served Three Quarters of the time I was sentenced to. With no regrets, I believe I've learned more about life in here than I ever would have had I lived my life as a normal citizen. Before all this happened I knew nothing about the law. It has only been through trial and error that I've learned about the Law and how badly my Constitutional Rights were violated. What I've reiterated above, I've done to the best of my ability. Court / Trial transcripts should reflect the same.

Please take note, all chronos and certificates were to many to have copied. I was told to have copies made I would of had to go through a copy service. However, I have enclused those which have not reached my Centeral File as of the date this Application was completed.

Conditions commonly attached to conditional Pardons include abstention from use of intoxicating liquor, bona fide exertions to support dependents, Avoiding subsequent conviction of any offence against the States Criminal law and, DEPARTURE from the State of California immediately after receiving the Pardon/Commutation and promising never to return.

I am aware of the above mentioned conditions and am willing to comply to all conditions that it states. This I do of my own free will and have not been coerced.

COMMUTATION OF SENTENCE

Ardell Adams, Jr.

On September 18, 1993, Ardell Adams shot and killed Kristoffer Brown in a botched robbery attempt outside a market. On August 8, 1994, the Sacramento County Superior Court sentenced Mr. Adams to life without the possibility of parole for murder plus five years for a firearm enhancement.

Mr. Adams has been incarcerated for almost 25 years and has expressed remorse for the crime he committed. In his commutation application, he wrote, "I regret every single second of that night, and I wish I could undo all the pain and suffering I caused the victim and everyone affected by my crime." He told an investigator that he applied for a commutation based on his positive programming and his terminal colon cancer. He said that he has been given only months to live due to his Stage IV colon cancer. Mr. Adams said, "Even if I don't benefit from this commutation, I'd still like to take responsibility for the crime and show that I am a better person and have changed, show that I am no longer a threat to society and that I have turned my life around."

Mr. Adams has dedicated himself to his rehabilitation. Mr. Adams has resided on the honor yard since 2014. He earned his GED, is currently enrolled in college classes, and completed vocational training in auto mechanics. An instructor in the vocational auto mechanics program wrote regarding Mr. Adams, "He has been a disciplined student and has been no trouble, working well with his peers and superiors." The instructor noted that Mr. Adams "has excelled and stood as an example to his peers," while also showing remorse for his past actions. Mr. Adams participated in self-help programs, donated to charity, and participated in the Inmate Peer Education Program. He currently tutors other inmates.

I am also moved by Mr. Adams's illness. He suffers from terminal colon cancer, which has metastasized to the rest of his body. Mr. Adams endured aggressive chemotherapy, which was ultimately unsuccessful. He is currently undergoing further treatment, but his life expectancy remains short. Mr. Adams has demonstrated his commitment to his rehabilitation. I believe that he has now fundamentally altered his way of thinking and is worthy of mercy. For all the foregoing reasons, I believe Mr. Adams has earned the opportunity to present his case immediately to the Board of Parole Hearings so it can determine whether he is suitable for parole.

THEREFORE, I, EDMUND G. BROWN JR., Governor of the State of California, by virtue of the power and authority vested in me by the Constitution and statutes of the State of California, do hereby commute the sentence of Ardell Adams, Jr. to a total of 25 years to life.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF I have hereunto set my hand and caused the Great Seal of the State of California to be affixed this 17th day of August, 2018.

Criminal all those years ago. Before my life crime, I did not have the capacity to discern the true nature of the situation, or the lasting impact it would have on everyone's life. After several years of incarceration, continuing my criminal ways of drinking and smoking marijuana. I reached a turning point in my life, I made the decision to change my ways and start to make a difference for myself and those around me. I began to educate myself and study for my GED, because I knew that an education was a key foundation to build on. With my GED finally in hand, I began to fully participate in as many self-help classes as I could, beginning with N.A & A.A. I then took a trade for Automotive Technician and received a Certificate of Graduation. I continued to take other self-help classes, GOGI, Personal Development, Motivational Interview, Autogenic, Suicide Prevention, Work Force Development, Domestic Violence, and several Health Care classes. I eventually enrolled in Antelope Valley College for an A.A in Business and a Certificate in Computer Science. In the process of educating myself and participating in the Personal Development classes, I looked deep within my core of whom I was, to gain a deeper understanding of the ripple effect that my past actions have caused. I realized the true impact of my crime internally and externally. I relived it, felt it, and allowed myself to completely understand the core meaning of empathy. I realized the emotional and physical pain and suffering I have caused Mr. Christopher Brown, his family members, my family members, friends and everyone else who was effected by my actions. With empathy and shame, I truly despise the person I was at the time of my life crime. Right then, I made a promise to myself and to God, that I denounce all forms of illegal and criminal activities, and that I would try to make a difference in other people's life. I am requesting a commutation because inside this rehabilitated soul is a heart that is connected with the people, humanity, and the unity of all lives. I am more than capable of making moral and rational decisions on my own. I am requesting commutation to my sentence so I can have an opportunity to go to the Parole Board and plea my case of how I have become a better person from all the hard work I have done through rehabilitations classes. Thank you for your time Mr. Governor.

(Continue Q#4)

Expert psychologist discovered that a 19 yr. old mind is still under developed, and shouldn't receive such a definitive and harsh sentence of LWOP. Even the D.A in my case offered me a 29 year-to-life deal before trial, so he must have thought I could possibly be rehabilitated at some point. Never the less, I should be granted a commutation because I did the work to change and rehabilitate myself. I used my insight and empathy to understand the causative factor's in my life crime. I changed the way I thought, and what I believed as a criminal. I learned my triggers, and developed coping skills so that I can deal with any situation with a rational mind. I educated myself, received honors, and engrossing myself in every human development class I could. Mr. Brown, I should be granted a commutation to my sentence because I am a completely changed person that wants a second chance.

Deryus Tramaine Brown

On January 11, 2004, 19-year-old Deryus Brown drove two fellow gang members into an apartment complex. One of Mr. Brown's passengers fired multiple shots into Mario Vasquez's car, hitting him once and killing him. On September 28, 2006, the Sacramento County Superior Court sentenced Mr. Brown to life without the possibility of parole for murder plus 25 years to life for gang and firearm enhancements. His crime partners – including the shooter – accepted plea deals and received shorter prison terms than Mr. Brown; they will be eligible for parole hearings in 2019 and 2020.

Mr. Brown is now 34 years old and has been incarcerated for 13 years. He has never been disciplined for any misconduct, has never been involved with drugs or violence in prison, and dropped out of his gang. Mr. Brown has participated in self-help programs, including Lifers With Optimistic Promise, Parenting, Defy Ventures, and the Truth Project. He is a member of the Gavel Club and the Inmate Debater's Organizational Group. Mr. Brown earned his GED and routinely receives above average to exceptional work ratings. In 2012, a correctional counselor commended Mr. Brown for his work ethic and wrote, "Brown has demonstrated professionalism, dependability, and efficiency in the performance of his duties." Mr. Brown told an investigator from the Board of Parole Hearings that he appreciates all that he has learned in prison and that he now has a much more profound respect for life.

When Mr. Brown came to prison, he had no hope of ever leaving. Despite this, he has distanced himself from the toxic influences of gangs, drugs, and violence. While he was the driver in a serious and fatal crime, there is no indication that public safety requires that Mr. Brown be incarcerated for the rest of his life. He has made admirable efforts to change his ways and has earned the opportunity to appear before the Board of Parole Hearings so it can determine whether he is suitable for parole.

THEREFORE, I, EDMUND G. BROWN JR., Governor of the State of California, by virtue of the power and authority vested in me by the Constitution and statutes of the State of California, do hereby commute the sentence of Deryus Brown to a total of 20 years to life.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF I have hereunto set my hand and caused the Great Seal of the State of California to be affixed this 17th day of August, 2018.

 I'm requesting clemency because I did not kill the victim in my case, yet I'm treated as though I did. My sentence of life without parole plus 25 years to life is more than the sentence of the actual perpetrator in my case. I feel that this is unfair.

Wayne Weston Burleson

In September 1997, Joel Baptiste and Wayne Burleson lured Stephen Preston into a borrowed van under the pretense that they were all going to steal rims from a Porsche. Instead, while they were driving, Mr. Burleson shot Mr. Preston in the neck, killing him. Mr. Burleson and Mr. Baptiste then stole Mr. Preston's money and watch. On December 10, 1999, the Orange County Superior Court sentenced Mr. Burleson to life without the possibility of parole for murder plus a four year firearm enhancement.

Mr. Burleson has now been incarcerated for more than 20 years. In his application for clemency, Mr. Burleson wrote that he began participating in criminal activity after his unstable childhood and the losses of his father, uncle, and a close friend to suicide, which led him to "abandon [himself] to drugs, drinking, and violence" when he was 18 years old. He reported that he has now been sober for 20 years and has dedicated himself to turning his life around. Mr. Burleson wrote, "I have made significant contributions to the lives of my peers and their families during my time in prison, and I think that I have significant contributions to make to society as a result of the things I have learned and the time I have invested in my maturation. And I will continue to make those contributions whether I receive a commutation or not."

During more than two decades in prison and with no possibility of parole, Mr. Burleson has been dedicated to transforming his life. He has never been disciplined for any misconduct. He earned his GED and a career readiness certificate from Baylor University. Mr. Burleson has participated in multiple self-help programs, including Denial Management, Alternatives to Violence, Nonviolent Conflict Resolution, and Victim Awareness. Through his positive attitude and behavior, Mr. Burleson has earned the respect of the staff members and prison volunteers who see him on a regular basis.

Most importantly, the warden of the prison where Mr. Burleson has been housed since 2012 has personally recommended him for commutation. He also receives excellent work ratings and commendations from correctional staff. A correctional sergeant who supervised him wrote, "Each and every day Mr. Burleson has come to work with a respectful, positive attitude [and] a want and desire to make a difference. . . . I am recommending, if Mr. Burleson is going to be given consideration to have his sentence commuted and/or a chance to prove himself to the parole board, he be given that chance." A correctional officer who has worked at CDCR for 22 years wrote, "Looking at the person that Burleson has become, I do believe that if he was granted a parole date, he would be successful and a great contributor to our society." In the event of his release, Mr. Burleson plans to live in a re-entry facility, and his friends have offered him employment and housing to help him transition into society.

Mr. Burleson committed a very serious crime, but it is clear that he has distinguished himself by his exemplary conduct and rehabilitation in prison. For these reasons, I believe that Mr. Burleson has earned the opportunity to present his case to the Board of Parole Hearings so it can determine whether he is suitable for parole.

THEREFORE, I, EDMUND G. BROWN JR., Governor of the State of California, by virtue of the power and authority vested in me by the Constitution and statutes of the State of California, do hereby commute the sentence of Wayne Burleson to a total of 25 years to life.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF I have hereunto set my hand and caused the Great Seal of the State of California to be affixed this 17th Day of August, 2018.

In 1997, a few months after my twentieth birthday, someone I thought was a friend, Joel Baptiste, approached me with a proposition to participate in the murder of Steven Preston who had supposedly wronged his family in some way. 3. Explain why you are requesting a pardon or commutation (attach additional pages as necessary):

I am requesting that my sentence be commuted to twenty-five to life because I believe that having the opportunity to earn my way out of prison would allow me to re-enter society as a man for whom incarceration worked, as an example of true transformation and rehabilitation. 4. Provide a brief statement explaining why you should be granted a pardon or commutation (attach additional pages if necessary):

I don't believe that I "should" be granted a commutation. It would be an act of mercy which I don't think can be earned. However a commutation is an intrinsically merciful act. It seems to me that mercy should not be wasted and (see attached)

I had come to the end of being able to sustain a year of cocaine addiction and believed that participating in the murder would allow me to continue the destructive path that I was on. After the loss of multiple family members during my adolescent years culminating with the suicide of a close friend when I was eighteen, I chose to abandon myself to drugs, drinking, and violence. I did not look for other options to my pain and loss. I was at the lowest part of my life when Joel brought the proposition. To my great shame and deep regret, I chose to shoot and murder Steven when it looked like Joel was not going to. I am ashamed to say that I murdered Steven to get money in order to continue my criminal lifestyle rather than turn away from it.

3) for positive change and influence on others. I want to continue to use my life and all that I have learned in ways that will be of more value to society. It would be a great honor just to have a chance to be measured by the Board of Parole Hearings.

4) certainly not given to those who would cause greater harm. My post-incarceration record shows that I have matured and become the kind of person who will not use mercy as a means for further harm, but even more that I would use it for good.

Tangible examples of what I would do with mercy can be seen in the consistency of what I have done for almost twenty years. I received mercy when I was sentenced to Life Without Parole instead of the Death Penalty and I have used it to turn my life into a positive, motivating contribution to others. I took responsibility for murdering Steven by telling the truth during my court process. I agreed to pay for his burial costs and worked hard to do so, having fulfilled that obligation in March 2017 (a $9,772.98 obligation). I have remained disciplinary free throughout my time in prison, maintained sobriety, and avoided gang involvement and violence for almost twenty years. I have obtained my GED, learned and taught New Testament Greek for National Bible College, and graduated from Defy Ventures' Entrepreneurial and Career Readiness Program with certification from Baylor University's Hankamer School of Business. I have participated in numerous self-help groups and Bible based programs for my personal development, and grown into a Facilitator and teacher to help my peers. I have mentored others, starting with my time in the County Jail, and obtained the respect and appreciation of my peers, Prison Staff, and the families of many of the men I've helped. My chronos, certificates, and support letters all demonstrate these facts about who I have become.

Mr. Governor, I wish that I could do more than I have to make atonement for the terrible things I have done, especially what I did to Steven and his family. But I have done all I could imagine to do, to the best of my ability, and with all my heart. My time and the mercy I have received in the sparing of my life has not been wasted. I believe that the only reason I was allowed to live was because God wanted to turn my life into an instrument of blessing and change for others. So I have lived like it. I have made significant contributions to the lives of my peers and their families during my time in prison, and I think that I have significant contributions to make to society as a result of the things that I have learned and the time I have invested in my maturation. And I will continue to make those contributions whether I receive a commutation or not. But if there are reasons why I "should" receive a commutation, these are those reasons. Thank you, sir. God bless.

COMMUTATION OF SENTENCE

Autumn Cruz

On January 25, 2005, Autumn Cruz and some fellow gang members decided to confront Melvin Liufau over the numerous calls Ms. Cruz had been receiving on a cell phone she purchased from Mr. Liufau. On the way to Mr. Liufau's house, Ms. Cruz suggested they rob Mr. Liufau. While attempting to rob Mr. Liufau, a fight broke out and Ms. Cruz shot Mr. Liufau, killing him. On July 20, 2007, the Orange County Superior Court sentenced Ms. Cruz to life without the possibility of parole for murder plus a 25 years to life firearm enhancement.

Ms. Cruz wrote in her application, "I committed my crime when I was a reckless, impulsive 20-year-old." She continued, "However, I am no longer that 20-year-old impulsive, self-absorbed little girl. I am a 33-year-old woman who takes full responsibility for the poor choices that led directly to the killing of Melvin Liufau." Ms. Cruz has been incarcerated for 13 years and has worked to turn her life around. She no longer associates with gang members, and has dedicated herself to her rehabilitation through her commitment to self-improvement and furthering her education. In her commutation application, she wrote, "I was once told that my sentence meant that I was not even 'worth' rehabilitating, again reinforcing the belief that I [was] 'worthless.' With a broken heart and broken spirit, I picked up the pieces, piece by piece and sought to rehabilitate myself with hard work, growth, and determination." She told an investigator from the Board of Parole Hearings, "Whether I get my sentence commuted or not, I'm going to continue to change...to grow and everything I learn, I'm going to continue to pass on, no matter what happens."

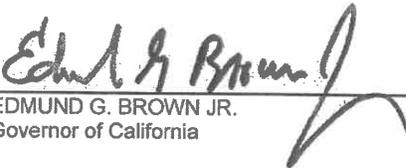

Ms. Cruz had no prior criminal history before committing this crime. She has resided in the honor dorm of her prison since 2014. A correctional officer wrote that "It is enlightening to witness Inmate Cruz become an avid mentor to her peers and her undeniable passion to help others, without being conformed to the negative environment around her." Ms. Cruz earned her A.A. degree in Social and Behavioral Sciences, and participated in numerous self-help programs, including Anger Management, Relapse Prevention, and Victim Impact Awareness. She is a participant of the Juvenile Offenders Committee, donated to charity, and contributed to several activities sponsored by the Big Sister Mentor Program.

Although Ms. Cruz is serving a sentence that gave her no hope of release from prison, she has dedicated herself to rehabilitation and education. Ms. Cruz is on the right track and should continue her efforts to improve her life in the coming years. For these reasons, I believe that Ms. Cruz has earned the opportunity to present her case to the Board of Parole Hearings so it can determine whether she is suitable for parole.

THEREFORE, I, EDMUND G. BROWN JR., Governor of the State of California, by virtue of the power and authority vested in me by the Constitution and statutes of the State of California, do hereby commute the sentence of Autumn Cruz to a total of 20 years to life.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF I have hereunto set my hand and caused the Great Seal of the State of California to be affixed this 17th day of August, 2018.

Dear Governor Jerry Brown,

I write this with my heart torn wide open for all to see. I beg you to please allow me the opportunity to go before the parole board to demonstrate my growth, and to humbly stand and account for all my transgressions before the family of Melvin Liafau.

I stand accountable for the negative impact my violence had on Melvin, his family and the community. My actions will continue to be felt for the remainder of all our lives, actions that I can never make right. I am no longer a 20-year- old impulsive, reckless child. I am no longer a young life prisoner too immature to seek help.

I was once told that my sentence meant that I was not even "worth" rehabilitating, again reinforcing the belief that I had my whole life "worthless." With a broken heart and broken spirit, I picked up the pieces, piece by piece and sought to rehabilitate myself with hard work, growth, and determination.

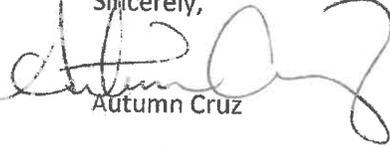

My desire is to tell of this transformation that that has taken place in my heart. It is not to stand, boast, and baffle you with all my achievements, chronos, accolades and commendations, as if to somehow prove my worth that warrants me forgiveness through my own works. It is my hearts desire to stand before the commissioners and Melvin's family and tell how my own devastating sinful nature, my pride, selfishness, moods, fears, and my distorted perceptions led me to commit my life crime. To be able to stand and speak of all the heart retching pain, suffering, and torment that crushed my pride and arrogance, that brought me to a place of repentance, the unimaginable suffering of body, mind, and spirit that brought me to the end of myself. I came to a place of total dependence on the Lord.

Through my own suffering by way of causing others pain and heartache this increased my capacity for empathy. I have learned to fulfill one of Christ most fundamental desires for us: that we love our neighbor as we love ourselves. The greatest good is to be conformed to the image of Christ.

This relentless love of Christ has filled my heart. I have come to love and value others and myself. I want to share my new heart with everyone. I am no longer concerned with presenting an "image" for people to approve my worth. I found my worth in the Lord. Today I choose the path of humility.

Governor Brown I beg you to please take this application into consideration, when choosing potential candidates for commutation.

Thank You

Sincerely,

Autumn Cruz

Application of Commutation of Sentence (Attachment Question #2)

- Briefly describe the circumstances of the crime for which you are requesting a commutation.

I Autumn Cruz was found by a jury to be guilty of first-degree murder, under special circumstances of it having been committed in the commission of an attempted robbery and to further gang activity a crime enhanced by personal discharge of a fire arm causing death of Melvin Liufau, and having been committed to benefit a criminal street gang. I was rightfully sentenced to life in prison without the possibility of parole, plus 25 to life for the firearm enhancement and 15 to life for the gang enhancement. The 15 to life was stricken on direct appeal. I am solely responsible for the shooting of Melvin Liufau, who was shot and killed in the comfort of his own home.

Application of Commutation of Sentence (Attachment Question #3)

- Explain why you are requesting a commutation?

I committed my crime when I was a reckless, impulsive 20-year-old. I was in a state of emotional turmoil. I had no identity and no self-worth. I had no regard for my life or the lives of others. My life at this time was completely unmanageable. Throughout my incarceration, I have come to learn the root of all my dysfunction. With growth, maturity, and a willingness to search deeply for the insight that directly led to me taking the life of Melvin Liufau, I have come to accept my actions and take the responsibility for them.

In the past, I have made all my decisions not on basic right or wrong principles, but on a self-gratifying selfish basis. Today I have morals and values based on my belief in Jesus Christ. Today all of my decisions are based on those morals and values, under no circumstances do I compromise the integrity on which I stand.

I know that I can never come to fully comprehend the magnitude of my crime, (my actions). It is truly immeasurable. My act of violence stole a life and stole peace of mind in the families and communities. I so senselessly caused destruction and chaos. However, I am no longer that 20-year-old impulsive, self-absorbed little girl. I am a 33-year-old woman who takes full responsibility for the poor choices that led directly to the killing of Melvin Liufau. I take full responsibility for the pain and suffering I caused Melvin's family.

I am requesting a commutation so that I might be afforded the opportunity to stand before the board but most importantly to humbly stand before the family of Melvin Liufau and publicly express to all his family the true nature of my crime. I would like to humbly stand before them and take full responsibility for my actions in this horrific crime. I am asking for the chance to express my heart cry of remorse, to express how this great pain and regret drove me to my knees in repentance. A chance to express to them that I know I deserve nothing because I do know that I can never right this wrong.

In essence, to maybe give them some type of healing, a closure that Melvin's killer takes responsibility for her actions, and truly understands the harm and pain I caused everyone.

Governor Brown this is why I am requesting a commutation of sentence, To have the opportunity to stand in account for my crime before the family of Melvin Liufau and the board of commissioners.

Application of Commutation of Sentence (Attachment Question #4)

- Provide a brief statement explaining why you should be granted a commutation.

I do not believe that I "should" be granted anything. I am guilty of killing a man a crime that cannot ever be rectified. There is no changing that not ever. There is no amount of chrono's education, nor insight or remorse that I could ever show that would allow me to be "deserving" of a commutation of sentence. However, I do have hope. I am hopeful that grace and mercy would be extended to me, to allow me the opportunity to express the continuous progression of transformation that has taken place in the heart.

All I am asking at this point is to be heard on an interview. From there you can decide if mercy should ~~be~~ extended to me. I ask this with a humble heart.

COMMUTATION OF SENTENCE

Stephen Edmond Davis

On October 29, 1995, 19-year-old Stephen Davis and a friend were trying to buy methamphetamine from Willie Yen. During the transaction, Mr. Yen was shot and killed. On June 13, 1997, the Los Angeles County Superior Court sentenced Mr. Davis to life without the possibility of parole for murder plus four years for a firearm enhancement.

Mr. Davis cooperated with law enforcement during the investigation of the murder and at the time of sentencing, the investigating officer recommended a sentence of 25 or 30 years to life. The Probation Officer's Report found, "The defendant, especially if he is drug free, is not seen as a likely recidivist; rather, this offense and all of the circumstances (including state prison) which flow from it are likely to have a profoundly deterrent effect on him. If he is released in the future, it seems likely that he will do everything in his power to become a constructive force and productive member of society." Indeed, even faced with the prospect of spending the rest of his life in prison, Mr. Davis has committed himself to transforming his life.

Mr. Davis has only been disciplined six times during more than two decades of incarceration, and has never been involved with gangs or participated in violence. He has participated in college courses and has excelled in jobs in the prison, routinely receiving above-average work ratings. Mr. Davis has participated in mental health programs and self-help groups including Cognitive Behavior Therapy, Criminal Thinking, Responsible Living, Anger Management, and Houses of Healing. He worked with the DARE program to counsel at-risk youth on the consequences of using drugs. He has earned the respect of staff members and volunteers, including a conference sponsor who noted that Mr. Davis was a "constant mentor" to other inmates, and a clinical psychologist who observed that he was responsible, hardworking, and respectful. In 2017, Mr. Davis was one of five inmates at his prison selected to give a TED Talk and spoke about finding purpose in life.

The trial judge in this case, Judge Francis Hourigan, wrote recommending clemency, noting the tremendous growth Mr. Davis has made – he believes this "drug-free, mature 42-year-old man" is far from the 19-year-old drug user who committed this crime. Judge Hourigan wrote, "Mr. Davis will not be a threat to re-offend if he is released on parole." Additionally, the former deputy district attorney who prosecuted Mr. Davis's case, Todd Rubenstein, also strongly supports his commutation. He wrote that Mr. Davis was younger and more passive than his crime partner, that Mr. Davis was never offered a plea deal, and that there was "little, if anything," to distinguish Mr. Davis's crime from others that receive lesser sentences. Mr. Rubenstein continued, "Most significantly, Mr. Davis has positively programmed for 17 years and has done so without any reasonable expectation that he will ever be released. This single factor more than any other demonstrates a great deal about his character and how he will conduct himself if ever released." A retired police investigator who worked on Mr. Davis's case also wrote to me urging clemency, saying, "I feel Stephen Davis has paid his debt to society... He made a horrible mistake in judgement that night in 1995 and should not spend the rest of his life incarcerated." Mr. Davis has the support of his family and a plan for housing and a job upon release. He has a Narcotics Anonymous sponsor and a relapse prevention plan.

There is no question that Mr. Davis's crime was senseless and left Mr. Yen's family and friends reeling in grief. But I believe Mr. Davis's record in prison after 22 years is such that he ought to have a chance to make his case before the Board of Parole Hearings so that it can determine whether he is suitable for parole.

THEREFORE, I, EDMUND G. BROWN JR., Governor of the State of California, by virtue of the power and authority vested in me by the Constitution and statutes of the State of California, do hereby commute the sentence of Stephen Edmond Davis to a total of 25 years to life.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF I have hereunto set my hand and caused the Great Seal of the State of California to be affixed this 17th day of August, 2018.

My BIO

My name is Stephen Davis. I am A husband, father, Son, brother and uncle. I have been incarcerated for 22 years. Included with my sentence commutation request is A memorandum prepared by A friend who is also A lawyer. It lists legal reasons for my request, I however would like to detail my rehabilitation.

When first arrested and subsequently being sent to prison I refused to accept responsibility for my actions. I always had an excuse or shifted blame. Now after years of hard work toward self development, I can stand up and accept responsibility for my drug use and actions which led me to prison. And the thinking that fueled them. Not until I accepted the truth and sought help did things begin to change for me.

My transformation started with A 12 step N.A. class and some hard to face questions. This led me to seek mental health support as well. At the time CDCR have very few rehabilitation programming, so I took it upon myself. I read self help books such as 'The four Agreements', 'houses of healing', 'we're all doing time' etc. Then when classes became available I took all that were offered. These included Criminal Thinking, Mindfulness, Anger Management, Behavioral Modification, Restorative Justice and many more. I began to practice mindfulness on A daily basis and also began to deepen my spiritual studies. Coupled with Cognitive Behavior Therapy (CBT) as well as group therapy, I began to witness my own transformation. I was even able to start teaching classes on meditation, yoga and spiritualism. I also enrolled in college, taking A wide range of class topics. I am currently one semester away from receiving 4 separate degrees (science and math, arts and humanities, sociology and behavioral sciences). I have also been fortunate enough to be chosen to be one of the 11 people who make up the "core team" who were responsible for developing, organizing and hosting two separate TEDx events here at Donovan. Also in 2017 I was chosen to be one of only 5 men to be A speaker and create then deliver our own talk that was performed before an audience of 250 people, including members of the outside public. I delivered my talk on "Finding Purpose" which is now on YouTube with thousands of views. This led me to be interviewed by not only the San Diego Tribune, but also ABC news. (Please view Provided links). I have worked diligently throughout my incarceration, maintaining jobs, often as A clerk using computers, but also to recognize my wrongs; in behavior and thinking. I've utilized the skills I've learned to be independent, keep away from prison gangs/politics, think for myself, mend old wounds and maintain sobriety. I'm continually working to better myself and had started this process many years ago with the belief I would never again be free. However, I wanted to be A better person. Recognizing I not only wanted but needed to change.

I am fortunate ~~to~~ to have maintained strong support, from family and friends throughout the years and have even gained some new ones. In 2008 I was also reunited with A childhood friend. We rekindled our relationship, leading to A happy marriage in 2013 which blessed me with two beautiful step daughters who I've watched grow and love as my own. Though incarcerated I have played an active role as A parent in both thier lives.

I've maintained sobriety and healthy living in part, due to my vast network of support, which has allowed me to flourish and grow, even in this harsh environment. I'm no longer that teenager ruled by drugs; I am now a 41 year old man who is self aware, independent, and mindful of my thoughts and actions. Striving to make amends for his past, recognizing all the harm I've caused to countless people.

My dream is to one day be able to sit in front of a parole board and be given an opportunity to show that I have changed. That I am no longer the person I was, and though I will always carry the shame and guilt for my crimes I can now use my past to help and teach others. I know I can be a productive, lawful member of society, working to not only help provide for my wife and daughters but my community as well.

Thank you for considering me for a possible sentence commutation.

Laverne Sharon Dejohnette

In 1994, Eddie Craven hired Laverne Dejohnette and Michael Phillips for prostitution. On April 9, 1994, Mr. Phillips and Ms. Dejohnette killed Mr. Craven in his home, ransacked his apartment, and stole his car and other possessions. On May 24, 1996, the Los Angeles County Superior Court sentenced Ms. Dejohnette to life without the possibility of parole for murder.

During an investigation by the Board of Parole Hearings, Ms. Dejohnette reported enduring an extremely difficult childhood. She was kidnapped by her abusive, alcoholic father and brought to California when she was just three years old. She endured sexual abuse from multiple family members, and was placed in foster care at age 13. Her foster mother introduced her to drugs and encouraged her to prostitute herself. Ms. Dejohnette ultimately ran away from home, and was working as a prostitute, using drugs, and living on the streets when she committed this crime. She is now 50 years old and has been incarcerated for 24 years.

In prison, Ms. Dejohnette has made a remarkable turnaround. In her application for clemency, she wrote, "I am no longer in denial of the destructive behaviors and the devastation and hurt I have caused. Today I have a strong desire to help others, especially incest survivors, that they may not find themselves in the same situations I landed myself in." Ms. Dejohnette stopped using drugs and reports that she has been now sober for more than two decades. She has never been involved with gangs in prison, and has not been disciplined for misconduct in years. Ms. Dejohnette has participated in numerous self-help programs including Celebrate Recovery, Anger Management, Alternatives to Violence, and Criminal and Addictive Thinking. She also created the curriculum for several self-help workshops, and facilitates multiple groups for her peers. Ms. Dejohnette receives positive work ratings, learned marketable skills during many years working in the Prison Industry Authority, and currently serves as an adult caregiver, helping elderly and infirm inmates who need assistance.

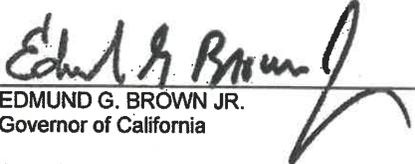

Ms. Dejohnette has also earned the respect and support of many staff members within the prison. Multiple officers have recognized Ms. Dejohnette for mentoring other inmates and encouraging them to renounce violence and pursue self-improvement. In 2017, a correctional officer commended Ms. Dejohnette for her work in the honor dorm and wrote, "Inmate Dejohnette is courteous, respectful, communicates effectively with both staff and her peers, and is eager to help others....Her desire towards self-improvement, rehabilitation, and serving as a positive role model in her community should be acknowledged." In 2015, a correctional sergeant who had known Ms. Dejohnette for 14 years wrote, "I have had an opportunity to personally observe her growth. . . . Her attitude continues to be positive in motivating others to strive for rehabilitation." Another officer praised Ms. Dejohnette as an example for other inmates and wrote, "I have personally observed her spending many hours counseling new inmates, and answering their questions about 'doing their time' in a more positive way." Additionally, the Board of Parole Hearings reviewed Ms. Dejohnette's case at an en banc meeting and recommended her for a commutation of sentence. The California Supreme Court also made the recommendation required by the California Constitution for a grant of clemency to Ms. Dejohnette.

There is no doubt that Ms. Dejohnette committed a horrible crime after spending years lost in drugs and criminal thinking. However, despite serving a sentence that gave her no hope for release, she has dedicated herself to her rehabilitation and encouraged others around her to do the same. Ms. Dejohnette has earned the opportunity to present her case to the Board of Parole Hearings so it can determine whether she is suitable for parole.

THEREFORE, I, EDMUND G. BROWN JR., Governor of the State of California, by virtue of the power and authority vested in me by the Constitution and statutes of the State of California, do hereby commute the sentence of Laverne Sharon Dejohnette to a total of 25 years to life.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF I have hereunto set my hand and caused the Great Seal of the State of California to be affixed this 17th day of August, 2018.

Laverne Dejohnette W332321

I am serving a LWOP sentence. I would like to start by saying I have never written a letter to anyone concerning my crime or ever filed an appeal on my behalf. Even when I took my crime to a jury trial and wasted a lot of tax payers money I knew I was guilty. I don't not know this process of ~~commutations~~ and such. I do know I committed a heinous crime.

In 1994 I participated in taking the life of Mr. Eddie Craven. I accept full responsibility for my actions. While Mr. Craven did not die of my own hands he was murdered as a direct result of my actions. I can not begin to express my remorse or sorrow that I have. Just like his family can't begin to describe the pain I had to have caused them. My crime was senseless and brutal. I am truly sorry for my actions I can never replace what I so selfishly stole. Mr. Craven's life. I can only tell you today I make living amends.

I am writing this letter to hopefully give you some insight in to my back ground and the woman I've become today.

I entered the penal system in 1989. Before that I was arrested many times over for petty crimes like prostitution, disorderly conduct. I quickly accelerated to much larger crimes such as possession, weapons and assaults, then the ultimate crime Murder. Even in prison I continued to victimize my peers as well s men out there through pen pal scams. I received two serious disciplinarians for that. My first 10 years in prison was very hard for me I choose to do this Life with out parole my way. And I did it may way. However this past 12 or so years. I realized I needed to find a solution to the very serious problems that resided in me. It was a struggle and some days still are.

As a child I grew up in South Central Los Angeles. I had a step mother and a biological father. I also had 4 older siblings in the home. 2 sisters & 2 brothers. I did not know it was dysfunctional at the time. I assumed that all homes were like that. Incest was the norm. I was repeatedly raped by my two brothers. (One was recently arrested in Georgia for molesting his own children) And abused physically by my two sisters. Once even being pushed from a moving vehicle by a sister. I managed to survive ages 6-12. At age 13 a school nurse noticed my ear split. While attending to it she noticed bruises and other marks under my collar. She ordered me to remove my clothes. Police came took photos and needless to say removed me from my family. I was soon placed in a foster home where I was introduced to horrors no grown up should participate in much less a child. It was there in a foster home I became a full blown addict to drugs and sex. If can identify anything from that chapter of my life. It is shame and a deep sense of embarrassment. I initially used drugs because they were given to me by my step mother. Eventually I used them because they were for me pain blockers.

As I got older I think the way I was brought up had a grate impact on the way I viewed the world. This in no way is an excuse or justification for all the crimes I've committed or the taking of Mr. Craven's life. I was selfish self centered and Always in survival mode. I have done some nasty hard core things living like a savage. Even today its is sometimes hard to accept that I still had choices. And that I did not question anything that was ever done to me I totally accepted my role as human trash.

Today I know who I am and even though it can not erase what I've done. I have come a long way from the horrible little girl who grew into a murderer. I am still working on myself. I do not think this process will ever end for me. But now I can finally breathe. I can finally do well. The first 10 years I could not see the goods in my self. I was still caught in the dysfunctional me. I know it's ok to see the good in myself and have high self worth and self esteem. I there have been so many experiences that have helped to shape who I am today. I have gained so much insight in to who I am and how to handle things. Just being in my living quarters with so many different people over the years has taught me to be a better person. Such as making the right choices at difficult times. A lot has happened over the past 22 years in here that has allowed me to practice good choice making to see how I have grown and where I still need to grow. I know the choices I make will determine the out come of any decision I make. .

Before coming to prison with LWOPP I was in denial hostile angry and a habitual criminal and addicted to drugs. To day I am truly grateful for prison it has saved my life. I am Sorry that Mr. Craven had to loose his for me to find mine. I can only honor him by never using any mind altering substance ever again; I have been sober for 22 years. My living amends to Mr. Craven keep me grateful and humble. It has allowed me to stay grounded. I have given my life over to my higher power who I proclaim as Jesus Christ. I value my personal journey I have spent the past 12 years looking into myself with help of Celebrate recovery and of the self help groups and programs. Those are available to me. I am a great public speaker. And I know there will be difficult challenges and situations ahead of me. But I believe now I am equipped to handle them

The Alternative to Violence program is my best and favorite. Because I can't explain that even as a young child I knew that I was suppose to be protected and loved

I beg you to please take notice of the person I have grown to be. I am respectful, responsible, considerate and compassionate. I am no longer in denial of the destructive behaviors and the devastation and hurt I have caused. Today I have a strong desire to help others especially incest survivors, that they may ~~not~~ find themselves in the same situations I landed my self in. I ask in your duties as Governor of California that I may be no longer a life with out the possibility prisoner and be allowed to appear before the Board of prison terms. Thank you for your time and consideration.

I would also like to thank you on behalf of all the lifers that were released under you term in office., You have never seen anything like it when you see a lifer who has been given a date and the governor doesn't take it back.. BIG smile The air Crackles with excitement and even the most depressed here are happy, if only for that day.

COMMUTATION OF SENTENCE

Neilvert Remingo Delacruz

On June 12, 1995, patrolling officers noticed Neilvert Delacruz and his crime partner in an alley wearing ski masks and gloves, and armed with guns. Mr. Delacruz admitted he was contracted to kill Michael Snow in exchange for money and drugs. On October 1, 2009, the San Bernardino County Superior Court sentenced Mr. Delacruz to 25 years to life for conspiracy to commit murder.

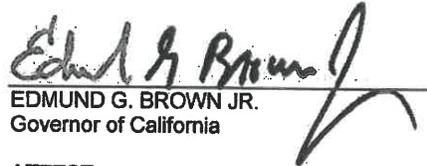

Mr. Delacruz was only 19 when he committed this crime, and has now been incarcerated for 20 years—over half of his life. During these years, he has shown exceptional commitment to rehabilitation and his conduct has been exemplary. He has never been disciplined for any misconduct. He earned a GED, an A.A. degree, and completed vocational training. He participated in self-help classes that targeted his issues with substance abuse, gang violence, and anger management. In an interview with an investigator for the Board of Parole Hearings, Mr. Delacruz explained, "I have learned a lot about myself being locked up.... I made a lot of mistakes in the past and I have learned from them." In 2017, a correctional officer wrote, "[Mr. Delacruz] has maintained disciplinary free behavior and a professional working relationship with all staff as well as his peers. He has been responsible in handling sensitive materials and has worked independently with limited supervision, proving himself trustworthy, responsible, and competent." Mr. Delacruz attributes his rehabilitation to his faith and is now an ordained minister. Upon his release from prison, Mr. Delacruz plans to volunteer as a pastor and find employment.

I do not discount the serious nature of Mr. Delacruz's crime, but it is clear that Mr. Delacruz has taken his rehabilitation seriously and has matured from the young man who committed this crime. Based on his age at the time of the crime, his excellent conduct in prison, and his commitment to his faith and education, I believe that Mr. Delacruz has earned an earlier opportunity to present his case to the Board of Parole Hearings so it can determine whether he is suitable for parole.

THEREFORE, I, EDMUND G. BROWN JR., Governor of the State of California, by virtue of the power and authority vested in me by the Constitution and statutes of the State of California, do hereby commute the sentence of Neilvert Remingo Delacruz to a total of 20 years to life.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF I have hereunto set my hand and caused the Great Seal of the State of California to be affixed this 17th day of August, 2018.

Secretary of State

INTRODUCTION

TO THE HONORABLE GOVERNOR JERRY BROWN AND THE DISTRICT ATTORNEY OF SAN BERNARDINO COUNTY:

Pursuant to Penal Code section 4800 and Article V, Section 8, of the California Constitution, Petitioner Neilvert DelaCruz is asking the Honorable Governor Brown to commute his sentence of 25 to life indeterminate sentence to 15 years to life indeterminate sentence. Inmate DelaCruz was first arrested in 1991 at the age of 15 for Burglary and Vehicle Theft with an unknown disposition. Inmate DelaCruz's adult criminal history includes arrests/convictions for Minor in Possession of a Firearm, Conspiracy to Commit Crime, and Attempt willful, deliberate, premeditated Murder.¹

STATEMENT OF FACTS

Petitioner, Neilvert DelaCruz pleaded guilty in 1996 to attempted murder, with an armed enhancement, and conspiracy to commit murder. At the tender age of 19 years old he solicited the assistance of others to take the life of another. Neilvert was extremely immature and prone to impulsive choices. He was unable to understand and appreciate the risks and consequences of his actions. Fortunately, law enforcement was able to intervene before his plan came to fruition. Mr. DelaCruz feels deep remorse for his reckless and irresponsible conduct. He accepts full unqualified responsibility for his actions and the life long suffering incurred by Michael S and his family. Admittedly, it took some time before Mr. DelaCruz was prepared to accept his responsibly. A review of his file will show that after he plead guilty he failed to appear for sentencing. He was released before sentencing pursuant to a Cruz waiver (People v. Cruz (1988) 44 Cal.3d 1247) on the understanding that, if he returned for sentencing, count 2 would be dismissed and defendant would receive a sentence of eight years to life on count 1. Mr. Delacruz did not appear for sentencing and he fled to the Philippines. On October 1998, Mr. Delacruz was detained in the Philippines on his outstanding warrant. While in custody in the Philippines Mr. Delacruz challenged extradition. He returned to California in 2009. His minimum eligible parole date (MEPD) is 07/23/2023.²

INSTITUTIONAL BEHAVIOR

Mr. Delacruz behavior throughout his incarceration demonstrates he is a special inmate. He has been discipline free throughout his entire period of incarceration. He has never received a rules violation report (RVR). This is an objective example of Neilvert having improved long term impulse control and a pro-social mentality. He has never involved himself in gangs or negative peer groups. He has been able to resist the temptations of drugs, alcohol, and prison politics. Prison has allowed him to come to terms with his life crime and more importantly have a thorough understanding of his insight and poor decision making that led up to his commitment offense. Neilvert has demonstrated a commitment to self improvement through his participation in various self-help groups/programs over the years. Some of the programming he has participated includes: Partnership for Re-Entry Program; School of Christ International Correspondence Course; Crossroad Bible Institute-Ten Men You Should Know, Survey of the Bible, Great Truths of the Bible; Bible Correspondence Course-Walk the Talk; Studies in Grace; ECS Prison Ministry; Emmaus Correspondence School; Herbert W Armstrong Bible Correspondence Courses; Anger Management; Re-Entry In Society; Addiction; Nonviolent Communication; Parenting; Victim Awareness; Conflict Resolution; Domestic Violence; Bible Correspondence Courses at Mount Hope Prison

Ministry; Worldwide Bible Broadcasters; Quiet Hour Ministries; Breaking Barriers; The Way of Life Correspondence; Alcoholics/Narcotics Anonymous; Exodus Bible Correspondence School; Amazing Facts Bible School; Salvation Army Bible Correspondence; Sonlight Ministries.³

CAUSATIVE FACTORS/TRIGGERS

Low Self Esteem: Growing up as a child Neilvert had a very low opinion of him self. He often felt insecure and he had an unhealthy desire to be accepted by his peers. His insecurities led him to want to hang out with “cool kids” who were actually hardened gang members with a criminal mentality. He found acceptance and security when he befriended these negative peer groups. He wanted attention from others no matter how negative or harmful his actions may be.

Coping Strategies: Neilvert has learned to appreciate the value of human life. He now has a strong sense of self worth and he has learned to be content. He no longer pretends to be macho or “hard”. Rediscovering God has given him the assurance that he is someone special and he does not have to try to be somebody who he is not. His programming has enabled him to reject negative third party influences. He is no longer susceptible to negative peer groups.

Impulsivity: Ever since he was a child Neilvert hated waiting for something or someone. If he wanted something he would simply take it. He was never concerned about the consequences of his actions.

Coping Strategies: Neilvert has learned to be patient. He believes that his trust in God will guide him and give him the strength to make the right choice. He has learned to respect the property of others and to respect himself.

Resolving Conflicts with Violence: Being around old friends Neilvert felt invulnerable and above reproach. He had a false sense of pride and security. When someone would talk bad about him or stare at him he would always confront them with violence. He would challenge any individual who he felt disrespected him.

Coping Strategies: In the event Neilvert encounters a difficult situation he will evaluate the situation and find an affirmative option(s) to resolve the conflict in a peaceful way. He understands he must remain calm and focus on a positive solution. Such strategies include: listening to another point of view, excusing himself and walking away to assess the situation, utilizing the S.T.A.R. technique which stands for Stop, Think, Assess, and React. With this technique Neilvert will be able to make calm reasonable choices.

EDUCATION

Neilvert has upgraded educationally by earning his High School Equivalency Certificate on 08/29/2013. He earned his General Education Development (GED) on May 6, 2014. and he made the Honor's List at Coastline Community College. He also earned a degree in Personal Psychological Development from the Prisoner Assistance Scholastic Service (PASS)⁴. He anticipates completing his studies for an Associate Degree by the middle of 2017.

MAKING AMENDS

Neilvert is no longer the same person he was when he committed his life crime. At the age of nineteen he involved himself in an unspeakable crime and he deserved to be severely punished. However, his ability to understand the motivations behind his crime has evolved through the therapeutic process offered by the California Department of ⁴ Exhibit 4.

Corrections and Rehabilitation (CDCR). His programming has allowed him to identify his past defects of character and the causative factors of his criminality. This was only done through hard work and his unwavering commitment to self analysis. He has written a detailed Relapsed Prevention Plan ⁵ which has enabled him to manage stressors in prison and will assist him in the free community. His rehabilitation has enabled him to have the coping skills to someday succeed on parole.

One can reasonably opine that at the age of 19 Neilvert was irresponsible, immature, and he had a clear lack of understanding the consequences of his actions. His susceptibility to negative peer influences and impulsive behavior is undeniable. However, recent scientific evidence has shown that young adult development and neuroscience shows that certain areas of the brain, specifically, those affecting judgment and decision-making do not fully develop until the early to mid twenties. Numerous studies have confirmed that the process of brain development continues well beyond the age of 18. This research has been relied upon by judges and lawmakers.⁶

CONCLUSION

Neilvert DelaCruz, by and through his counsel, respectfully request that the Honorable Governor Jerry Brown commute his 25 to life indeterminate sentence to 15 years to life indeterminate sentence because Neilvert DelaCruz is no longer the same person when he committed his life crime. In over 18 years he has shown himself to be an exemplary inmate. He has never incurred a rules violation report. He continues to better himself through institutional programs and self therapy. He now has the coping skills and pro-social mentality to make the right choices and most importantly he is no longer susceptible to negative third party influences.

Dennis Damar Edwards

In 1987, 20-year-old Dennis Edwards shot and killed Jeffrey Randle El. Mr. Edwards claims that he met Mr. Randle El in the middle of the night for a drug transaction, and shot him after they got into an argument. On January 5, 1988, the Los Angeles County Superior Court sentenced Mr. Edwards to life without the possibility of parole for first degree murder.

Mr. Edwards applied for a commutation of sentence based on his rehabilitation during his incarceration. In his application, he wrote, "I believe a commutation and parole will allow me an opportunity to make a positive contribution to society and my own life. . . . I am a changed person." In an interview with an investigator from the Board of Parole Hearings, Mr. Edwards described the major role his faith has played in his transformation. He spoke passionately about working to turn his life around after taking Bible college classes and reading scripture.

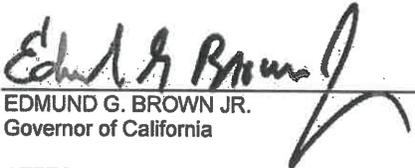

Mr. Edwards has been incarcerated for 31 years and is 51 years old. He stopped associating with gangs more than a decade ago, and has only been disciplined five times for misconduct. Mr. Edwards has participated in multiple self-help programs, including Addictions and Abuses, Peacemakers, and Men for Honor, along with numerous religious correspondence courses. He earned his GED and is pursuing his A.A. degree from Lassen Community College. Mr. Edwards regularly receives positive work ratings from his supervisors, and earned vocational certification in Janitorial Services. He lived on an honor yard for inmates with good behavior for several years. Mr. Edwards plans to participate in a transitional housing program in the event of his release, and reports that he will seek support from family members and the church to help him transition back into society.

There is no doubt that Mr. Edwards committed a senseless crime. But he has made a credible commitment to changing his life and expressed sincere remorse. In his Board interview, he said, "I'm sorry about [the crime] and I apologize for that; I can't stop apologizing for that. But there's other things I can get into to help. . . . It's not about me, it's about what I can do for the next man." For these reasons, I believe that Mr. Edwards has earned the opportunity to present his case to the Board of Parole Hearings so it can determine whether he is suitable for parole.

THEREFORE, I, EDMUND G. BROWN JR., Governor of the State of California, by virtue of the power and authority vested in me by the Constitution and statutes of the State of California, do hereby commute the sentence of Dennis Damar Edwards to a total of 25 years to life.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF I have hereunto set my hand and caused the Great Seal of the State of California to be affixed this 17th Day of August, 2018.

Ronald Harrison George

In the fall of 1979, Ronald George and his brother conspired to kill Kenneth Earl over a drug debt. On December 3, Mr. George's brother struck Mr. Earl repeatedly with a wrench, killing him. On July 2, 1981, the San Mateo County Superior Court sentenced Mr. George to life without the possibility of parole for murder.

Mr. George has been incarcerated for almost 39 years and has dedicated himself to his rehabilitation. In his commutation application, he wrote, "I can affirmatively state that I am not, now, the same person that I was 38 years ago. I have attempted to serve my punishment with an attitude of service, rehabilitation and penitence." He continued, "I have tried to live a life of service to others and clear morality, and have worked to better myself through self-help rehabilitative programs and education."

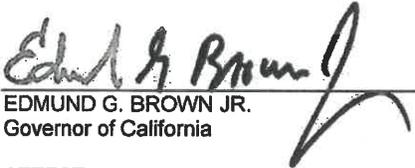

Mr. George's prison record is a testament to his statements. In almost four decades of incarceration, he has received only five rules violations, none of which were violent. He was last disciplined 24 years ago. Mr. George has completed vocational training in computer literacy and is taking college correspondence classes. He participated in self-help groups, the Addiction Counseling Program, and the Anti-Recidivism Coalition. In 2018, a supervisor commended Mr. George on his work ethic and attitude, noting that Mr. George "is always respectful in our interactions and has always shown a positive attitude towards staff and inmates alike." The supervisor wrote, "[Mr.] George is always willing to help inmates," and "is on a positive path and should be commended for his positive programming." Mr. George has served as a Youthful Offender Mentor, tutoring new students and acclimating them to the program. In 2017, a college coordinator with the Youth Offender Program wrote that Mr. George "has continually shown that he is a self-starter who needs little, if any, supervision in completing not only his assigned duties, but with all the volunteering work he does. . . ."

Mr. George wrote in his commutation application, "I am hopeful that I can be seen as the man that I now am instead of the 21-year-old impressionable mess of a boy that I was when I helped take a man's life." Mr. George has demonstrated that he has changed through his dedication to his rehabilitation. For these reasons, I believe that Mr. George has earned the opportunity to present his case to the Board of Parole Hearings so it can determine whether he is suitable for parole.

THEREFORE, I, EDMUND G. BROWN JR., Governor of the State of California, by virtue of the power and authority vested in me by the Constitution and statutes of the State of California, do hereby commute the sentence of Ronald Harrison George to a total of 25 years to life.

Application for Commutation of Sentence Ronald H. George, C32697

1. Conviction Summary:

I was in the course of a trial for burglary charges in Union County, Illinois, when I fled to California and the crime of my current conviction was committed. I do not know the exact outcome of that trial. The probation officer's report following my current conviction indicates that I was convicted of the burglary charges in Illinois and that sentence had not been pronounced at that time. I cannot affirmatively state the outcome of the burglary charges.

2. Briefly describe the circumstances of the crime for which you are requesting a commutation.

On June 5, 1981, I was found guilty of aiding and abetting a murder and conspiracy to commit murder with the special circumstance of lying in wait. The murder was directly committed by my older brother, Robert George, in December of 1979. I was sentenced to life in prison without the possibility of parole. I was 21 years old at the time of the murder.

My victim, Kenneth Earl, was a friend of my brother and I, and I was living with him along with my girlfriend, Sharon Brown, in Oakland at the time of the crime. The probation officer's report prepared following the subject conviction provides the following summary of the offense:

Suffice it to say that three subjects, including [Ronald George], formulated a plan to murder the victim [, Kenneth Earl]. The victim was lured into a particular portion of the house by one of the subjects and brutally assaulted leading to his death. The victim was then placed in his van and transported to the San Mateo County coastside where the body was dumped. It appears that the defendant's older brother [, Robert George,] was more culpable in the actual slaying. However, it should not go unnoticed that the defendant initiated the action which led to the victim's death. After dumping the body the defendant fled in the victim's van and was apprehended in San Luis Obispo County when an officer affecting a traffic stop learned the defendant was wanted as a fugitive from the state of Illinois.

These records reflect that on December 11, 1979, at approximately 6:00 p.m. the Sheriff's Office received an anonymous call stating that a subject had observed a dead body on Verde Road south of Half Moon Bay. Sheriff's officers were dispatched to the location and located the body covered by a blanket hidden from view under some dead tree branches. The crime scene was secured and detectives and the coroner were notified.

The victim was later identified [as Kenneth Earl] through fingerprints and his residence was located in Oakland. It was then learned the victim and his van were both missing for approximately ten days. Investigation began to center on [Ronald George] who, accompanied by his girlfriend, had been living with the victim. It was learned that [Kenneth] became disenchanted with his boarders as [Ronald] failed to furnish financial support and [Sharon] failed to carry out household duties.

[Ronald] notified his brother [, Robert George,] who was in Illinois at the time. The brother came to California. At some time prior to or after [Robert's] arriving, the two brothers formulated a plan to murder the victim. It was agreed that when the victim returned home [Sharon] was to tell him that he had mail on a desk. Ronald was on the sofa in the living room and [Robert] hid in a bedroom. As the victim went to the desk to pick up his mail, [Robert] came out of the bedroom behind the victim and brutally struck the victim over the head repeatedly with a long-handled ratchet wrench. [Sharon] ran into the bathroom. She then heard a thumping sound and a gurgling sound. She also reported hearing one of the subjects state, "He's not dead yet."

After the murder, the body of the victim was placed in his van and driven to a coast-side location where it was dumped. All parties were subsequently arrested.

In the early part of 1979 I was standing trial for burglary charges in Illinois. In the midst of that trial I panicked about what seemed to be an inevitable outcome, and fled to California. After I arrived in California I met up with Kenneth Earl, a previous friend from Illinois and an associate of my older brother, Robert. I moved in with my girlfriend, Sharon Brown, into Kenneth's house. Robert and Kenneth were also business associates, in that they were selling and trafficking drugs together. They were distributing various types of drugs, and Kenneth was cultivating marijuana in a barn/greenhouse like structure that was on a lot near the house in which we were all living.

By the fall of 1979, tensions had risen between Kenneth and Sharon and me. Kenneth started to complain that I was not paying my share of expenses and rent, and that Sharon was not cleaning up around the house. The financial tension was due in large part to the fact that Kenneth owed a substantial amount of money to my brother, Robert, from their drug dealings. The crux of the tension lied in the underlying fact that Kenneth owed Robert for drugs, and Robert was in search of the money owed to him. Robert wanted his money, so Kenneth was pressuring me for money. I refused to pay for anything until Kenneth paid Robert, and the circle continued to escalate.

I kept from Sharon the details of Robert's and Kenneth's dealings because, although she was an occasional drug user, she had a daughter that lived with us and I did not want her involved in dealing drugs.

The animosity continued to grow, and Kenneth ended up pressuring Sharon to pose for nude photographs and to have sex with him in order to pay for our way at the house. At first he tried to act like it was possibly just a joke, but he became more and more direct and forceful with his advances toward Sharon. I continued to stand firm on the position that he owed Robert a lot of money, and that he needed to pay Robert before I settled anything regarding my expenses.

I finally called Robert in Illinois and shared with him that Kenneth had told Sharon that she had to sleep with him to settle our debts. Robert decided to come out to California to handle the situation and to deal with the debt that Kenneth owed him. The decision was made that Kenneth would be killed and that Robert was going to take Kenneth's motorcycle and anything else of value that he could get in lieu of collecting the cash owed. I called Robert to deal with the situation, but it was Robert's decision that everything had gone too far, and that the only solution was to kill Kenneth.

Robert arrived in California and he instructed Sharon about his plan to guide Kenneth in a bedroom so that he could kill him. When Kenneth arrived at the house, Sharon directed him into a room and Robert beat him to death with a wrench. After the murder, we all attempted to clean up the mess and discard of Kenneth's body. I was later arrested after a traffic stop when the officer found out that I had absconded from the trial in Illinois. My involvement in the murder was unveiled when Sharon was arrested for unrelated reasons.

Initially, Robert and I were being tried together for Kenneth's murder, and Sharon was the primary witness that provided evidence of our conspiracy. While awaiting trial, Robert devised a plan to try to get our cases severed, thinking that I would have a better chance of not being found guilty of the murder if the trials were not joined. Robert's suggestion was that they would sever the trials if I suffered from "depression" and that I would have it better at trial if I acted suicidal. So, while detained in the county jail awaiting trial, Robert stabbed me with a make-shift knife and I played like I had self-inflicted the wound in an attempt to commit suicide. A jail psychologist interviewed me, and at that point the cases were severed and I was tried separately from Robert.

Thus, while Robert did plan and commit the murder, I was at all times a knowing and culpable participant in the conspiracy. The death of Kenneth Earl was, in large part, due to the tension that I helped create and the instigation that I provided in calling my brother out to deal with the situation.

3. Explain why you are requesting a commutation.

I am praying that my sentence may be commuted to a standard life sentence so that I may be afforded the opportunity to seek parole from the Board of Parole Hearings. I am not seeking forgiveness or pardon for my offenses.

4. Provide a brief statement explaining why you should be granted a commutation.

The briefest explanation as to why I should be granted a commutation is simply that I do not believe that anyone guilty of a crime deserves a commutation, so neither do I. The laws of this State demand that I serve the remainder of my life in prison, and thus, that is the only treatment of which I should have an expectation. I do not seek a commutation with an attitude that I should be granted one. I simply plead for an act of mercy that would grant me the opportunity to demonstrate that I am no longer the young 21-year-old boy that participated in the taking of a life, and that I am no longer a threat to my community.

I do not pretend to argue that I deserve a commutation. However, I can affirmatively state that I am not, now, the same person that I was 38 years ago. I have attempted to serve my punishment with an attitude of service, rehabilitation and penitence. I have tried to live a life of service to others and clear morality, and have worked to better myself through self-help rehabilitative programs and education.

I have participated in four separate anger management programs during my incarceration, and have completed Breaking Barriers, a comprehensive cognitive thinking and behavioral modification program that focuses on the reasoning behind destructive decisions and conduct. I have completed a series of rehabilitative programs through the Lifer's Group program, including; Cage Your Rage, Crime Impact Insight and Remorse, Emotional Intelligence, Life Goal Planning, and Relapse Prevention.

In pursuit of educational advancement, I have attended Palo Verde College and obtained certificates in Building Construction Technologies and Information Technology Literacy. I am completing classes this current semester to earn a certificate in Automotive Technologies.

I have worked for decades in assignments and positions that serve the institution's administration with a distinguishable and laudable record of performance. Seeking these assignments has been a deliberate choice to serve a purpose greater than myself. By working for the institution's administration I have sought to affirmatively do good in service of the institution in which I am incarcerated.

In continuance of my service to others, I am currently an active supporter of veteran's causes as a member of the Veteran's Group of Ironwood, and am a Youthful Offender Mentor in the mentoring program at my facility. In my role as a Mentor, I work with the many young inmates housed on my facility (a designated Youthful Offender Opportunity Yard) to guide them in their rehabilitative efforts and educational pursuits.

I am hopeful that I can be seen as the man that I now am instead of the 21 year old impressionable mess of a boy that I was when I helped take a man's life.

Respectfully submitted,

Ronald H. George

Gregory Gibson

In 1995, Gregory Gibson broke into two unoccupied houses and stole musical and electronic equipment, jewelry, and clothing. Mr. Gibson had previously been convicted of several other burglaries. On November 13, 1996, the Los Angeles County Superior Court sentenced Mr. Gibson to 30 years to life for burglary and a prior felony enhancement.

Mr. Gibson has now served more than two decades in prison and is 47 years old. In his application for clemency, he wrote, "I have come to a complete understanding of the root causes behind my drug abuse and criminal activities. I have and continue to take full and complete responsibility for my actions." In an interview with an investigator for the Board of Parole Hearings, Mr. Gibson explained that he started heavily using methamphetamine when he was 17 years old, and that his addiction quickly took over his life and led him into a criminal lifestyle.

The warden at Folsom State Prison recommended Mr. Gibson for a commutation of sentence. Mr. Gibson has been sober since 1995. He has participated for years in self-help programs including Narcotics Anonymous, Relapse Prevention, and Celebrate Recovery. Mr. Gibson facilitated several groups focused on substance abuse and earned addiction treatment certifications from Palo Verde College and Stratford Career Institute. In 2017, the lead sponsor of a relapse prevention group praised Mr. Gibson for his contributions to the group and wrote, "His dedication to assisting others in their recovery is without parallel... He should be commended for his hard work and dedication to recovery." Mr. Gibson has also made other significant efforts to turn his life around. He earned his high school diploma and two A.A. degrees, and has completed several vocational certifications. He contributed to fundraisers for charity, regularly received excellent work ratings from his supervisors, volunteered as a literacy tutor, and participated in youth diversion programs. In 2014, he was one of just five inmates selected to participate in an international Narcotics Anonymous video conference.

Mr. Gibson's case was reviewed by Los Angeles County Superior Court Judge Lisa Chung; she wrote that in light of Mr. Gibson's "substantial efforts since his sentence and convictions to actively address his substance abuse issues, this court has no objection" to a grant of clemency. After conducting an investigation, the Board of Parole Hearings voted en banc to recommend Mr. Gibson for executive clemency. Additionally, the California Supreme Court made the recommendation required by the California Constitution for a grant of clemency to Mr. Gibson.

It is clear that Mr. Gibson has transformed himself during his incarceration. He has demonstrated a strong commitment to his sobriety and shown that he is prepared to support himself and live a different life if released. I conclude that it is appropriate to reduce Mr. Gibson's sentence so that he can be released on parole.

THEREFORE, I, EDMUND G. BROWN JR., Governor of the State of California, by virtue of the power and authority vested in me by the Constitution and statutes of the State of California, do hereby commute the sentence of Gregory Gibson to 25 years.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF I have hereunto set my hand and caused the Great Seal of the State of California to be affixed this 17th day of August, 2018.

CLEMENCY REQUEST ATTACHMENT

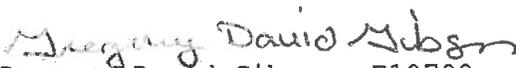

Reason(s) executive clemency should be granted:

I believe a reduction of sentence should be granted, as I have searched out those things within myself that have caused me to behave antisocially. I have come to a complete understanding of the root causes behind my drug abuse and criminal activities. I have and continue to take full and complete responsibility for my actions. I know now, that action is the clearest window into one's soul, and the only way to show true remorse is by those actions.

The epitome of remorse is giving back to the community, and I believe I have demonstrated, by my actions, true remorse and rehabilitation. Since my 12 - plus years of incarceration, I have matured a great deal, and have disciplined and dedicated myself to overcoming my addiction - which is the root cause of my past actions.

I have demonstrated, through my actions that I am ready once again to re-enter society. I now have the life skills, and job skills needed to become a contributing member of society. I have support of family and friends, as well as a secure job offer if a sentence reduction is granted. Once released, I will continue to make expiation.

Jarrett Harper

In 1999, 17-year-old Jarrett Harper and a friend robbed Phillip Piazza and his brother in Mr. Piazza's home. Several weeks later, Mr. Harper returned to Mr. Piazza's house and stabbed him, then set the house on fire and stole Mr. Piazza's car. Mr. Piazza later died at the hospital during surgery. On May 10, 2001, the Los Angeles County Superior Court sentenced Mr. Harper to life without the possibility of parole plus 10 years for murder, arson, and two counts of robbery. Due to Mr. Harper's age at the time of the crime, subsequent U.S. and California Supreme Court decisions, and related changes to state law, he is eligible for youthful offender parole consideration in 2024.

During an investigation by the Board of Parole Hearings, Mr. Harper reported that the victim, Mr. Piazza, had sexually abused him for years starting when Mr. Harper was about seven years old. Mr. Harper told no one about the abuse until he was 13 and learned that his younger brother had also been sexually abused by Mr. Piazza. Because of their extremely unstable home life, the brothers pledged to keep the abuse a secret. In prison, Mr. Harper started a discussion group for inmates who had been sexually abused, so they could confront more directly – and share – their experiences. Mr. Harper explained that working to understand his past strengthened his commitment to helping others who had experienced similar trauma, and gave him more remorse for his victim. In his application for clemency, Mr. Harper wrote, "I desire to show that I have learned from my past terrible choices and tragic events that I cast on the Piazza family. I have matured into a moral, responsible, and positive contributor to society. I ask for a commutation because I am not the same young boy who committed crime eighteen years ago."

Mr. Harper is now 35 years old and has been incarcerated for almost two decades. He has only been disciplined four times during that time, and has never been involved with drugs or gangs. He earned his high school diploma and several vocational certifications, including one in paralegal studies. Mr. Harper has participated in numerous self-help classes including Victim Sensitivity Awareness, Anger Management, Getting Out by Going In, and Creative Conflict Resolution. He has also facilitated multiple groups for other inmates. In 2017, a correctional sergeant commended Mr. Harper for his dedication to Lancaster's Progressive Programming Facility and wrote, "He participates in numerous self-help groups and peer to peer classes, both as a student and a facilitator, working to improve himself while providing a positive example to his fellow inmates... If the opportunity to return to society were ever given, I believe that Inmate Harper would be a model citizen." In 2014, one of Mr. Harper's supervisors wrote, "I have been a correctional officer for over 20 years and I've rarely come across an inmate with such a positive attitude as Mr. Harper... if Inmate Harper were to be released, I would feel safe with having him as my next-door neighbor." Mr. Harper's fiancée, brother, and friends plan to help support him if he is released.

Based on his age at the time of this crime, his sincere remorse, and his commitment to rehabilitation, I believe Mr. Harper has earned an earlier opportunity to make his case to the Board of Parole Hearings so it can determine whether he is suitable for parole.

THEREFORE, I, EDMUND G. BROWN JR., Governor of the State of California, by virtue of the power and authority vested in me by the Constitution and statutes of the State of California, do hereby commute the sentence of Jarrett Harper to a total of 20 years to life.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF I have hereunto set my hand and caused the Great Seal of the State of California to be affixed this 17th Day of August, 2018.

APPLICATION FOR EXECUTIVE CLEMENCY

Dear Governor Brown:

I am the attorney for Mr. Jarrett Nicholas Harper (CDC No. T-19224). On behalf of Mr. Harper, I am petitioning you to commute Mr. Harper's sentence. On May 1, 2001, Mr. Harper was sentenced to the harshest punishment allowable under the law for a minor: life without the possibility of parole ("LWOP"). He was only 17 when he committed his crime, and has shown extraordinary growth and rehabilitation during his incarceration. His exemplary prison record alone is evidence that he is not a danger to society, nor is he the rare juvenile offender deserving of this punishment. For over 16 years, Mr. Harper has been serving out an LWOP sentence in state prison. Mr. Harper is respectfully requesting that you commute his sentence of LWOP plus 10 years to a sentence of 25 years to life.

For the reasons stated in this letter brief, I now petition your office for clemency on behalf of Mr. Harper, and formally request a commutation of sentence.

I. THE CIRCUMSTANCES OF THE LIFE CRIME

In 2000, Mr. Harper was sentenced to LWOP plus 10 years for killing and robbing Mr. Phillip Piazza, who had sexually and emotionally abused Mr. Harper throughout his childhood and adolescence. Mr. Harper was also convicted of the related charges of arson of an inhabited building; two counts of second-degree robbery, one count of first-degree robbery and two counts of grand theft auto.

In October 1999, Jarrett Harper, 17, went to the house of Phillip Piazza, 80, to ask him for the car that Piazza had promised him six years earlier. Mr. Harper would soon age out of the foster care system and potentially homeless. He hoped that Mr. Piazza's car would give him a way to get to a job, and also a place to sleep if he didn't have one. He also wanted the car to drive a girl to the prom.

Mr. Harper believed Mr. Piazza would give him the car because Mr. Piazza had promised it to him during the time that he was sexually abusing the Mr. Harper, then age 10. Whether Mr. Harper thought of this promise as a fatherly gesture, or payback for years of sexual assault, is a complicated question, particularly for a boy of 17. In any case, Mr. Harper naively approached his sexual predator to ask for the car.

Mr. Piazza was first very cordial to Mr. Harper, even when Mr. Harper asked for the car. But when Mr. Piazza heard what it was for – to take a girl to the prom – he became enraged. He taunted Mr. Harper, called him a “fag” and kicked him out of his house.

Mr. Harper roamed the neighborhood, until he met up with a young man he met at the park, Sotelo Vanisi, 19, who was known to be part of a local Tongan gang. Mr. Harper asked if Vanisi wanted to rob someone. Vanisi agreed and the two made a plan to rob Mr. Piazza. Mr. Harper went to Mr. Piazza’s home, pretending he needed his bicycle fixed. Two hours later, when Piazza had nearly completed the repairs, Vanisi walked up Piazza’s driveway wearing a white surgical mask and carrying a machete. Vanisi ordered Mr. Piazza and his brother, Leonard Piazza, into the garage and onto the floor and told Mr. Harper to tie them up. The boys went through the Piazza brothers’ pockets, taking ATM cards and cash. Mr. Piazza told police that Mr. Harper said, “I have to do this or he’ll kill me,” while he was searching Piazza’s pockets. During this robbery, Mr. Piazza told Mr. Harper that he was sick with cancer. “Man, you know pay back is a bitch,” Mr. Harper told Mr. Piazza. “Boy that’s good,” Mr. Harper continued, “God’s punishing you for the bad things you did.” Mr. Harper and Vanisi left with Piazza’s car and some cash and credit cards. Mr. Piazza reported the robbery and told police the person who took his car was “Tyree or Tyrone.”

Several months later, on Saturday, January 8, 2000, Mr. Harper and Vanisi arrived at Mr. Piazza’s home, planning to rob him again. Mr. Harper and Vanisi bound Mr. Piazza and stabbed him multiple times in the throat and abdomen, before setting his residence on fire. Vanisi and Mr. Harper also took his money, ATM card, and car keys. Mr. Piazza survived the incident and while he was being treated for his injuries, told both the police and the paramedics that “Anthony Carson” committed the crime. Piazza later died at the hospital from his injuries.

II. MR. HARPER’S REASONS FOR REQUESTING A COMMUTATION

Mr. Harper is the first person to admit that he committed a horrible wrong when he participated in the killing of Mr. Piazza. Mr. Harper was 17 years old when he committed the crime and he regrets the terrible decision he made on the day of the crime. However, Mr. Harper is no longer the same misguided child he was on that day. Today, Mr. Harper is a mature, thoughtful, introspective person. His relationships are different, his thinking is different, and his outlook on life is different. Mr. Harper has spent years in prison working tirelessly to better himself and reprioritize his life. Therefore, on behalf of Mr. Harper, I respectfully request that you commute Mr. Harper’s sentence from LWOP plus 10 years to 25 years to life.

The 2012 decision of the Supreme Court in Miller v. Alabama gave juvenile offenders like Mr. Harper hope that one day they could have a meaningful opportunity for release. Later, you, along with the California Legislature honored the premises set forth in Miller, Graham v. Florida, and Montgomery v. Louisiana that children are constitutionally different from adults and are inherently less culpable for the crimes they commit, by passing SB 9, and then SB 260. SB 260 requires the Board of Parole Hearings to consider youth and its attendant characteristics, as well as evidence of rehabilitation and remorse, so that people like Mr. Harper, who have committed their adult lives to making positive change in themselves and their communities, have a chance to live fruitful and productive lives outside prison walls. Mr. Harper deserves that chance.

III. REASONS MR. HARPER'S REQUEST SHOULD BE GRANTED

Mr. Harper's request for his sentence to be reduced should be granted based on Mr. Harper's status as a particularly vulnerable juvenile at the time of the crime, the abuse and mistreatment Mr. Harper suffered at the hands of his victim and others, and Mr. Harper's extraordinary record of rehabilitation and growth.

A. Mr. Harper Was A Child When He Committed The Crime And, As Such, He Could Not Extricate Himself From His Brutal And Dysfunctional Upbringing.

Mr. Harper was born in Flint, Michigan to a single mother who suffered from mental illness and struggled to hold a job and raise him. When he was almost two years old, Mr. Harper and his mother, who was pregnant at the time, moved to Los Angeles to start a new life. Upon their arrival in Los Angeles, Mr. Harper's mother gave birth to another son, Baylon. The hospital staff, concerned about Mr. Harper's mother's ability to safely raise her sons, sought assistance from the Department of Public Social Services. Mr. Harper's mother had two relatives in Los Angeles, Gloria and Bobbie, who offered to care for the boys. On one occasion, Gloria saw Mr. Harper's mother hit Mr. Harper in the side of the head, which eventually caused an infection in his ear. Shortly thereafter, Gloria became Mr. Harper's legal guardian and Baylon went to live with Bobbie.

When he was six years old, Mr. Harper began to suffer sexual abuse at the hands of Gloria's oldest son, Marlon. One night, Marlon climbed into Mr. Harper's bed and sexually assaulted him. Marlon told Mr. Harper he would "choke him out" if he told anyone what he (Marlon) had done to him. Mr. Harper was terrified of Marlon, who had already sexually abused Gloria's other foster children, and continued to sexually abuse Mr. Harper for the next few years. Mr. Harper began wetting his bed because he was too afraid to get out of his bed at night and wake Marlon. Marlon also physically beat Mr. Harper, and once tried to drown him in the bathtub. Later, he also pinned Mr. Harper down and tried to drown him with a water hose, and would punch and pinch Mr. Harper and the other foster children.

Gloria treated Mr. Harper and her other foster children terribly. Although Gloria had a 10-bedroom house, she housed her five foster children in the back part of her house and the garage. After the house was subdivided, the foster children's area of the home began to persistently smell like urine. Gloria left Mr. Harper and her foster children to clean their portion of the house and garage. But because they were so young, the foster children could not keep their living area sanitary without help from any adults. Their living spaces were always filthy.

Gloria also owned 13 Rottweiler dogs and demanded that her foster children wake up at 2 or 3 a.m. to clean their kennels. Mr. Harper and the other foster children would gag and complain their chests hurt from using the ammonia and bleach cleaning formula in the small kennels, but Gloria insisted that the foster children keep working. Gloria and her biological children bred and sold the dogs. She used the money to go on trips and buy her own children toys.

Mr. Harper watched Gloria cook meals for her biological children while he and the other foster children were given bologna sandwiches and even denied meals. Mr. Harper only wore hand-me-downs from Gloria's biological children. Often, he looked so disheveled that his own cousin could not recognize him as her relative. This situation was complicated by Mr. Harper's strabismus, which impaired his vision and made him look "cockeyed." His strabismus remained untreated until his mid-teens, about ten years later than recommended by ophthalmologists. Despite this untreated condition, Mr. Harper's glasses were always broken.

B. Mr. Harper's Victim Abused Mr. Harper Sexually, Emotionally, and Psychologically.

When he was 7 years old, Mr. Harper met Phillip Piazza. Mr. Harper had gotten a flat tire on his bicycle and Mr. Piazza offered to fix it for him. Mr. Piazza became a father figure to Mr. Harper, who confided in Mr. Piazza about the abuse he suffered at Gloria's house.

When Mr. Harper was 7 years old, Mr. Piazza began raping him. According to an expert psychological evaluation completed by Dr. Manuel St. Martin, though Mr. Harper knew he did not want to engage in sex acts with Mr. Piazza, Mr. Piazza also showed Mr. Harper a form of paternal kindness that Mr. Harper had never experienced before, offering him candy, money, and a kind of familial attention. Because he was only a child when the abuse began, Mr. Harper developed an emotional conflict that made it difficult to decipher whether Mr. Piazza was his abuser or his protector.¹

Mr. Harper tried hard to keep secret the sexual abuse and suppress his negative feelings until he was 13 years old and he found out that Mr. Piazza had also molested his younger brother. On this occasion, Mr. Harper observed his younger brother, Baylon, walking up the driveway of Gloria's house after visiting with Mr. Piazza with blood streaming down his leg. Mr. Harper's brother told him that Mr. Piazza raped him. The brothers decided to keep the abuse a secret.

¹ Section 4801 of the California Penal Code sets out guidelines for how the BPH should handle prisoners who are victims of intimate partner battering (IPB). Cal. Pen. Code Section 4801(b)(1) states that, "The board...shall give great weight to any information or evidence that, at the time of the commission of the crime, the prisoner had experienced intimate partner battering, but was convicted of an offense that occurred prior to August 29, 1996. Though Mr. Harper's crime occurred after the date set forth in the text of section 4801, it is clear that the California Legislature intended to protect victims of IPB.

Under Cal. Penal Code § 243, IPB is defined as "a battery is committed against a spouse, a person with whom the defendant is cohabiting, a person who is the parent of the defendant's child, former spouse, fiancé, or fiancée, or a person with whom the defendant currently has, or has previously had, a dating or engagement relationship." While Mr. Harper was only a child at the time that Mr. Piazza sexually abused him and could not enter into a consensual sexual relationship with him, Mr. Harper was a victim of abuse by a person with whom he was intimately connected. As Dr. Saint Martin pointed out, not only was Mr. Harper in a sexual relationship with Mr. Piazza, but Mr. Piazza also occupied the role of a father figure in Mr. Harper's life. Therefore, the abuse Mr. Harper suffered at the hands of Mr. Piazza should be considered not only as evidence of a brutal and dysfunctional childhood, but also in the context of IPB and the effects of that type of abuse.

In October 1999, Mr. Harper went to Mr. Piazza's house to ask him for help with money so that he could take his girlfriend to a homecoming dance at Crenshaw High School. He turned to Mr. Piazza because he had given him money before and he promised to give him a car on his sixteenth birthday. Mr. Piazza was not willing to give Mr. Harper money and seemed upset that he had a girlfriend. Mr. Piazza called Mr. Harper a "fag" and told him not to come around his house again.

Following that interaction, Mr. Harper was disappointed and humiliated. He felt that his only source of support turned on him and let him down. Three months later, Mr. Harper and Vanisi robbed and killed Mr. Piazza.

C. Mr. Harper Has Shown Remarkable Remorse And Rehabilitation Since His Incarceration.

Despite the fact that Mr. Harper was sentenced to die in prison and had no hope of release, he has turned his life around. In prison, Mr. Harper has participated in nearly every rehabilitative program offered or available to him despite his sentence, which limits his eligibility for assignments and activities.

In all, Mr. Harper has received over 60 certificates of completion, ranging from self-help groups such as Alcoholics Anonymous courses to Victim Rights classes, in addition to his own facilitation of programs benefiting troubled inner city youth. Mr. Harper has also received over 70 laudatory "Chronos" from program facilitators and correctional officers alike, commending him for his positive attitude, respectful behavior, and inspirational work ethic.

In 2012, Mr. Harper was transferred to the Progressive Programming Facility (PPF) at California State Prison-Lancaster, which is a prison yard uniquely focused on rehabilitation and taking responsibility. On the PPF, inmates must be drug and gang-free, must be willing to live and program with inmates of all races, and are required to work and seek self-improvement. Mr. Harper was chosen for the PPF after a rigorous vetting process because of his nearly discipline-free prison record.

Most significantly, Mr. Harper has shown tremendous leadership while incarcerated. He is a co-founder of Men for Honor, a peer group and rehabilitation program that focuses on gang intervention and giving back to others. In Men for Honor, Mr. Harper helps other inmates understand their causative factors and triggers, and gives them the tools to express remorse for their crimes. Through his leadership in Men for Honor, Mr. Harper has gained the esteem of both his fellow inmates and prison officials.

Mr. Harper is sincerely remorseful for his crime. Despite his victimization at the hands of Phillip Piazza, he takes full responsibility for his crime, and realizes that nothing Mr. Piazza could have done would make him deserve his terrible manner of death. In 2014 letter to Mr. Piazza's family, Mr. Harper wrote:

"Mr. Phillip Piazza and Leonard Piazza and your entire family didn't deserve what I did. And I understand that your grief is lifelong. And I get that your family will never forget all that I did. Neither will I. What I did to you all haunts me daily and I'm sorry. The same energy I use to remember my harm I caused you all is the same lifelong energy I will use to remember what your family endures daily. It also causes me to continue to work on myself to become a better human being and man every single day."

Mr. Harper's remorse about his actions has fueled his determination to rehabilitate and become a better man.

Mr. Harper works as a barber during the week. He has paid off his court-ordered restitution. He attends group therapy meetings on Tuesdays; and on Wednesdays he facilitates a victim sensitivity group. He facilitates a domestic violence group on Thursdays and a youthful offenders group on Fridays. He attends Alcoholics Anonymous and Narcotics Anonymous meetings on every other Saturday. On Sundays, Mr. Harper spends his time either attending religious services or watching and playing basketball. He also has social visits on Saturdays or Sundays.

D. Mr. Harper has Extensive Post Release Plans and Community Support

Upon release, Mr. Harper plans to enter a transitional living community where he will continue to focus on rehabilitation and growth. He will participate in self-help programming and gain the skills he needs to work as a truck driver and mentor for at-risk youth.

Mr. Harper will also remain a client of the Loyola Law School Juvenile Innocence and Fair Sentencing Clinic (JIFS), which will continue to represent him for the rest of his life. The JIFS Clinic, like the other clinics in the Center for Juvenile Law & Policy, is committed to holistic representation. For post-conviction clients like Mr. Harper, "holistic representation" means not just representing the client at resentencing and parole, but also addressing the root causes of his commitment offense, helping the client transition to life outside prison, and finally, helping the client "pay it forward" by giving back to the community, counseling at-risk youth and participating in social justice work. A team of students, attorneys, and social workers will support Mr. Harper through his transition by checking in on him frequently, and continuing to provide him with the best legal and support services possible.

Mr. Harper has a close relationship with his brother, Baylon, who is now a successful city employee. Baylon visits Mr. Harper often and the two work together to overcome the brutality and dysfunction of their upbringing. Baylon is a source of great strength and support for Mr. Harper and will be a large part of Mr. Harper's transition into the community.

Lastly, Mr. Harper is engaged to a successful, hard-working mother of one, Angelique Chappell. Ms. Chappell is a former US Marine and resides in Menifee, California. She first met Mr. Harper through mutual friends when he was in high school and she was in middle school. Ms. Chappell believes that Mr. Harper's time in prison and attending self-help groups has helped him to mature and remove his shame about being sexually abused. Ms. Chappell promises that if Mr. Harper is released she will be supportive and help him make the transition from prison to society. Mr. Harper thinks of Ms. Chappell's son as his own and speaks frequently about his desire to be a strong role model for him.

IV. CONCLUSION

There is no doubt that Mr. Harper deserved punishment for his actions. Mr. Harper will always regret taking Mr. Piazza's life and the devastating effect his behavior has had on the Piazza family and the community, at large. Mr. Harper has used that remorse as fuel to gather the tools and skills he will need to be a productive citizen. He has taken advantage of every possible rehabilitative program available to him. He has transformed from an immature boy with little control over his emotions and actions to a mature adult who is ready to take on the responsibilities of life. And most importantly, Mr. Harper will continue to give back in any way he can to restore justice to the Piazza family and the community.

On behalf of Mr. Harper and his family, we ask that Mr. Harper's sentence be commuted. Thank you in advance for your attention to this matter.

Sincerely,

Christopher Hawthorne

Christopher Herrera

On May 25, 2010, Christopher Herrera and a fellow gang member drove past Juan Hernandez. Mr. Herrera pulled out a gun, yelled about a gang, and shot at Mr. Hernandez, hitting him in the leg. Mr. Hernandez survived. On October 07, 2011, the Los Angeles County Superior Court sentenced Mr. Herrera to 7 years to life for attempted murder and 25 years to life for a firearm enhancement – a total term of 32 years to life.

Mr. Herrera was just 15 years old when he was jumped into a gang and only 18 when he committed this crime. In his application for clemency, he described his conviction as a wakeup call that moved him to reevaluate his participation in the gang lifestyle. He wrote, "I wanted to become a better, productive individual and change my lifestyle. I transformed my life for the better . . . I realize the pain and destruction my old ways caused my family and my victim, and I am truly sorry for that and I would never go back that same path."

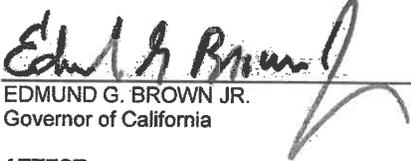

During almost eight years in prison, Mr. Herrera stopped associating with gangs and has committed himself to turning his life around. He is now 26 years old, has earned his GED, and is pursuing an A.A. degree. In 2017, Senator Andy Vidak, Assemblymember Vince Fong, and Congressman David Valadao each recognized Mr. Herrera for his completion of Bakersfield College courses in the Inmate Scholars program. Mr. Herrera routinely receives exceptional work ratings as a literacy tutor. One 2017 work report noted his "calm and understanding nature" and commended him for his passion for "not only enriching his own knowledge, but for showing, teaching and encouraging others to grow academically as well." The report concluded, "He has continued to be a positive role model for all students and encourages and challenges students to better themselves through knowledge and education." Mr. Herrera has also participated in self-help programs, including Alcoholics Anonymous and Getting Out by Going In, and currently volunteers with a youth diversion program. When he is released, he plans to stay away from his old neighborhood; he reported that he will live with his mother and hopes to start his own business using skills he has developed in prison.

When he committed this crime, Mr. Herrera was clearly a reckless teenager who was caught up in the negative influences of gangs and violence. In prison, he has shown himself to be a mature young man who has accepted responsibility for his actions and worked to better himself and those around him. I believe he deserves an earlier opportunity to make his case to the Board of Parole Hearings so it can determine whether he is suitable for parole.

THEREFORE, I, EDMUND G. BROWN JR., Governor of the State of California, by virtue of the power and authority vested in me by the Constitution and statutes of the State of California, do hereby commute the sentence of Christopher Herrera to a total of 10 years to life.

I have committed a crime on May 15, 2010, I shot someone, and he got hit in the leg by the shooting that took place, then I ended up in a car chase that later ended up with me crashing getting in a foot pursuit that later ended with me getting arrested. The victim was taken to the hospital where he was treated and survived, then I was released I think a week later I'm not sure, but the circumstances of the crime was that I shot someone, and I am not proud of. I then was charged with an attempted murder charge that I got found guilty of.

Question #3

Christopher
Herrera

I'm requesting a pardon or commutation I made a mistake in life that I am not proud of. I know what I did was violent and wrong, but I feel that I shouldn't have been convicted of a charge this high with a life sentence. This is an eye opener meaning this made me think about life is it worth living this lifestyle, and that's no, but this has helped me transform my life. I have never done anything violent before all my charges before was when I was a juvenile and those charges were disobeying court order, and possession of controlled substance. I feel and believe I deserve a second chance and I have shown and will continue to show and progress here.

My name is Christopher Herrera I'm 26 years old. I got incarcerated in 2010. When I first came to prison this gave me time to sit down and question myself what do I want in life? My answer to that was I wanted to become a better, productive individual and change my lifestyle I transformed my life for the better. I am no longer in my teenage mindset, my way of thinking is different from what it was in my past. I am currently housed at Kern Valley State Prison. When I arrived here I continued my education in 2014 where by 2016 I got my G.E.D. After graduating I wanted to pursue a higher education I then got put on a waiting list for college. For the time being with what I've learned I wanted to help other students out get there g.e.d. I knew I had the capabilities to achieving this. So I became a teachers assistant I was very good at what I did and I enjoyed helping others learn, this made me feel good at the end of the day. By the beginning of September 2016 I got enrolled into Bakersfield College which first began it's program here in B yard, and also got enrolled into Coastline Community College, which then I started my higher education, I've been maintaining a g.p.a. above a 3.0, and excited about learning and educating the mind. I am pursuing to getting a business degree and communications. I have been in self help programs such as gogi, alcohol anonymous, and a program called Defy Ventures which I'm currently in that's been helping me build for management and leadership skills. I will be graduating from this program at the end of February. I've been on a path that's made me a better person. I took the wrong path when I was young but turned my life around, and I'm grateful for the life changing lessons. I realize the pain and destruction my old ways caused my family and my victim, and I am truly sorry for that and I would never go back that same path. I will continue my journey on achieving my goals making my family proud and others showing them that it's never too late to change and transform for the better.

I wanted to say thank you for taking the time out of your day to review my application for executive clemency. I appreciate it and may you continue to enjoy the rest of your day. Thank you.

Sincerely, Christopher Hemera

Virgil Eugene Holt

In January 1989, Kwami Davies fired Virgil Holt from his job at a fast food restaurant. On April 19, 1989, Mr. Holt went back to the restaurant with a gun at closing time. He forced an employee into the walk-in freezer and warned that he would shoot him if he tried to leave. Mr. Holt found Mr. Davies and ordered him to open the safe. Mr. Davies refused, and Mr. Holt shot him multiple times, killing him. On October 31, 1991, the Alameda County Superior Court sentenced Mr. Holt to life without the possibility of parole plus four years for murder, false imprisonment, and a firearm enhancement.

While acknowledging the significant impact of his crime, Mr. Holt applied for clemency based on his record of rehabilitation. In his application, he said, "I am no longer the out of control, reckless, immature, and irresponsible person that I was almost 30 years ago." He described deciding to turn his life around after informing his daughter that he would never be released from prison. Mr. Holt wrote, "I needed to understand my old self and I wanted to be able to heal as much of the hurt and pain I'd caused as I could. . . . I have changed my thinking and subsequent behaviors and I am now committed to a lifestyle of growth through rehabilitation."

Mr. Holt is now 49 years old and has been incarcerated for nearly three decades. He earned his GED and is currently taking courses through Coastline Community College in pursuit of an A.A. degree. Mr. Holt has participated in multiple self-help classes, including Alcoholics Anonymous, Alternatives to Violence, Houses of Healing, and Victim Sensitivity. He works as a trainer for the Paws for Life program, in which inmates train shelter dogs to prepare them for adoption. Mr. Holt has lived for years on an honor yard, and earned respect from the staff members who see him every day. A correctional sergeant who supervises Mr. Holt commended him in 2018 for his work ethic and conflict resolution skills and wrote, "I've also had multiple discussions with Holt regarding his efforts and desires to maintain a course of growth and positive change. . . . I am confident that should Inmate Holt be released from prison he would be a law abiding citizen and an asset to any community." Also in 2018, a correctional officer who has known Mr. Holt for eight years observed that Mr. Holt was "a very positive minded, sociable, and very respectful inmate. . . . I am confident that should Holt be released from prison, he will avoid gang involvement and do extremely well in society." Mr. Holt has been accepted by several transitional housing programs that can help him in the event of his release from prison, and reports that he will also receive support from members of his family and religious groups.

I do not discount the gravity of Mr. Holt's offense, but I also cannot overlook the many strides he has made in prison. In recent years, it appears that he has made a major change and has been seriously dedicated to turning his life around. He is on the right track and should continue his efforts in the coming years. Given all this, I believe it is appropriate to reduce his sentence so that the Board of Parole Hearings can determine whether he is suitable for parole.

THEREFORE, I, EDMUND G. BROWN JR., Governor of the State of California, by virtue of the power and authority vested in me by the Constitution and statutes of the State of California, do hereby commute the sentence of Virgil Eugene Holt to a total of 25 years to life.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the Great Seal of the State of California to be affixed this 17th day of August, 2018.

2. Briefly describe the circumstances of the crime(s) for which you are requesting commutation (continued from page 1):
resulting in the killing of Mr. Quamena Davis. During the course of the robbery, I made Mr. Robert Yorke lay down in the walk-in freezer and upon being confronted by Mr. Davis when I exited the walk-in freezer, Mr. Davis and I began to argue and struggle for the gun and, regrettably, I ended up shooting Mr. Davis killing him. I then stole money from the cash register to buy more drugs and alcohol. I take full responsibility for my actions and the choices that I made on that dreadful day.

3. Explain why you are requesting a commutation (continued from page 1):
no guidance, and out of control. I was irresponsible and I lacked accountability. I struggled with addictive personality disorders, sociopathic and disruptive behaviors, and addictions to drugs (narcotics) and alcohol. I was an immature kid who had spun my life out of control. I have since grown and matured and I have become a responsible, accountable, reliable, compassionate and, morally and spiritually grounded man. Through intense introspection and unyielding efforts at rehabilitation, despite having no hope at freedom, I have managed to change my prospective of life and I am no longer the immature kid that I was almost 30 years ago. I take full and complete responsibility for my committment offense and criminal behaviors which culminated in the pain, trama, suffering and loss that I inflicted on Mr. Quamena Davis and his family, Mr. Robert Yorke and his family, Miss Teresia Bagely and her family and Mr. Terrance Shaw and his family. Mr. Governor I'm terribly sorry for, and regret, having caused everyone so much pain, loss and sorrow, and I wish to be able to dedicate myself to giving back to the innocent people who's lives I distroyed (and to society as a whole) by becoming a part of social programs and events to share my story about drug addiction and criminal activity (coupled with the poor choices that accompany them and their inevitable consequences, to include but not be limited to death and imprisonment). I want to be able to convey that there are reasonable alternative options to the life choices that they make which could and would empower their lives and, I want to be able to work hard doing whatever I can to help change and save peoples lives. I feel tremendous sorrow and shame for what I did to Mr. Davis, Mr. Yorke, Miss Bagley and Mr. Shaw and I wish I could take it all back somehow. Mr. Governor, I have a 27 year old daughter who was Born one month after my committment offense, and her living dream is to see me come home to her some day. My daughter Christine and the rest of my family also continues to suffer as a result of my committment offense and ongoing imprisonment and, my family wants and needs me home. They too have witnessed the transformation in my thinking, maturity, my behavior and my prospective of life. They have witnessed my growth. Mr. Governor, I am a first termmer and would like to have an opportunity to appear before the Board of Prison Hearings to be assessed on the merits of the rehabilitive transformation that I have been fortunate to make over the course of my incarceration. Mr. Governor, I'm asking that you give me a second chaneé to prove to society that I am not the same person that I was 28 years ago. I'm asking that you please commute my sentence to 25 years to life or whatever you deem is appropriate.

4. Provide a brief statement why you should be granted a commutation (continued from page 1):
reliable, compassionate, self accountable, respectful, spiritually grounded, and loving man and, I have been rehabilitated. Upon my exceptance of my responsibility for my committment offense and criminal behaviors, I was able to recognize and understand the magnititude and impact that my committment offense has had on my direct and indirect victims (Mr. Davis Mr. Yorke, Miss Bagley , Mr. Shaw and thier families, thier communities, the Churches Chicken franchise and community, society as a whole and, my own family). I'm so very sorry for the hurt, the anguish, the loss, the grief, the trauma, the damage and the destruction that I have inflicted on Mr. Davis, Mr. Yorke, Miss Bagley and, Mr. Shaw, their families and communities, society and, my own family.

After years of no hope and regrettably engaging in disruptive behaviors, I had a turning point in my life where my daughter learned for the first time that I was serving a life without the possibility of parole sentence and that I would never be coming home to her. Listening to little Christine as she wailed and screamed over the phone (crying and pleading for me to come home to her) not being able to hold and comfort her, it made me feel horrible. Something in me changed! I thought of all the people I had hurt just like my daughter was hurting (Quamena, Robert, Teresia and, Terrance) and I began to feel empathy for them and their families and communities and I wanted to change. I began to undergo a rigorous and thorough process of introspection of myself because I never wanted to hurt anyone else again in my life. I needed to be able to understand my old self and I wanted to be able to heal as much of the hurt and pain that I'd caused as I could. Lord knows, I wish I could take it all back and do things differently. I have changed my thinking and subsequent behaviors and I am now committed to a lifestyle of growth through rehabilitation.

I have been an active participant in the California State Prison Los Angeles County Facility A Progressive Programming Facility (PPF) Program since 2010. And despite having no hope of ever being released from prison, I have made the following rehabilitative accomplishments:

- I have remained disciplinary free for over 6 years;
- I have renounced and have not engaged in any disruptive group behavior in over 10 years;
- I have obtained my GED and I'm in pursuits of an Associated Degree in Social and Behavioral Science and, Business;
- I have taken the initiative to excel in each of my prison job/work assignments and continue to earn top rating performance remarks and evaluations from my correctional supervisors;
- I have acquired the tools necessary to always reach toward and grasp positive viable solutions when faced with challenging, difficult, trying, and adverse situations and circumstances in life (for example, I allow myself to breathe and think clearly to afford myself a clearer picture of a given situation and to enable me to make good choices and decisions, I reframe my perception of events to give myself a more positive outlook on preceivably adverse situations and circumstances and, I live by the 12 steps of AA and NA sobriety and also place my faith in God and my ability to make sound positive and resolute choices);
- I have completed several self help and rehabilitative programs and courses (Victim Sensitivity Awareness, Narcotics Anonymous, Alcoholics Anonymous, Paving the Way Foundation, Positive Parenting Program, Creative Writing, Fundamentals of Business and Investment and, Recreational Department Contributions) and I am continuing to take other rehabilitative courses when space becomes available;
- I am committed to a lifestyle of self improvements and positive growth;
- I have maintained drug free sobriety throughout the course of my incarceration and, I have remained alcohol free for over 14 years (In NA and AA I've learned how my drug and alcohol addictions were contributing factors to my poor choices and poor decision making);

- I have developed strong Christian morals and values, and I maintain a faithful and excellent fellowship and repore with my christian sponsors and supporters who are in society;
- I have learn to love and respect others, and I have taken the initiative to donate to charities of my own volition;
- I have written letters of apology expressing my regret to my victims (Mr. Davis, Mr. York, Miss Bagley and, Mr. Shaw) for my crimes against them and for the pain and sufferings that I caused them and their families.

Once I am released from prison I plan to committ myself to volunteering to community services and social events to help give back to society and to continue to make amends for my crime. My daughter Christine and my family needs me home and wants me home. I have a strong support system on the outside who loves me and are willing and prepared to assist me with housing, transportation, meals, moral and spiritual support, life planning, job prospecting and opportunities, relapse prevention plans and, financial assistance and support if needed. I have served 28 years of an LWOP plus 4 year sentence and I have a low California Risk Assessment Score of (1) and: Mr. Governor, once I am released, I will never re-offend! I just need a chance to prove myself worthy of a second chance at life, and to prove that I will be a productive law abiding citizen. A commutation of my sentence will give me a chance to appear before the Board of Prison Hearings to demonstrate my rehabilitation and suitability for parole recommendations.

For the above reasons Mr. Governor, you should grant my application requesting a commutation of my sentence and allow me to demonstrate to you, the Board of Prison Hearings, to my victims and their families and, to all whom may be concerned, of my readiness and suitability for release from prison and re-entry into society.

Thank you for your compassion Mr. Governor and, may God always bestow blessings upon you for your mercy.

Respectfully Submitted,
Mr. Virgil E. Holt H-17313

Hai Hong

In 1993, Hai Hong accompanied Aliyatham Silavong on a car ride. Mr. Hong fell asleep. Mr. Silavong broke into the Tanaka family's home and rounded up the four family members at gunpoint. Mr. Silavong demanded money and valuables, and took several of the family members to an ATM and forced them to withdraw money. Mr. Silavong woke Mr. Hong and told him to guard two of the family members at the house at gunpoint while he took the others to another bank. Mr. Hong, who was armed, sat in the living room with Janet and Greg Tanaka until a police officer who learned of the kidnapping knocked on the door. Mr. Hong was arrested as he tried to flee through a window; Mrs. and Mr. Tanaka were uninjured and escaped. On December 17, 1993, the Los Angeles County Superior Court sentenced Mr. Hong to life without the possibility of parole plus four years for kidnapping for ransom and a firearm enhancement.

In his application for clemency, Mr. Hong described his rehabilitative efforts and his belief that his sentence was unduly harsh. He explained that at the time of the crime, he was a 24-year-old refugee from Vietnam who spoke no English, did not know in advance about his crime partner's plans to target the Tanaka family, and had little ability to navigate the legal system. In an interview with an investigator from the Board of Parole Hearings, Mr. Hong reported that his father was put in a concentration camp in Vietnam. Mr. Hong only attended school until the third grade in Saigon, and lived in refugee camps for several years before a family member sponsored him to come to the United States. Mr. Hong asked for a second chance at freedom, and pledged that he would try to contribute to the community if released.

Mr. Hong is now 50 years old and has been incarcerated for 25 years. He had no prior criminal history, and he has only been disciplined three times for misconduct during more than two decades in prison. Mr. Hong has never participated in gangs, drugs, or violence. He participated in several self-help groups, including Life Skills and a group for inmates serving life sentences. He also participated in Buddhist programs for years. Mr. Hong is currently taking education classes to learn English, and told the Board investigator that he hopes to become a Vietnamese-English translator so he can help other refugees in need of translation services. Mr. Hong reported that his mother and sister will help provide him with housing and a job in the event that he is released.

Mr. Hong participated in a deeply troubling crime, and I have no doubt that his actions have had a long-lasting impact on the Tanaka family. However, Mr. Hong has no history of violence before or after this offense, and he has taken his rehabilitation seriously and has clearly expressed remorse. For these reasons, I believe that Mr. Hong has earned the opportunity to present his case to the Board of Parole Hearings so it can determine whether he is suitable for parole.

THEREFORE, I, EDMUND G. BROWN JR., Governor of the State of California, by virtue of the power and authority vested in me by the Constitution and statutes of the State of California, do hereby commute the sentence of Hai Hong to a total of 25 years to life.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF I have hereunto set my hand and caused the Great Seal of the State of California to be affixed this 17th Day of August, 2018.
